The election Ohio takes place next Tuesday.

MADAM CHRISTINE NILSSON has arrived at New York.

According to the statistician of the London Times, the United States is $10,000,000,000 richer than the United Kingdom.

The assessment of the railroads in this State has been largely reduced by the Commissioner. It is about $3,000,000 less than it was last year.

JUDGE HINES, of the Court of Appeals, has affirmed the sentence of William Shackelford, who was sent to the penitentiary for life from Harlan county for killing John G. Howard.

The Louisville Commercial says: All the tobacco factories in the city are running night and day in order to meet the great demand for manufactured tobacco, occasioned by the increase in the price of leaf tobacco and the fear that manufactured tobacco will jump to an extraordinary figure. Within the past two days the price of plug tobacco has increased two cents on the pound.

Prof. PICKETT, Superintendent of Public Instruction, has, through his attorney, made a formal demand on General Hewitt for the school's portion of money (twenty-two cents on each $100 taxes) collected from all railroads and corporations, which heretofore has been turned into the general expenditure fund. It seems it is a doubtful question, and will probably be carried into the courts.

The debt statement shows a decrease in the public debt during September of $14,707,229. The decrease since June 30 is $29,279,671. Cash in the Treasury, $355,450,670; gold certificates, $85,495,250; silver certificates, $94,490,241; certificates of deposit, $11,945,000; refunding certificates, $332,750; legal tenders, $346,681,016; fractional currency, $6,992,906; cash available October 1st, $158,549,006.

A DESPATCH from Lexington to the Courier-Journal says: This afternoon Craft's mother, brother and sister, left here on their return from Frankfort, whither they had gone to plead with the Governor for a reprieve till after the trial of Neal. They would say nothing of the interview with the Governor, nor of the evidence laid before him. But it is understood from a conversation with Clifton Craft, the brother, that it includes the claim that some rich party suspected of the crime has been paying lavishly to secure the conviction of the prisoners; that a girl who knows something of the case, and who mysteriously disappeared from Ashland at the time of Craft's trial, will be produced to prove that she was paid to leave and that a negro witness present at Ellis' lynching will swear he declared at the last the innocence of Neal.

Foreign Gossip.

In Bishopgate, London, is a cellar where no customer can be served with two successive drinks at one sitting. If he wants a second glass he must go through the form of leaving the place and returning. This rule has been enforced for fifty years.

The special trains employed by Her Majesty Victoria during the past nineteen years have cost $45,000. The British public imagined that she paid for these herself, but is shocked to learn that the Government has footed the bill.

In a London court a youth was sentenced to pay a fine of twenty shillings or to labor for ten days for kissing a young woman against her will. The plaintiff's satisfaction over her victory was turned to bitterness when the youth volunteered an apology, saying: "Of course I was under the influence of liquor, or I should not have dreamed of kissing her."

Arthur Orton, the notorious Tichborne claimant, drags out a rather monotonous existence in Portsea convict prison. He is perfectly well, and in good flesh and spirits. Recently, in conversation with prisoners, he declared he would rather remain the balance of his days in prison than be liberated as Arthur Orton. He has earned a first-class certificate by exemplary conduct, and after November he will be entitled to have friends visit him every two months. At present he is employed in the carpenter shop of the prison.

The accumulation of great wealth by no means necessarily implies the capacity to enjoy it—often, indeed, quite the contrary. A story is told of Lord Cavendish, who in 1810 was the largest stockholder in London, and who hated the very name of money. "Upon one occasion his bankers, finding that his account amounted to a deposit of £80,000, called upon him and asked what he wished to do with it. "Anything you choose," was the reply, "but don't bother me about it. I won't be plagued. If it's any trouble I'll take it out of your hands." This is a trait entirely distinct from avarice or miserliness.

ABERDEEN ITEMS.

Mrs. Jones' young lady friends left last Friday for Vancouver.

Mr. Parker Bradford, of "Mason Heights," Ky., was in our town this week.

Mr. Gwin Dennis, a handsome Chicagoan, is visiting his mother, of this town.

Some gentlemen have such an innocent way of telling a falsehood that it is hard to detect the truth.

We were greatly misinformed regarding Rev. W. H. Whitney as being a single gentleman. Reporters are sometimes liable to be misinformed.

No one can surpass Squire Beasley playing on the fife. The rippling notes fall out on the morning breeze with the merry cadence of the blithesome lark.

Mr. L. C. Carr purchased a handsome horse in Ohio last week—a sorrel, with a full cream-colored mane and sweeping tail. It's a perfect jewel of a horse in beauty and style—a non-such.

Squire Beasley had a wedding couple Tuesday morning when attracted quite a crowd of spectators. The bride was lovely and her commanding form was enveloped in an ulster which vied with any jersey.

Several gentlemen went out hunting, as they were told the woods were full of game. On their return Mr. — said to his wife "I thought I couldn't shoot," as he held up a rabbit, "ah, you didn't expect me to bring this home." "Yes I did," she replied, with a merry twinkle in her eye, "why, you precious goose, Miss C. saw you buy it round at the corner grocery."

The grandest wedding of the week was Tuesday afternoon. The Squire assumed more than his usual dignity on this occasion, as the bride, in white silk with brocaded satin front, an illusion veil and orange blossoms crowned her queenly head. On their return the bride clung with all wifely devotion to her Lord and Master. Of course they were the observed of observers.

One evening recently some ladies and gentlemen were discussing the lofty subject of fashions, when one gentleman made the remark, "I couldn't understand why ladies, when half clothed are said to be in full dress." "Well," replied the young lady, "it is just as consistent as when gentlemen are in what they call full dress, as it is the same style as the waiter who attends him."

More Fine Tobacco.

HELENA, Ky., Oct. 3rd, 1883.

Ed. Bulletin: Noticing in the DAILY BULLETIN a statement that Lewis T. King, of Fleming county, had the finest crop of tobacco in that neighborhood, I beg leave to take exception thereto. I am willing to show samples with him or with any other grower in the county, as I claim that my crop lays over them all. J. C. A. KING.

Card.

Expecting to leave to-day for Portsmouth, I desire to say that during my stay in Maysville, I have been courteously received and politely treated. I regret to leave the beautiful and romantic city, and in doing so I bid a kind farewell to all. MADAM FRANCES HALL, Astrologist.

Fashion Notes.

The old fashioned Garibaldi waist is being revived.

Paired bindings of velvet or satin upon the edges of Langtry turbans and the brims of bonnets and large round hats will be in great use this autumn.

The newest tennis hats are made of gray satin open work straw, faced with cardinal, and trimmed with peacock feather ends and sea-gull's wing.

Dark red waistcoats and revers, closely covered with gold braid, are considered very stylish. A silver gray dress embroidered in silver, with white watered silk vest, likewise embroidered, is a unique and delicate looking dress for special occasions, but one that soon bears its date.

Monograms are now embroidered in very heavy work, but are small in size. They are executed in comparatively plain style, without any arabesque or floral device surrounding them. Handkerchiefs in shot muslin are carried with dresses of the same material, and are worked with one of the brightest colors of the muslin. The effect, however, is not good, and colored and figured handkerchiefs, like colored silk underwear, are merely a passing eccentricity of la mode.

The cream spotted muslins, printed with sprays of scarlet or pink geranium blossoms or bunches of small china asters, are much worn, and are usually cut a la Watteau. They are both quaint and pretty looking, and, if properly made, look as if they had just been taken out from between the lavender and pot-pourri of your grandmother's chest. When not in Watteau style these dresses are made short waisted, with loose bodices, and a wide bebe sash tied around the waist.
