A TRAMPING FIEND.

Ogletree the Southern Kidnapper of Boys.

Horrible Experiences of One of His Victims—How the Child Was Stolen and the Long Pursuit Before the Capture—Hunting the Scoundrel With a Good Chance for a Case For Judge Lynch.

New York, Sept. 25.—A special from Chattanooga says:

Captain Frank V. Gurley, of Gurleysville, Ala., who conducted the search for Ogletree, the tramp, who abducted the child of James C. White, of Jackson county, Ala., arrived in this city Saturday with the posse returning from the search for the abducted child, whom they had recovered near Newman, Ga., Friday. The correspondent had a conversation with Captain Gurley, from whom was obtained particulars of the bold deed. Ogletree came to the house of Mr. White on the 28th of August, and after begging for his dinner enticed the child, who is about eight years old, away from the house, the father being in the field at the time. As soon as Ogletree was out of sight of the house he lifted the child on his shoulder and made for the woods and traveled day and night. Mr. White, when he returned to his house, missed the child and immediately aroused the whole neighborhood, and a posse started in pursuit. Ogletree took a very roundabout way and exhausted every means to throw his pursuers off the track, but after following him several days they discovered his plan. The first definite information learned of his movements was near Collinsville, Ala. From that place he was reported to have gone toward Newman in Paulding county. Fully a thousand people were searching for him by this time. On arriving at the cabin of a negro near Newman, Ogletree tied the boy to a tree in the woods and went into the house to procure something to eat. While he was eating his supper his pursuers arrived at the house, but the abductor walked out a back door, moving through the garden and fields, and made his escape. The boy was found tied to a tree several hundred yards from the house, and when Mr. White saw him his demonstrations of joy were unbounded. The little fellow was emaciated and half dead with fear, but he was soon able to tell a terrible story of his treatment by Ogletree, who, he stated, beat him unmercifully on every complaint, and threatened to kill him if he made his identity known. The boy's body was covered with bruises received at the hands of Ogletree, and his legs, hands, and face were terribly lacerated by briars and bushes through which he was compelled to pass. He said that on several occasions when Ogletree entered a house on the road and went into a town he was bound to a tree, at times being left for hours, and once all night. He had gone without anything to eat for nearly three days and nights. No one was allowed to speak to him, Ogletree claiming that he was his son and was demented and deaf. Under this treatment he was afraid to ask for assistance or to make known his condition. Captain Gurley says this is the fourth boy known to have been abducted by Ogletree, who always escaped arrest. A dispatch received from Newman reports that the whereabouts of the abductor had been learned, and that bloodhounds were on his track. Efforts are being made to induce the Governor of Alabama to offer a reward for his arrest. If caught by his pursuers he certainly will be lynched. Captain Gurley, who had the posse that rescued the boy in charge, was Captain of the Confederate company which had General McCook in charge when he was slain. He was court-martialed and sentenced to be hanged for bushwhacking, but he produced his official papers and was released. The people are still scouring the woods with bloodhounds in search of Ogletree, and it is believed he will be caught and lynched.

LOOKING TO CONKLING.

The Stalwart Programme, as Secretly Fixed at Richfield.

ALBANY, Sept. 25.—There was an under-current at the Richfield Springs Convention which does not appear to have been referred to in any of the newspaper dispatches from that place. The reference was made to the subject by some of the prominent delegates on their way home shows that it has great significance. It was a desire to place Joscoe Conkling in the United States Senate from this State. It cropped out in their private conversation, and in various other ways, to such an extent as to lead to the impression that the stalwarts are quietly working to secure Mr. Conkling's return in 1885. Some of the movements connected with the nominations of State Senators this year are only explained on that theory. The hope of the stalwarts is still in Mr. Conkling, and their frequent assertion that it was a shame that the State could not have his services in the Senate revealed their anxiety to again place him in that position. There was not the slightest intimation that Mr. Conkling had the remotest idea of returning to political life. Not one of the stalwarts would admit that he had, but they believed that the State, and more especially their party, ought to have his services. This feeling in a measure grows out of the failure to find any one to fill his place as a party leader on whom they can rely in all emergencies. The stalwarts will expend their energies this year in electing State Senators. They have already succeeded in retiring some of those aspirants who are Cornell men and adverse to their old chief. It is evident that if the Legislature of 1885 is Republican and a majority are stalwarts, nothing but the refusal of Mr. Conkling to allow his name to be used will prevent the entire concentration of the stalwart strength in the Legislature on him for United States Senator.

SHOT DEAD.

Another Sensational Murder Case in Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Joseph Souder, a handsome well-educated young woman, lies at the hospital in a dying condition with a bullet-hole through her body. Jacob Wells, formerly a well-to-do business man of Syracuse, and a man of family, occupies the murderers cell at the City Court House. Both parties are well known here, and the report that Wells had murdered Miss Souder caused a great deal of excitement, especially in the neighborhood of the Blue Rock, where the twin occupied a suit of rooms. There had been considerable gossip over the relations of Miss Souder and Wells, especially as he had on several occasions threatened to shoot her, owing to jealousy. While slightly intoxicated, he went to their rooms and found her absent. On inquiry he found the girl in the room of a gentleman occupying apartments in the block as an office. Wells called her into the hall, and, without warning, pulled a large-sized revolver and fired. The ball entered Miss Souder's breast and came out in her back, dropping to the floor. The occupants of the block rushed out, and the wounded woman was carried to her room, it was thought in a dying condition. Wells walked down the stairway, but was intercepted and placed under arrest. When arraigned before the magistrate he pleaded not guilty to an assault with intent to kill, and said that Miss Souder would surely deny that he shot her. When questioned by the coroner, who wished to take her ante-mortem statement, sure enough she said that the shooting was purely accidental. Before she learned of Wells' arrest she described the manner of shooting and said that he threatened to kill her, drawing his weapon and firing at close range. The affair is the talk of the town. Ample bail has been proffered for the release of Wells, but the authorities will not release him.

STILL ANOTHER CUT.

Chicago to Indianapolis, Including Chicago, Five Cents.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—The Louisville, New Albany & Chicago road had things all its own way in selling tickets at the rate of $1 to Indianapolis, and at local rates from Indianapolis to points beyond, which, of course, made a cut to Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus, and other points. Late, however, the Pan-Handle and Kankakee lines decided to meet this cut, and will begin selling at the same rate at once. The Kankakee line has not heretofore taken part in the war, as it was not noticeably affected by the cut when confined to Chicago and Louisville, but when it extended to Indianapolis, Cincinnati, and other points the Kankakee line was forced into the fight, and now promises to meet the cut made by anybody. The Cincinnati and Indianapolis cut also forced the Chicago & Eastern Illinois into the war, and, judging by its first move, it promises to be quite a marked factor in the problem. It announces that it will at once begin selling tickets to Indianapolis including a Chicago, for five cents. It is understood the five cents is for the Chicago, and that the fare is thrown in gratis. To points beyond Indianapolis the regular local fare will be charged, as is done by the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago, making the total rates from Chicago to those points as follows: Cincinnati, $3 55; Dayton, $3 55; Springfield, $4; Urbana, $4 30; Columbus, $5 25. The officers of this line say they have been forced into the fight, and propose to make it as hot as possible. The Louisville, New Albany & Chicago people say they are prepared to meet any rate made. It is impossible to say where the matter will stop.

THE NEW NOTE.

More Complaints as to Its Flimsy Character.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The agitation created by the flimsy appearance of the new postal note has resulted in a visit to Washington by the manufacturer, who is anxious to make peace with the Post-Office Department on the subject. It is stated that an attempt will be made to show that a different paper than was contracted for has been used, and which renders the printing difficult. The paper manufacturer is also here, awaiting the return of the Postmaster-General, as Acting Postmaster-General Hutton declines to act in the premises. It is alleged that the latter, however, is not favorably disposed toward the new notes, and would have called them in and annulled the contract had it not been for the public demand for the notes. The Post-Office Department has received letters from Postmasters in all sections of the country stating that the notes are a failure and that nobody seems to desire them except curiosity-hunters. One Postmaster writes that since the notes went into operation he has sold two out of a lot of several hundred. No action will be taken by the Department until the Postmaster-General returns, but an impression prevails that unless better work is guaranteed the present contract will be annulled and proposals invited for a new one.

A CHRISTIAN REBUKE.

Results of Refusing to Subscribe for the Cause in Texas.

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 25.—At New Braunfels, County Judge Ernest Koebig assaulted one Dr. Koehring, a well-known physician. Koehring resisted and laid Koebig out with a severe gash on the head and face, inflicted by a cowhide. As soon as Koebig regained his senses he armed himself, sought out Koehring, and fired two shots at him, one of which wounded Koehring's coachman. Koebig fled and was not found that night. He renewed the war, and came near killing the coachman. Koebig is now under heavy bonds. Koehring is unhurt. The affair grew out of Koehring's refusal to subscribe to the Lutheran Church festival, to take place on the 15th.

A PRIEST'S PERIL.

A Congregation Make an Attempt at Lynching.

AN Extraordinary Case in New York State—Senseless Fury of a Crowd of Ignorant Polish Roman Catholics Against Their Pastor—Dragging Him From His House and Attempting to Lynch Him—Fears of a Bloody Riot.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 25.—There is considerable excitement at East Buffalo about the attempted lynching of Rev. John Pitass, pastor of the Roman Catholic Church there, by members of his congregation. He has been pastor there for twelve years, and his membership is over 1,000. He is industrious, and is building a new $50,000 church. A few months ago Bishop Ryan gave him Rev. Peter Chawavits, a young man, as an assistant. Peter was genial and made many friends. The old priest was strict, and soon a feeling arose that Peter had better take the pastorate. This week the Bishop sent Peter away to Owego, N. Y. Late at night a crowd of 500 gathered around the priest's and some went inside. They demanded to know the whereabouts of the young priest. Father Pitass said he did not know. He was then seized by the ring-leaders and hustled into the street. They walked him up Peckham street. When opposite the house of one Kujawski, called the Polish King because of his influence with his countrymen, who form most of the congregation, the priest broke away and ran into the house. The King kept the crowd back with the muzzle of a revolver. The crowd shouted "lynch him and kill him." A detachment of police appeared and hostilities ceased. At midnight an attempt was made to burgle the priest's house, but the attempt failed. Three of the rioters were arrested. There is a large crowd around the priest's house. Police Captain Nieker said: "If we had not got there promptly I believe the crowd would have lynched Father Pitass. They are ignorant Poles and do not realize what they are doing. They threaten to take the priest bodily away from the altar while he is celebrating mass. I anticipate a bloody riot, and will have a large force on the scene to prevent it if possible."

RENEGADE INDIANS.

The Long Pursuit That Finally Ended in Capture.

SANTA FE, N. M., Sept. 25.—In July last five Mesquero Indians, confined in the guard-house at Fort Riley, Kan., escaped from the guard. Pursuit was instituted by the military authorities, but without avail. These Mesqueros made their way through the Indian Territory and Texas to the Guadalupe Mountains, south of the Mesquero Reservation. On the 9th instant Indian Agent Lewellyn managed to get information as to their whereabouts, and at once dispatched the Captain of the Indian Police, Thomas Branningan, after them. After a hunt of twelve days Branningan, with his detachment of ten Mesquero police, captured the renegades, who were: Roman Chiquito, horse thief; Marias, boy; Muecho, a negro, and Onasco, all with the exception of Roman Chiquito pretty bad Indians. They are now held in confinement at the Mesquero Agency. Agent Lewellyn and Capt. Branningan are entitled to much credit for this important capture. Roman Chiquito was one of the chiefs who had been deposed for misconduct by Agent Lewellyn and Onasco, and was one of Victoria's sub-chiefs. They all have been in many a raid. Matters are reported quiet and in good shape at the Mesquero Agency, and the system of Indian police works remarkably well.

A BAD BOY.

Efforts to Liberate a Young New York Scapgrace.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Sept. 25.—Mrs. W. Colgate, of New York, wife of the New York banker, has been in the city several days this week, accompanied by Mrs. J. F. McMillan, of New York. Mrs. Colgate's errand was to visit her son, who is serving a term in the Kansas State Penitentiary from Sumner county. Young Colgate was a very wild sort of a youth, and after some difficulty in regard to his frolics, his father wanting him to sober down, he left home and came West. He was employed as book-keeper in a mill near Wellington. He became involved there, and was charged with embezzling funds belonging to the mill owners. The mill building was burned down, however, and with it the books which it was thought would show discrepancies. An effort is now being made to have him pardoned, and Mrs. Colgate's visit was in this connection, to see if he would do better if released.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK.

The Wonderfully Heavy Fall Trade Reported in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25.—Interviews with leading merchants of the city show that never before in the history of St. Louis was there such a boom in commercial circles as is going on at present in almost every line and branch of trade. There has been extraordinary briskness and activity for the past six months, and an almost incredible demand from outside parties during the last three weeks. All the larger houses have extended the territory of their traveling salesmen, and the number of orders that are flowing in daily is conclusive evidence of the fact that St. Louis is not only rivaling the enterprise of Chicago and Cincinnati, but in a short while bids fair to far outrun them in the volume of her trade.

BIG OIL WELL.

"Porky No. 11" Suddenly Makes a Rich Break.

PRITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 25.—The oil well known as "Porky No. 11," from which nothing at all was expected, owing to its location, has come in booming on the market in a style that upset all calculations, and caused a drop in price from $1 17 to $1 13 1/2. This well is a mile and a half outside of the limits of developed territory, and opens up an altogether new field. When the announcement was made in the exchange that it was flowing at the rate of a thousand barrels a day the astonishments of the speculators both over the magnitude of the well and the richness of the new field was almost inexpressible. For a time the excitement was great, but it gradually subsided, and the close of the market was quiet. The decline in price would have been heavier but for the "shorts" covering and large dealers buying to stop the downward tendency of the market.

THE JEWELL CLAIM.

The Big Stake Mrs. A. J. Spratt is After.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 25.—The Mrs. A. J. Spratt who is reported by the telegraph to be in New York in search of Albert Levitts and Miss Bettie Jewell, whom she was to meet by appointment, she claims, to receive the papers placing her in possession of a trust fund of $100,000, held in trust by the late George W. Jewell, a wealthy bachelor, and after his death passing to the custody of Mrs. Levitts, who was Jewell's confidential secretary, is the widow of Thomas B. Spratt, at one time Superintendent of the Union Depot Dining-rooms in this city, and is a near relative of the Ohmer Brothers, the famous railroad caterers of Dayton, O. Inquiry of her relatives in this city elicited no satisfactory information concerning her claim. They decline to make any statement until the lady's return from the East.

Another Telegraphic Combination.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 24.—A special from Baltimore says that the American Rapid and Bankers' and Merchants' consolidated Telegraph Companies enter into a mutual agreement with the Baltimore and Ohio to transfer business. This means the dropping of the postal company, by which the former have been reaching Chicago, and while giving them a better system West, gives the Baltimore and Ohio its long-desired outlet north and east. This will continue until the new lines of the Rapid and Bankers' west are completed. October 1 the Rapid discontinues the use of its automatic system, adopting the duplex Morse system instead.

An Overdose of Morphine.

SEDALIA, Mo., Sept. 25.—A private telegram explains the mystery of the death of Joseph Pilkington, Jr. The young man, who was a medical student at the Bellevue Hospital Medical College of New York City, was in the habit of taking morphine when he was not well, and from his medical education understood the powers of the drug perfectly. By mistake, and while quite sick, he took an overdose, which resulted in his death. He was one of the most promising young men of the city, and his death is deeply deplored.

A Cowardly Murder.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 25.—At Atoka, Tenn., a drunken man by the name of Hill stabbed and killed the son of Mr. John Manassa, of Tipton county. The murder was unprovoked, as young Manassa had had no quarrel with him and was in the act of mounting his horse to return home, when Hill ran up behind him and stabbed him several times. He ran into the woods after the killing and is still at large.

Postoffice Robbed.

CHESTER, Ill., Sept. 25.—The residence of H. Messendorff, Postmaster of Welga, five miles east of here, was burglarized about 11 o'clock at night. The burglar took Messendorff's pants and key to the store and postoffice, and got about $35 in money and a No. 38 revolver. They broke open all the drawers, but failed to get any stamps, and overlooked two very valuable registered letters. No clue as yet to the thief.

Tracking Burglars with Bloodhounds.

MARSHALL, Tex., Sept. 25.—Burglars were busy in the eastern part of town, but got away with very little cash. Several women and children were badly frightened, some of them fleeing from their homes on account of the daring and violent efforts of the robbers to gain admittance. Sheriff Perry's bloodhounds were put upon the trail.

Afterpiece at a Matinee.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 25.—John Karnatz took his divorced wife to the matinee and as they were leaving the Opera House they were met by his present wife, who administered a sound tongue-lashing to the pair and scratched the face and blackened the eyes of the intruder on her happiness. The scene was an exciting one and occurred on a crowded thoroughfare. There were no arrests.

What Mrs. Carey Says.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Mrs. Carey says that her husband was pointed out to O'Donnell by a strange man on board the Melrose Castle, and from that time O'Donnell never lost sight of Carey. She persists in her belief that O'Donnell is an invincible.

A Malady Among Oysters.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 25.—It is estimated that nearly a million bushels of oysters have been destroyed on the various oyster bars this season by some unaccountable malady. The scarcity of the bivalve is materially felt by packers here.
