The Wonderful Silver Mines of Pinal County.

The Great Silver King Mine—Globe District and its Immense Treasures.

[From the San Francisco Stock Report.]
FLORENCE, Pinal county, A. T., October 12th, 1878.

Knowing your desire for all news concerning mines and mining enterprises, I have concluded to give your readers the benefit of what I saw on my late trip to Pioneer and Globe districts in this territory.

The direct route to Globe City and district lies via Picket Post and Silver King mine. From Florence to the King by daily stage each morning at eight o'clock, arriving at Picket Post at three o'clock and Silver King city at five of the same day. The road is most excellent and the stages comfortable—fare four dollars. From the King to Globe City saddle animals are used and are always in readiness at reasonable rates by the proprietor of the tri-weekly express line running between these two points—distance 28 miles over high ranges of mountains and through deep and dark canyons. Within the next six months it is considered a fixed fact that a toll road will be built, thereby making Globe district easy of access and bringing it and her mining interests to the front. As it has been and is now the difficulty of reaching that district has kept away many worthy people and much capital. The sentiment at Florence has been against making this road because they feared it would give all the trade of Globe to Picket Post and make that the capital of Pinal county, thereby taking away both from Florence. But it must be in the natural course of things, because of benefit to all in this county and section of Arizona.

The mines of the Globe district are good, as has been proven already in the instances of rich and valuable ore shipments from the Stowazel Jackson, Imperial, and others of less note. Quite a number of new finds have been made of late which will at the proper time make themselves and their value known. Coming from this district towards Florence, there was more time for a look about at the Silver King and Picket Post. Around the King quite a settlement has sprung up, and from here to Globe all travel is over the Stoneman grade, thus proving that road is not valueless. Twenty men are employed on the Silver King, stopping down the hill on which the outcrop was found, and the ore maintains in richness. Seven teams are engaged in hauling the ore to the mills at Picket Post. This morning we were at the mine, it was reported that King rock had been struck in the North King, at a depth of 118 feet. If this strike is of any magnitude, it will completely demolish the theory that the King is merely a blowout and will soon make things in Pioneer district boom. At Picket Post, six miles down the canyon from the King, the King 10-stamp mill and the '76 5-stamp are pounding away. The latter mill has been engaged to work King ore, and now the Silver King Mining company have fifteen stamps running and the dividends will be correspondingly increased. There is certainly ore enough on the dumps to keep both mills running a year and a half. Picket Post is an active, busy town, pleasantly located and evidently very prosperous. Five miles distant the Pinal Milling company's 5-stamp mill is running on small lots of custom ore from the "Wanahata," "Eureka" and "Union West" mines. The "Union West" is making a splendid showing, having a shaft down sixty feet, with a well-defined lead of native silver ore, in appearance more like the King than anything yet discovered. It is rumored that on November first the Pinal Milling company will also commence on a contract with the Silver King company to crush two thousand tons of their ore. This will probably be done, as, while other mines here have not sufficient ore to keep this mill running, the King can easily furnish work for forty stamps with the present force now at work.

The bullion product for the month of August of the Silver King was $85,000, and this from ten stamps. The ore is increasing in richness, and when all the mills in Pioneer district are devoted to crushing King ore, that company will be able to make a showing second to no silver mine on the Pacific coast.

The whole country from Florence to McMillenville is filling up with a busy, industrious people, who are fast making a wealthy and prosperous county, and we feel that hereafter toward Arizona is to be known for what she is—the richest mineral bearing territory of the United States.

SHERIDAN'S CHARGER.

Death of the Horse that Sheridan Rode "To Winchester," Twenty Miles Away.

The famous charger that carried Gen. Sheridan to Winchester, "twenty miles away," died in his master's stable, on Michigan avenue, at an early hour yesterday morning. The part played by this animal in one of the bloodiest battles of the rebellion has been respectfully recognized in books of history and in patriotic verse. Read, the poet, by a few strokes of his pen, lifted the beast into a fame almost as enduring as that which has been earned by his rider.

"Winchester," the cognomen by which the horse has been known since the war, was jet black in color, with a small white star almost in the center of the forehead—a sort of "lucky star." He stood sixteen and a half hands high, and was trim built and active and proud spirited. When Sheridan took command of the Second Michigan regiment in 1862, Captain Campbell presented him with the animal, which was then spoken of as a three-year old colt. His owner named him Rienzi after the Mississippi town of that name. He carried his master through the battles of Stone River, Chickamauga, Mission Ridge, and a score of other engagements in the Tennessee campaign. He pranced around among the mules and ordinary steeds at the battles of Opaquin, Fisher's Mill, Cedar Creek, Petersburg, and twenty or more other combats. In fact "Winchester" faced the guns in ninety engagements, and with a single exception, never flinched or turned tail to any enemy. In the battle of Stone River a solid shot passed under him, grazing the skin of his belly. He became fractious and unmanageable, the general being obliged to dismount. The appearance of the animal on the field without a rider was the foundation for the report that his owner had been killed. The horse was wounded by pieces of shell in the battle of Opaquin and Trevillian, but not severely in either instance.

History describes the ride to Winchester as a furious and headlong race. Gen. Sheridan said last evening that he had ridden the horse at a full gallop, at times breaking into a run. Two staff officers, Generals Forsyth and O'Keefe, and the escort of twenty cavalry men, rode with him, but the horse "Winchester" showed more spirit and "bottom" than any of the other animals. The general said that the actual distance ridden was sixteen miles, the poet, Read, having used about four miles of "poetical license." He spoke feelingly of his old black steed, saying he had been unexcelled in speed, courage, docility and nobleness of nature. The general said he had not been upon "Winchester" back since the war closed. He has required his hostler to give him the tenderest attention. The horse has suffered more or less from rheumatism for several years, and probably caused his death. The skin of old "Winchester" is to be prepared and preserved in the best art of the taxidermist.

Egyptian Corn.

Arizona farmers may learn something of great value to them by reading the following from the Contra Costa (Cal.) Gazette:

This new cereal, first introduced in our section this season, promises to be one of the most prolific and valuable of our stock feed and forage crops. So far as can be judged from the limited trial given it here, the yield of the seed from this plant will be two or three times as much as from Indian corn, and some of the specimens at the late fair, showing heavy heads, were grown on adobe ground unsuitable for Indian corn. The meal is said to make a delicious bread which is generally preferred by those who have eaten it to that made from the Indian corn meal; and one lady of our town, Mrs. Dr. Carothers, who had a few plants in her garden this season, reports having found it much superior to pearl barley used as a thickening for soup.

Bob Ingersoll is in favor of inflation, but it must be the right kind. He says: "I am in favor of the inflation produced by industry. I am in favor of the country being inflated with our corn, with wheat, good houses, books, pictures, and plenty of labor for everybody. I'm in favor of being inflated with gold and silver, but I do not believe in the inflation of promises, expectation and speculation."

Mrs. Corbin, of Elizabeth, N. J., a sister of General Grant, has taken a prize at the state fair for the best home-made bread.
