THE EVENING BULLETIN

NUMBER 136.
MAYSVILLE, KY., SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1904.

THE RUSSIAN NOTE

The British Paper's Comment on It Shows the Ordeal of Anti-Russian Bias.

INTENDED FOR RICE COMMERCE

The Note is Considered as Delimiting All of an Early Termination of the War.

No Further News of Any Kind Has Been Received From the Reorted Russian Reverses on the Open Sea.

Louisville, April 30.—The Daily papers, commenting upon Russia's regulation affecting the importation of anti-Russia偏 and control Russian officials as an early term in the war, that American news stories would be interpreted except to enhance the pretensions of the nation as an impartial arbiter of the war. According to the Daily Telegraph, the note is considered as delimiting all of the war. The London Daily News says that the note would be regarded worthy of a temporary truce.

No further news of any kind has been received from the reported Russian reverses on the open sea.

Louisville, April 30.—The Daily papers, commenting upon Russian regulations affecting the importation of anti-Russian news stories in the war, consider the American news stories would be treated except to enhance the pretensions of the nation as an impartial arbiter of the war. According to the Daily Telegraph, the note is considered as delimiting all of the war. The London Daily News says that the note would be regarded worthy of a temporary truce.

No further news of any kind has been received from the reported Russian reverses on the open sea.

Louisville, April 30.—The Daily papers, commenting upon Russia's regulations affecting the importation of anti-Russian news stories in the war, consider the American news stories would be treated except to enhance the pretensions of the nation as an impartial arbiter of the war. According to the Daily Telegraph, the note is considered as delimiting all of the war. The London Daily News says that the note would be regarded worthy of a temporary truce.

No further news of any kind has been received from the reported Russian reverses on the open sea.

Louisville, April 30.—The Daily papers, commenting upon Russia's regulations affecting the importation of anti-Russian news stories in the war, consider the American news stories would be treated except to enhance the pretensions of the nation as an impartial arbiter of the war. According to the Daily Telegraph, the note is considered as delimiting all of the war. The London Daily News says that the note would be regarded worthy of a temporary truce.

No further news of any kind has been received from the reported Russian reverses on the open sea.

Louisville, April 30.—The Daily papers, commenting upon Russia's regulations affecting the importation of anti-Russian news stories in the war, consider the American news stories would be treated except to enhance the pretensions of the nation as an impartial arbiter of the war. According to the Daily Telegraph, the note is considered as delimiting all of the war. The London Daily News says that the note would be regarded worthy of a temporary truce.

No further news of any kind has been received from the reported Russian reverses on the open sea.

Louisville, April 30.—The Daily papers, commenting upon Russia's regulations affecting the importation of anti-Russian news stories in the war, consider the American news stories would be treated except to enhance the pretensions of the nation as an impartial arbiter of the war. According to the Daily Telegraph, the note is considered as delimiting all of the war. The London Daily News says that the note would be regarded worthy of a temporary truce.

No further news of any kind has been received from the reported Russian reverses on the open sea.

Louisville, April 30.—The Daily papers, commenting upon Russia's regulations affecting the importation of anti-Russian news stories in the war, consider the American news stories would be treated except to enhance the pretensions of the nation as an impartial arbiter of the war. According to the Daily Telegraph, the note is considered as delimiting all of the war. The London Daily News says that the note would be regarded worthy of a temporary truce.

No further news of any kind has been received from the reported Russian reverses on the open sea.