BOSTON Transcript: "In his short reign, Lieutenant Governor Worthington, of Kentucky, pardoned one hundred men, including persons convicted of murder and other high crimes. But who shall pardon Lieutenant Governor Worthington?"

SENATOR WHITE, of California, remarked a few days ago: "When this trust protecting bill is passed all the trusts in the country ought to give a receipt in full to the Chairman of the National Republican Committee." And then he looked hard at Senator Hanna, and they say the latter's face grew very red. No wonder.

THE Courier-Journal, referring to the "National" Democratic convention, exclaims:

"These men do not come together in search of office. They are not actuated by any sordid or selfish motive."

But nearly every mother's son of 'em is an ex-office-holder, and there are very few on the list who wouldn't jump at a nice fat office again, if it were held out to them.

A NEW YORK STORY

That Nine Big Railroads Are to be Operated by Electricity—The C. and O. Included.

[Equiter.]

Whoever originated the New York story that J. P. Morgan & Co. would in the near future equip nine of the principal railroads in the country with a third rail and operate them by electricity as an economical measure must have taken several draws at the pipe.

As the story goes the roads to be equipped and operated by electricity are the Big Four, Chesapeake and Ohio, New York Central, Erie, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Southern Railway and a couple of other roads said to be controlled by the New York brokers. The cost of making the change to electricity is to be but the insignificant sum of $545,000,000.

Electricity will be the motive power that will replace steam on the railroads some day, but it will have to be a good deal cheaper than at present before it will displace the present iron horse.

On account of the numerous plants that would be required under the present electric system for operating a road of any length steam is still much cheaper than electricity. For short runs and for operating suburban trains at frequent intervals electricity is probably cheaper than steam, but not for long runs.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whisky nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need. Price fifty cents per bottle at J. James Wood's drug store.

ANOTHER RIP SNORTER

From the Governor's Organ—This Time It is After the State Board of Health.

[Frankfort Capital.]

"And Asa in the thirty and ninth year of his reign was diseased in his feet; yet in his disease he sought not to the Lord, but to his physicians. And Asa slept with his fathers."

Such is the sadly sarcastic story told in the Bible of one of the Kings of Israel, and it is the history of the world that these medicine men from those that exorcise devils in Africa's jungles to those who monkeyed with poor Garfield until he to sleep with his fathers from a wound that any army surgeon would have cured in a common soldier—all through the sorrowing tale of humanity in sacred and profane history the regularly recognized doctors have humbugged the sons and daughters of Adam, despoiled them of their substance, and at last, sent them to untimely graves.

Here was poor Asa, with something the matter with his feet, probably corns or gout, and the doctors didn't do a thing to him, but put him to sleep with his fathers. It is perhaps necessary for people to conform to custom and give the doctors a chance, but the experience of Asa should teach men always to seek help from the Lord when the doctors do get hold of them.

The Word of God fairly bristles with denunciation of the regular physicians, the ones who are regularly licensed. In the thirteenth chapter of Job, that great example of patience is portrayed as having, among his other afflictions, fallen into the hands of the physicians, but even the grace of God that enabled Job to stand everything else, failed him in this emergency, and he broke out with this roast of the profession:

Job XIII, 4, "But ye are forgers of lies, ye are all physicians of no value."

The doctors were among those who crucified the Saviour for healing the sick, restoring sight to the blind and making the lame to walk, all in an irregular way and without joining the regular profession. But that this blind adherence to the prejudices of the dark ages is hardly compatible with the enlightenment of the closing moments of the nineteenth century.

The State Board of Health is the worst specimen of cussedness and cold pressed nerve that has appeared since the Darien company was organized in Edinburgh. Here are lot of Kentucky doctors, Hunter and Deboe were among them, most of whom, at the best, have nothing more to justify their pretensions to skill, than their experience of two years at some Louisville medical college; and these physicians say that other doctors shall not be allowed to practice in Kentucky because they are "quacks." And a quack is a doctor who pays for his advertising. A regular doctor does his advertising free of charge, through the society columns, or the base ball columns. When some player is taken sick, forty doctors at once bolt into the field and then proudly go to the reporter's stand to get themselves written up. But the doctor who pays is a quack.

The doctors who are in control of the present skin game in Kentucky would like to maintain a monopoly and so by a trick of law and an act of some fool Legislature they have got it fixed so that the State Board of Health, that never suggested an idea or performed a single public service, can go right along persecuting the doctors who want to furnish low priced treatment for special diseases.

Professors in the medical schools in Louisville are not necessarily competent doctors; not by any means. Some of them are good physicians and honest men while some are humbugs and scoundrels. Some of them make blunders and kill people and the others cover up the crime. Some of them make it a rule never to let a patient get out of their hands as long as they can hold on. They keep coming until the patient is well and out in the city attending to business, and in this way these regular physicians run up big bills. * * * That there are good, capable, conscientious doctors is a fact, but the State Board of Health provides no means by which there is any selection between the good and bad, but only a means of holding up the price, a doctors' trust, a skin game that stands in with the police power of the State. The very best thing that could be done would be to turn the doctors loose, and let the "regulars" and the "irregulars" fight it out. Then when somebody was killed by some blunder or experiment, there would be at least a chance to have the crime exposed. And abolish the State Board of Health.

KENTUCKY'S ANCIENT CLAIM

To Legal Jurisdiction Over the Ohio River Sustained.

Kentucky's ancient claim to legal jurisdiction over the Ohio river to low water mark on the Ohio and Indiana shores was recognized a few days ago by United States Commissioner Hooper in a case that was brought before him at Cincinnati.

It was that of Wm. Hall, who is accused of shooting John Lewis in an affray on the steamer Telegraph while the boat was enroute to Cincinnati.

Hall was arrested and turned over to the police of that city. The United States Marshal felt that the shooting was an offense under the admiralty statutes of the United States, and he had it brought to the attention of Commissioner Hooper, before whom Hall was brought.

The Commissioner, after hearing the evidence, decided that the affair, having occurred on the river, was properly within the jurisdiction of the State of Kentucky, and he remanded Hall back to the custody of the police.

The Kentucky authorities were advised of the standing of the case.

THE GOLDITES.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor Hindman Nominated For Clerk of the Court of Appeals.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor Hindman, of Adair County, was nominated by the "National" Democratic convention at Louisville for Clerk of the Court of Appeals. The nomination was made by acclamation. Speeches were made by ex-Secretary Carlisle, Colonel Henry Watterson, James C. Simms, Senator Lindsay and other less prominent delegates.

Henry Watterson and W. C. P. Breckinridge prepared the resolutions, which declared for gold, denounced mobs, indorsed Cleveland's administration and declared for a tariff for revenue only.

Fusion with the Republicans was voted down.

Mr. L. Ed. Pearce, formerly of this city, was permanent Secretary of the convention. Mr. Charles D. Pearce, of this city, was the Ninth district's representative on the Committee on Organization.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida street, San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at J. James Wood's Drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.

VOTES

Are What Hon. Bill Thorne is Looking For.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 14.—Hon. A. J. Carroll, Chairman of to-day's convention, met Hon. Bill Thorne, of Henry County, on the street yesterday. Col. Thorne is a Democrat and a prospective candidate for Lieutenant Governor. "Bill," said Mr. Carroll, "this convention is going to be the greatest gathering of brainy men that ever happened in Kentucky. You'd better join our party."

"Well, I'll tell you, Tony," said Hon. Bill, "if I was looking for brains I'd join you, but I'm lookin' for votes, and I'll stay with the Democrats."

Tobacco in Austria.

Austria, with a total population of about 43,500,000, consumed in 1896 1,244,000,000 cigars and 1,995,000,000 cigarettes, which is about thirty-eight cigars and forty-eight cigarettes to every man, woman and child in Europe per year. Since the manufacture of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco is a monopoly of the Austrian government the entire income of this industry reverts to public uses. The total receipts for the year amounted to more than 93,000,000 florins ($37,000,000).
