O'DONNELL WILL HANG.

FOUND GUILTY AND SENTENCED. How He Received the Blow--Shouting, Shrieking and Cursing in the Court Room--A Disgusting Performance.

LONDON, Dec. 2.--O'Donnell was pronounced guilty of murder about 9 o'clock. The Judge's charge to the jury was in several respects almost equal to a death-sentence against O'Donnell, and the prisoner's counsel seemed to give up hope when they heard it. One of the strongest points in the charge was that, if the two men quarreled and one killed the other, the determination to kill might have been formed after the first excitement of the struggle had subsided, and could be considered premeditation. This was understood to favor the theory of the prosecution that, though Carey may have been goaded into an assault upon O'Donnell, the latter acted in self-defense only in a nominal sense. The refusal of the defense to call upon O'Donnell's alleged wife, his "woman," as the prosecution termed her, to testify was evidently considered by the Court as justifying the inference that she would have been obliged to testify against O'Donnell. A subsequent instruction to the jury, when they returned to ask a question, was more fatal to the prisoner. The jury asked if it was murder for a man to shoot another whom he believed was about to shoot him. The Judge replied that it might or might not be, but in this case no evidence had been produced to show that Carey intended to shoot. General Prior considers that up to this time his client had some chance for acquittal, but that this settled the jury against him. In a few minutes the jury came in again with their verdict of guilty. O'Donnell seemed to be in agony and uttered a cry of despair. Regaining partial control of himself he stood up with a defiant air to receive his sentence. After it had been pronounced he said: "Judge, I want to say something that will forever ring in the hearts of the Irish people." Judge Donnan pretended not to hear the request and asked the clerk what O'Donnell wanted. The clerk said he wanted to speak. The Judge merely said, "Oh, and the court officers grasped O'Donnell and hustled him away. He struggled, fought and yelled all the way out of court and down the stairs striking three cheers for Ireland, "good-bye to the United States," "to hell with the British crown," etc. He was confined in Newgate. An excited crowd around the Court room was dispersed by a false announcement that the prisoner had been acquitted.

QUEER CASE.

A Bad Tangle Among People of Piety. CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 1.--Frederick W. Locke was formerly a prominent citizen of Cleveland. He was a married man, the father of two children. His wife, an estimable lady, was a member of the First "Evangelical or Station" Church, one of the leading churches of this city. Locke was a regular attendant at church. Domestic troubles caused a separation. Locke went to Washington and thence to Boston. His youngest child died, but he refused to return home to the funeral, and later wrote to his wife urging her to procure a divorce, and including her evidence that he was guilty of adultery. A divorce was granted and Locke became engaged to wed a wealthy widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Stone, a relative of the late Amasa Stone, the millionaire suicide. As Mrs. Stone has been for many years a member of the First Presbyterian Church in good standing, there was much scandal. The pastor, Rev. Arthur Mitchell, made every endeavor to show Mrs. Stone the wicked folly of her engagement, but the marriage was secretly consummated. Mrs. Locke number one lives on Logan street, and her friends are inquiring why Mrs. Locke number two is still retained in church membership. It is likely, however, that wife number two will be cited to appear before the church courts and that the case will be vigorously prosecuted.

Shot in the Month.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Dec. 2.--J. H. Hunt's home on Cheyenne street, near Fifth, was the scene of a shooting Friday. At 8 o'clock a man named Lewis went to the house, and taking up an infant child began to play with it, whereat Hunt objected, saying Lewis was taking too much liberty. Mrs. Hunt, the mother, snatched the child out of Lewis' hands, and Hunt pulled a revolver and shot Lewis in the mouth about the time the child fell his arms. The ball, which was from a .48-caliber, struck the tongue, and ranging downward lodged in the throat, making an ugly wound. Hunt went to police headquarters and gave himself up. Lewis will probably die.

His Royalty Nibbs.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 2.--The first steam fire engine ever constructed in this city, the old "Philadelphia," has been shipped to Boston by the Insurance Patrol. It was placed in evidence by the city of Boston in a suit brought by John Knibbs, who claims royalty for the use of what is said to be a patented appliance on steam fire engines. A number of engineers and firemen who are to be used as witnesses accompanied the steamer to Boston.

Vignaux Wins the Match.

PARIS, Dec. 1.--The billiard match for the championship of the world between Jacob Schaefer and Maurice Vignaux was concluded last night. Vignaux winning by a score of 3,000 to 2,800. Vignaux needed but 600 points to win, which he made by play including runs of 110, 80, 78, 62, and 43. Schaefer, by remarkably brilliant play, secured 93 of the 1,001 points which stood between him and victory. His highest runs were 104, 150, 81, 70 and 72.

A Woman Wants to Command a Vessel.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.--A female in New Orleans has applied to the Treasury Department for a license to be master of a vessel. Having passed a satisfactory examination, the question to be decided is whether or not, under the law, a female can fill the position of master. To determine the matter Secretary Folger referred the case to Solicitor Raynor.

Mrs. William Ball, of Clinton, Ill., recently gave birth to twins, each possessing six well-developed fingers on each hand. They have been the subject of much curiosity and comment, and have been seen by numerous visitors. They are apparently in a healthy condition.

INTERESTING REVELATIONS.

The Wholesale Swindling of Messrs. Flemming and Loring. CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 2.--Interesting revelations were made Saturday by Charles E. Egan, the former book-keeper of Flemming & Merriam in the trial of Flemming and Loring, charged with swindling. He testified that he handled checks for $100,000 in connection with the "Fund W." Last week he had written from Detroit to D. A. Loring, demanding $10,000 salary for his services as book-keeper of the Public Grain and Stock Exchange. Papers were produced showing the fictitious trades of Flemming and Merriam with the Public and Metropolitan Exchanges. Their actual trades amounted to less than $1,500. Wm. Miller testified that he was in the grain and commission business with Frank L. Loring in 1882. Flemming at that time had a small grocery. "Fund W" had run four months and failed January 1, 1883, a total loss to subscribers. "W" was commenced about the same time and failed about April 1, when "W" was commenced. Before the collapse of "Fund W" he received $3,000 from Loring to keep his mouth shut. Last December Loring told him "Fund W" would fail about May 1, 1883, and it did so. Their situation was exceedingly unpleasant, as numerous subscribers were demanding a showing for their money. The trial was resumed this morning.

BEECHER'S REPLY.

A Characteristic Answer to the Press Club Invitation. NEW YORK, Dec. 2.--The following is Henry Ward Beecher's reply to Colonel Mettriam's invitation to attend the Press Club dinner at Delmonico's. It has not before been published. "MY DEAR SIR: It is a cruel thing to ask one to sit at a dinner which he can not eat, at an hour quite at variance with his regular habits, who never uses wine 'tip public,' and sees eating and drinking going on around him, merely to be put alone in a room of soot and silence, and who can't talk-- worse yet, alongside of a fellow who talks in such a garrulous strain that you wish he was dumb--or yourself deaf, to hear the funny things you were to have said uttered by others before your turn comes, and worse than all, to become so stupefied with heat, tobacco smoke, and general tedium that one's own speech turns out to be stiff and dull. To be invited to all this as a compliment to you is almost as bad as to be invited to take your place on a dissecting table by an enterprising corps of young doctors. Nevertheless somebody must suffer, and why not I, so I will try to be present. HENRY WARD BEECHER.

ATTEMPTED ABDUCTION.

The Bold Crime of a Canadian Lover. OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 2.--Great excitement is caused in the village of Odessa by the attempted abduction of a young daughter of Rev. T. N. MacDonald, of the Methodist Church, by a young man named Samuel Hill. Miss MacDonald was at church, but was sent by the chorister to obtain a book from the adjoining parsonage. As she was returning Hill stopped her, and by threats of violence, caused her to accompany him a short distance up the road, where he had a buggy waiting to drive her off. He left her a moment to get the horse and she ran home and gave an alarm. The service was broken off and the young man was followed and arrested by the indignant father and five parishioners. A previous intimacy had sprung up between the parties when Hill was taking music lessons from Miss MacDonald. Her parents had forbidden him to continue his visits, and he obtained a book from the chorister to get a marriage license, and also on the charge of abduction.

AN IRISH SYMPATHIZER.

Why McGee Will Be Removed from the Canadian Privy Council. OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 2.--A strong feeling has been aroused here against J. J. McGee, Clerk of the Privy Council, one of the most confidential positions in the gift of the Government, owing to his pronounced views in sympathy with Ireland. McGee is a brother of the late Dan O'Arcy McGee, assassinated here in 1868 while entering his boarding house, and for which a tailor, named Whelan, was hanged. As Clerk of the Privy Council McGee is in full confidence of the Government, knows all Cabinet secrets, and should, therefore, in no way be a partisan of any political party, creed or nationality. He has recently been appointed Deputy Governor General, for signing warrants, in addition to his other duties. Lord Lansdowne, in making the appointment, no doubt had in view the conciliation of the strong Irish element in Canada. It is not improbable that McGee will be removed from the position he now holds in the Privy Council, to quiet the feeling of hostility he has raised against himself.

Delegation of French Workmen.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.--The steamer St. Germaine, from Havre, brought to this city fourteen delegates from various trades unions of Paris, who have come to study American institutions and note the condition of organized labor here. In the evening the visitors attended a reception given by the United Workingmen's Societies, at which speeches were made in English, French and German. Next Monday they will go to Boston to visit the International Exhibition, after which they will inspect the principal manufacturing centers, returning to this city about the 19th inst.

That Terrible Oceans Disaster.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.--Captain Sisson, of the ship Thors Dana, which was run into by the French brig Rocaby, in mid-ocean on the 30th ult., reports that the Rocaby, which sank immediately after the collision, had on board 110 men, of whom only twenty-one were rescued by the Dana, eighty-nine of them being drowned. They were all fishermen returning home to France from the Newfoundland banks. Most of them were asleep in their bunks and probably died without being awakened.

Mysterious Case of Either Suicide or Murder.

HARMON, O., Dec. 1.--A bloody knife and the hat and coat of Andrew Stags were found yesterday near a pool of blood in a cornfield by the river. Stage himself has disappeared. A track of blood to the edge of the water leads to the supposition that he either stabbed himself, and then crawled to the river, or was murdered and dragged thither. So far, search for his body has been unavailing.

Clue to a Murder Mystery.

JOLIET, Ill., Dec. 1.--The mystery surrounding the death of John Hanlan, who was found in the river three months ago, having been killed with a club, was partly solved yesterday by finding his gold watch among the plunder of a gang of burglars, which has been broken up by the arrest of its leading members. John Hungerford, the suspected murderer, has a daughter who was Hanlan's mistress.

Nearly $30,000 for Farnell.

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 1.--Rev. Thos. J. Conley, President of the Farnell Testimonial Fund of America, has closed his account and cabled to Dublin that the steamer Britannic, from New York to-day, would carry a draft for $23,000 eight shillings and eight pence, or $17,813.88, the total amount received here.

ROBERT BROWN.

ROCHESTER, Pa., Dec. 1.--At about 6 o'clock last evening, Brown and Maxwell's flint glass works at this place were burned. The loss will reach $30,000, fully covered by insurance. The mill has not been in operation for three months. The cause of the fire is unknown.

VERY DISTRESSING CASE.

SAD INSANITY OF A CHICAGO LADY. Mrs. Nixon Becomes Insane Because of Her Husband's Crime--Heart-Rending Scene in Court--The Insane Dude.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 1.--The saddest case presented in the Insane Court was that of Mrs. Leonard Nixon. It took the combined strength of several bailiffs to get her into the room at first. Her husband, William A. Nixon, was lately arrested for manufacturing a fraudulent patent medicine, and now lies in the county jail awaiting the action of the Grand Jury. His arrest so preyed on his wife's mind that it has driven her crazy. She had an idea that, atone for her husband's crime, she would have to sacrifice their little girl, Ethel Nixon testified that she knew nothing of her insanity until Friday morning. When she was taken out of court and had to separate from her husband, a heart-rending scene ensued. Mrs. Nixon screamed for her little girl and had to be taken away by force.

William Smith, in the hotel, restaurant and livery business, at 41 East Kinzie street, presented the strangest and most ludicrous appearance of any of the crazy people. As he sat in court he daintily tapped the floor with his foot and a light cane. His dress was a brilliant peacock green coat and vest of the latest cut, dark knickerbockers with light blue bow attached, black yarn stockings, and pointed shoes with silver buckles. Mr. Smith seemed to rather enjoy the situation, and tittered audibly at some of the testimony. He thinks he is next to God, and his insanity has been of seven weeks' duration. It was caused by being struck in the head by a stone some years ago, an abscess subsequently forming on the brain. He was sent to Jefferson.

NEW RULES.

The Senate Committee Makes a Few Changes and Variations. WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.--The Senate Committee on Rules finally adopted the new rules recently agreed upon by the sub-committee. No material changes were made, excepting such as simplify in matters of form and phraseology. A code of joint rules was agreed upon to be submitted to the Senate, and, if adopted by that body, to be submitted to the House for its approval. Among the more important of these proposed joint rules is one intended to prevent general legislation on appropriation bills. Another defines the duties and limits the powers of conference committees. It provides that they shall not be permitted to amend the text of any bill, only upon the subject or thing upon which there is a disagreement between the two Houses. Another joint rule adopted by the committee provides that, during the last days of a session, in each house, business from the other house shall have precedence. They also propose a joint rule prohibiting the sale of liquor of any kind in the Capitol building or on the Capitol grounds.

More Terrible Disasters and Suffering on the Lake.

TORONTO, Can., Dec. 1.--On Friday last the tug Gladiator left Penetanguishen with four barges in tow, the Hamilton J. Mills, Walter A. Sherman, S. Hungerford, and Sweepstakes. The tug's engine became disabled in the storm and the tug was forced to abandon the barges on Georgian Bay, Lake Huron. The Hungerford and Sweepstakes have not been heard of since. It was doubtless lost with all on board. The Mills sprung a leak and became waterlogged. Her crew of seven persons, including Kate Bennett, the cook, were almost dead from exposure and hunger before rescued by the life saving crew at Sturgeon Point.

The Month's Work in the Oil Fields.

OIL CITY, Pa., Dec. 1.--It is customary to read in the Oil Exchange on the last day of the month a summary of the operations in the oil field, furnished by the Daily Derrick. This report was not ready at the usual time yesterday, and the greatest uneasiness prevailed among the brokers. There was delay in getting the figures from some of the districts and the report was not read at all. An approximation shows: New rigs, 183; wells drilled, 218; a total decrease of eighty-seven wells. Wells completed, 329, an increase of eight. The new production is about 44,000 barrels.

Enos Honorably Discharged.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.--Thomas W. Enos, who was arrested last week by Inspector Byrnes on suspicion of being implicated with Wm. B. Carroll, the dishonest coupon clerk of the Comptroller's office, was examined Friday afternoon before Recorder Smythe in the Court of General Sessions. After a number of witnesses had testified, Recorder Smythe said there was not sufficient evidence to implicate the accused with the frauds, and he honorably discharged him.

Herr Lasker in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 1.--Herr Lasker, the great German Liberal, arrived here Friday morning and was met at the depot by a committee of prominent citizens and escorted to the St. Nicholas Hotel. In the afternoon he was given a drive through the city. Herr Lasker has concluded to remain over here until Monday morning. Saturday night he will address the German citizens at Turner Hall. Sunday night he will be tendered a banquet.

Bankers and Merchants Telegraph Company.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 1.--J. H. Miller, of this city, and John H. Borland, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., have secured the contract for the construction of the line of the Bankers and Merchants Telegraph Company between this city, Columbus, Cincinnati, Dayton, Indianapolis, Springfield, and St. Louis, and will start work at once, material being on hand.

Bloody Affray.

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 2.--A Homosillo special says: At Spicer's Mills, three Cornish miners, led by a Cornish man named Crocker, made an assault on Hanlon, an engineer, and stabbed him six times. Hanlon got a shot-gun and killed Crocker instantly. The other Cornishmen were arrested and put in jail at Ures. Hanlon will die.

WORKING FOR A WIFE.

A North Carolina Jacob Who Will Take His Love Into Court. SALEM, N. C., Dec. 1.--James Buck, an old white man living near Bodkin, owned a small farm, upon which he and his only daughter lived. She was aged twenty-two and plain. Buck saw the chance of making a profitable crop of tobacco if he could get someone to assist him and his daughter in the field, but was so poor that his poverty prevented his securing labor. Richard Turney, a young man, moved in the neighborhood about fourteen months ago. He became enamored of Buck's daughter, and the father determined to turn the affection to account.

No he agreed if the young man could assist him on the farm for one year he would give him a double-barreled shotgun and his daughter, Turney agreeing. The term of service expired to-day, and Turney asked fulfillment of the contract. Buck gave him the shot gun, and then, calling the daughter in, asked her to agree to become Turney's wife. She refused to do so, urging that she had already given her heart to another, to whom she was to be married to-night. Turney went off in a terrible rage, and threatens to sue the old man for $5,000 for breach of contract and get an injunction restraining the girl from marrying his rival.

COURT ROOM RIOT.

The Attorney General and District Attorney Whittle Each Other. PRESCOTT, Arizona, Dec. 2.--Yesterday during the trial in which C. W. Beach and P. McAiter were principals, the lie passed between the counsel, Attorney General Church and District Attorney Charles Rusch, when Rusch struck Church and a general fight ensued. Beach was stabbed in the neck by McAiter, who was then shot in the side by Beach. In flourishing his dirk-knife McAiter struck an old citizen named James Moore, cutting a terrible gash in his arm and severing an artery. The physicians say that McAiter and Moore are mortally wounded. It is thought that Beach will recover. Beach was until recently the editor and proprietor of the Arizona Miner. At the time of the fight no bailiffs were in the court room, and the few present could not quell the row.

The French-Chinese Imbroglio.

PARIS, Dec. 2.--The Tonquin Credit Commission made its long expected report to the Chamber of Deputies. It favors the grant of 9,000,000 francs on the plea that the honor and prestige of France must be maintained in Annam whether war with China ensues or not, but the Commission apparently regard war as inevitable. As soon as the report was read a score of the radical members sprang to their feet and demanded the explanation which M. Ferry had promised of the Government's policy in Tonquin. The Government evaded an immediate discussion of their embarrassing position by moving an adjournment of debate until Friday, when they promise to go over the whole matter.

Brother Jasper in Trouble.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 2.--Rev. John Jasper, the colored preacher who gained notoriety as author of the theory that "the sun do move," is in trouble. Some ministers and others of his race have been jealous of his fame. This feeling has finally culminated in a rupture in his congregation. At a council of ministers and others from various Baptist churches in this vicinity, it was decided to withdraw the hand of fellowship from Jasper, the reason being that Jasper and his church had refused to recognize other colored Baptist churches. This action causes much distress in colored circles. Jasper will preach his sun sermon Sunday, and allude to the step taken by the council.

Michael Priest Run Out of Town.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 2.--The recent ex-priest, Anton Pufalski, charged with attempted blackmail, and the woman who has been his partner in crime, fled from this city Saturday night. The original fall from grace of Father Pufalski and his alliance with the woman caused a great sensation in colored circles. Jasper will preach his sun sermon Sunday, and allude to the step taken by the council.

Sherman's Would-Be Son-in-Law.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.--Buckland, the crank who wanted to marry General Sherman's daughter, is still confined in the calaboose at the Four Courts. Dr. Dorsett, of the Health Department, examined him and pronounced him insane. It is probable the authorities will return Buckland to his home, Mattoon, Illinois, where he will be cared for by friends. He talks incessantly and has been making it lively for the inmates of the calaboose. The health officials have jurisdiction of the case, and the police are awaiting final instructions.

Mr. Carlisle Elected Speaker.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.--In the Democratic caucus Saturday night Mr. Morrison, of Illinois, nominated Mr. Carlisle, Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania, nominated Mr. Randall, and Mr. Dorkheimer, of New York, then nominated Mr. Cox. The vote was taken, which resulted in the nomination of Mr. Carlisle on the first ballot by a vote of 194. Mr. Randall received fifty-two votes and Mr. Cox received thirty-two votes.

A Panic at Kharطوم.

PARIS, Dec. 1.--The Temps has dispatches announcing that a panic prevails at Kharطوم, owing to the imminence of an attack by El Mahdi's troops. The Temps also states that, owing to England's rejection of Turkey's proposal to send Turkish troops to the Sudan, Turkey has appealed to the Powers for the desired permission.

Brisk Fire in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 1.--A fire broke out about 8 o'clock last evening in the extensive clothing store of J. M. Gusk & Co., on Market street, from some cause unknown, and with difficulty extinguished. The damage to building and stock by fire and water is estimated at from $10,000 to $15,000.

Lillian Spencer Better.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 2.--Miss Lillian Spencer, the actress, who has been confined in the Huron Street Hospital with a severe attack of typhoid fever, has been pronounced out of danger and will soon be able to leave the hospital. She was taken ill one day at Springfield, Ill., and was immediately removed to this city.

Terrible Death of a Servant Girl.

DAWSON, Pa., Dec. 1.--Mary Ambrose, a domestic in the house of Wm. McGill, upset a kerosene lamp Friday morning, and it exploded, setting fire to her clothes. The flesh of the unfortunate girl was literally roasted from head to foot. She lingered in great agony until evening, when she died.
