ROTES MAY HAVE MORE THAN ONE CLUB IN CITIES

Whether or not there shall be more than one Rotary club in each city is one of the vital questions to be decided by International Rotary at its 13th annual convention in Los Angeles on June 5-10.

The adoption of a provision in a new constitution which will permit the establishment of more than one Rotary club in larger centers is one of the radical departures in Rotary organization that is bringing a very sharp division of opinion among the delegates coming to the convention.

Under present authority more than one club is permitted in cities of more than one million inhabitants where there are distinct boroughs or business centers. The new constitution, which is to be discussed at the present convention, contains this provision. Notice has been given that an amendment will be proposed that will eliminate the population factor and make it discretionary with the international board of directors.

Delegates already arriving in Los Angeles seem much concerned about this provision and there has been much advance discussion of it. The members of the governing body of the organization are not discussing the question.

INTERNATIONAL ROTARY MEET IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 8. — "The only organization in the world without an inactive membership" — is the way George C. Diehl of Buffalo, New York, described International Rotary during the course of a report on attendance to the thirteenth annual convention of the organization in session here today.

The unique features of Rotary membership were emphasized by this speaker in calling attention to the manner in which the organization has progressed in seventeen years from a single club in Chicago to more than a thousand clubs in 25 countries with an aggregate of something like 80,000 members.

Each Rotary club, and each of the thousand odd clubs spent today in going over these facts as a part of their world-wide anniversary observance, has one inviolate rule: This is the rule in regard to attendance. Practically every club has a clause in its constitution whereby a member is automatically dropped from membership if he misses four meetings in succession. To this rule is attributed one of the reasons for the remarkable efficiency of Rotary.

AMERICAN LEGION

July 1 has been designated by National Commander MacNider as "membership day." To carry on the Legion's comprehensive program for the relief of service-men during the summer, Commander MacNider has urged a united front and an all-inclusive membership. By midnight of July 1 the Legion chief has requested each post shall have increased its membership by at least 25 per cent.

The absence of the old pre-Volstead corkscrew is not noted in Frisco. Jimmie Flexner of San Francisco couldn't find one of them when he wanted to open a bottle. He took a rifle and at a distance of 1,000 feet, shot out the cork in one try. He now challenges the Pacific coast.

The war department has just written former Sergeant Jesse Kanady, Falls City, Neb., that he owes his uncle two dollars. The W. D. alleges that somebody overpaid Kanaday $2 on some payday some time in the army. In appealing to the Legion for advice the sergeant declares his usual good memory fails him as he cannot recall ever having been overpaid while in the army.

All nuts are not to be fostered, but in order that the pecan nut may continue to be one of Texas' foremost products, the Legion of the state has pledged itself to plant groves of nut trees, see that they are properly transplanted and care for them when they are developed.

Despite the fact that New Orleans has been chosen as its 1922 convention city, the Legion has received a $200,000 offer from Kansas City, Mo., which would be host to the ex-soldiers this year as it was in 1921. The offer followed questions by the New Orleans chamber of commerce, inquiring of Kansas City if the service men's gathering was a commercial asset.

"That new show of mine is going to be a sure-fire hit," announced the producer gleefully. "I've got a swell idea for costuming the chorus." "Uh-huh!" grunted the critic. "That's about all most of 'em wear nowadays."

Fifteen ex-soldiers have formed a post of the Legion exactly on a spot in Harpoot, Asia Minor, they say, where Adam and Eve first kept house. The unit is called the Garden of Eden post.

Just as the guards were leading his client away, the lawyer stopped and shook hands with the recent defendant.

"I'm sorry I couldn't do more for you, old man," he apologized. "Don't mention it, sir," replied the prisoner, politely. "Ain't five years enough?"

DANCING BIRD TRIO

A species of the "lap-wing" found in Argentine have a dance in which the birds always take part. It is indulged in every day at intervals all the year round. So fond of it are they that before and during the breeding season, when the birds are distributed in pairs all over the plains, one bird may frequently leave his mate at home and fly away to visit another pair in the neighborhood. Those two, receive him with manifest pleasure and, running to him, place themselves behind him, where they stand abreast with their plumage puffed out. Then with the pair uttering loud, rythmical drumming notes the leader utters loud single measured notes they begin a rapid march, stepping in time to the music. When the march is ended the leader usually lifts his wings and holds them erect, still emitting loud notes, and the two birds behind, still standing abreast with slightly opening wings and puffed-out feathers, bow their heads until the tips of their beaks touch the ground and at the same time sink their voices until the drumming sound dies to whisper. The performance is then over.

"TIS A MAD WORLD, MY MASTERS"

A Newark, N. J., woman has found a new reason for getting a divorce. She got it, which should make all devotees of the roal game more careful. Her testimony was to the effect that hubby played so much golf, so often, that he hadn't time to be a husband and provider. It's an old saying of golfers, if business interferes wit hgfolf, give up business. This particular golfer found his wife interfered with is game, and so she got rid of him!

But this was nothing to the sad case of a Des Moines, Iowa, lady who had a "husband" who proved to be a woman, yet one so overbearing and strong that she held her "wife" in terror for a year and a half before the poor, deluded lady caused her "husband" to be arrested!

The wife should have gone to Vassar. Statistics from the great women's college show that Vassarites, during the last ten years, are an inch and a half taller, two inches larger around, and with bigger hands and feet, all due to physical culture.

A Charlestown, W. Va., boy, out riding in an automobile, was fired upon by an unknown assailant. Rushed to a hospital, he was X-rayed and his heart was found to be upon the right (which is the wrong) side of his body! Had his heart been where hearts are supposed to be, in the right place on the left side, he would have been instantly killed.

CHAS. MORROW GETS PENSION THROUGH SENATOR CAMERON

Charles H. Morrow, long resident of Flagstaff, who since last fall has been in the soldiers' home at Sawtelle, California, last week wrote Lewis Benedict, of Flagstaff, enclosing a letter he had just received from U. S. Senator Ralph H. Cameron. The latter letter conveys the good news that the senator has succeeded in getting a pension for the old veteran, $12 a month from May 3, 1921; $18 a month from Feb. 25, 1922; $25 from Feb. 25, 1926, and $30 from Feb. 25, 1928. Mr. Morrow is much elated and is deeply grateful to Senator Cameron for the active interest he has taken to secure the pension which comes in very handy for use by a man who is justly entitled to it. Mr. Morrow writes that Bob Ricketts, also at the soldiers' home, joins him in sending best regards to all the old friends in Flagstaff.

FLIES HAD CHOKED LIGHT

In England, one winter, an unattended light situated twenty-nine miles from the mainland went out and a party of engineers were sent to investigate. They entered the "cage" wherein the light was housed and found the door unclipped in dead flies. Myriads of them had risen above the level of the burner and dropped into the air and gas passages, ultimately choking off the light. The investigators must have thought they had stumbled upon the secret of where flies go in the winter time! This incident seems to point to the fact that flies obey some sort of migratory instinct, or are attracted by light.—Columbus Dispatch.

SHREWD HUBBY
The young husband was kindness personified as far as his wife was concerned. But he didn't like delay and made many a diplomatic attempt to have her ready to go out when he himself was dressed. Living in a suburban community, they always attended the monthly dances at the country club.
DURABILITY OF GLASS
It does not seem remarkable to find inscriptions written ages ago still visible on the Tower of London or on the steeple of some cathedral. But one would hardly look on a fragile pane of glass in a common window for characters more than two centuries old.
A notable case in point came to light in London not so long ago, in an old house where the notorious Jack Sheppard once lived as a carpenter's apprentice. One of the window panes still bears an inscription cut in it by a glazier's diamond, recording the name and address of a man who preceded Jack's master in that house. The inscription is: "John Woolley Brand, Painter and Glazier, March 2, 1706." That was nine years before the coming to the house of Jack Sheppard and almost two hundred and fifty years ago.

"PEGGY"
Peggy Hopkins Joyce, who through her various love affairs has gained considerable notoriety, both here and on the Continent, recently returned to the United States. Before her departure from Paris the suicide of young Billy Errazuriz, an attache of the Chilean Legation, shocked Parisian society, and the reason for his death was given as unrequited love for "Peggy." She denied any engagement between herself and M. Henri Letellier, known as the richest man in France—and as for Jack Dempsey—why she and Jack are just good friends.
