Captain Black Goes to New York to Consult General Pryor as to the Best Methods to be Pursued—An Interview in which he Refuses to State his Program.

CAPT. BLACK.

With the captain came Mrs. Black, who, by the way, has played no negative part in the defense of the Anarchists.

"The town is torn by a tornado of conflicting passions—hate, pity, rage, sorrow—each with tense violence struggling for mastery."

"God knows where it will end," she continued in a voice tremulous with emotion, with every line of her face marking the earnestness of her feelings.

"We are dealing with men made desperate by weight of woe. They see their friends on the brink of an abyss over which wild, unreasoning passion works to hurl them disgraceful death."

"What are the grounds," the lawyer was asked, "on which you will base your motion for writ of error?"

He stated, though, that he had been scrupulously careful to note during the trial every minute instance in which the rights of individuals as granted by the constitution were at all disregarded.

"Certainly. Because the conviction was based on an alleged conspiracy. If one was wrongfully convicted, all suffered from the injunction."

Another point which he hinted might be used in the argument for a new trial was that the jury that convicted the Anarchists was not drawn impartially from all ranks in the community.

Capt. Black evinced considerable feeling when questioned as to the right of the police to break up a meeting.

Gen. Pryor will meet Capt. Black, and the two lawyers will decide on their course of procedure.

Capt. Black declined to say whether he had secured other counsel to assist in the case.

Capt. Black was at the office of Gen. Roger Pryor at 11 o'clock this morning to present the case of the condemned Anarchists to the lawyer.

convicted him of the justness of our side." General Pryor said: "I am convinced that the points taken by Captain Black are excellent and that an application for a writ of error will be granted."

DEADLY DYNAMITE GUN. SECRETARY WHITNEY EXPRESSES HIS OPINION OF IT.

He is Enthusiastic in his Praise of it as a Coast Defender—No Fears at the Treasury Department of a Money Panic. Death of General Ricketts—Notes.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Secretary Whitney being asked this morning by a United Press representative as to the dynamite gun experiment in New York bay Tuesday last, said: "The experiment was most successful."

"The resistance of that target," said the secretary, "was evidently no measure of the power of the projectile. It demonstrated this—that they can lodge dynamite in destructive quantities a mile and a half off with considerable accuracy, and it is a matter of detail merely to increase the range of the gun and the quantity of the explosive, so as to render it capable of destroying the strongest iron clads."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The news from New York was more reassuring yesterday afternoon, and Acting Secretary Thompson said he thought the danger of a panic had been averted for the present.
