TO "MERCHANTS AND TRADESPEOPLE"

In an editorial under the caption "The board of trade is right," the Washington Post goes on at great length to criticize those who have entered objection to the board of trade's refusal to give its support to civil service reform in District offices. The long screed is evidently aimed especially at the Evening Star, which is referred to as "an evening paper."

Our morning contemporary's perfect consistency was never better exemplified than in this editorial. Of course a "national newspaper," such as the Post aims to maintain, has little concern for those whom it chooses to call "merchants and tradespeople of the District." No indeed, in that broad field which the Post imagines it is covering with a mail list, the interests of Washington are of little moment in comparison to the vast interests of outside subscribers who want to come here on another wave of spoils system office seekers, get political jobs and unsettle the business life of the city by another change in the personnel of officials.

The Post is indeed to discover that the Star and other ardent local civil service reformers should take issue with the board of trade for its refusal to support "reform on a dollars and cents basis." Its ultra-ethical journalistic intelligence is shocked that these objects are not actuated by the inspiration of high-class reformers.

However, this lofty lecture to the "merchants and tradespeople" of Washington should be taken ethically. The Post, it is understood, will continue to take advertising from these same merchants who are pressing their selfish interests so strongly. The "dollars and cents basis" for local advertising will continue in the business office, and the same atmosphere of high civic morality will continue to permeate the editorial columns for the benefit of the mail list of this "national newspaper." It will be remembered that this atmospheric morality was recently exemplified to a remarkable degree during the highly moral proceedings of the Gorman-Hamveyer proceedings.

The Times will continue to support an extension of civil service reform to District offices because, repeating its editorial language of yesterday, the promise of such reform is "a greater material Washington and a purer political Washington."

THE THIRD PARTY MOVEMENT. One result of the late elections which was not altogether anticipated by the politicians in either party is the sudden projection of the financial question upon the political canvas, to the practical exclusion of everything else. It is as good as settled that tariff legislation will remain a standstill for several years. Neither party will be able to carry through radical tariff measures, the Democrats being prevented by want of unity, and the Republicans by motives of expediency. In this emergency the financial question, which is a real and vital one, furnishes precisely the issue for which politicians are looking.

President Cleveland is swayed by the financial opinions of the East and of the moneyed centers of the country, and is expected to take strong ground in his next message to Congress for a revision of our financial system on conservative lines. If this be true, and there is every reason to believe that it is true, there is no hope during the present administration, the next Congress being Republican, for popular legislation on the financial question.

Such legislation can only be obtained through a Congress and an administration elected on the financial issue, with a mandate from the people directing the performance of certain things. This is the view held by those who now advocate the formation of a new party, based on a free-currency platform, and it is a sound one. There can be no doubt that the time is ripe for the formation of such a party. With the tariff practically eliminated from current political questions, and with the financial question looming up into view by its very urgency and vitality, the movement for a third party, if wisely aided, ought to revolutionize the face of current political history.

Without the forcible intervention of the European powers, which is not likely to be forthcoming, the end of the Chinese Empire, in its present form, is not far off. The nineteenth century will see in its closing years the disintegration of a people of four hundred million souls by the assault of one less than one-tenth of that number, and upon the ruins of the old there will be built up a structure more in harmony with modern ideas of government.

The event is not the natural result of causes that have operated since wherever they have been brought into action. It is the logical outcome of the conflict between the progressive thought and spirit of modern civilization and the stolid, inert passivity of time-worn customs. It is the logic of modern ideas annihilating the wall of exclusiveness with which China surrounded, not only her territory, but her people.

Looking at the transformation about to be enacted from a purely philosophical and humanitarian standpoint, the change is but to be applauded. The petty quarrels—party in comparison with the larger interests of the ultimate destiny of the human race—which may arise in the immediate future between foreign nations having a political or com-

SOCIAL SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

There is some exceedingly interesting gossip about concerning the course of events at one of the summer resorts especially favored by Washington society during the past summer. The incidents of affairs innumerable have been discussed since returning to Washington, and if half that is told to be relied upon the rustic population about the place must have gained some entirely new and unlooked-for ideas on the subject of society in general and this special occasion in particular. The devotion of a couple whose legal partners were for the time being sojourning elsewhere appears to have been an especially fruitful topic for discussion, and their favorite method of entertaining each other was by discussing several times a day the details of the hotel. These occasions, that grew to have an alarming frequency about the place, were invariably upon the order of "two's a company, three's a crowd."

The question of the hour now is as to whether or not, the couple having returned to Washington and each having been joined by their legal partners, the same conversation did or will be allowed to develop further interesting features?

Col. and Mrs. Marcus P. Miller have issued cards for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Appleton Miller, to Lieut. Col. L. H. Higgins on the 21st instant at 2 o'clock at Fort Hamilton, N. Y. The groom-elect is a son of Gen. and Mrs. Higgins.

Dr. John Trimble has been out of the city on a Western trip for several weeks past, and will not return until Thanksgiving.

Miss Celestine Eustis will accompany Mr. Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., to Aiken on the 24th inst. Mr. Hitchcock will occupy their house at that place until the late spring, and will enjoy the winter following the bounds and taking part in polo matches.

Hon. William C. Whitney will soon go abroad again, accompanied by his eldest daughter, an account of whose delicate health the trip is to be taken. Miss Whitney has been a familiar figure at the horse show in New York during the past week, but will not return in this country to take any part in the winter's gaieties, as her physicians have ordered the comparative inactivity from social cares and obligations that are to be found in a country so far from home.

Mr. Carlisle Patterson has taken for the season the house on Eleventh street near Massachusetts avenue, owned by Mrs. Don Cameron, and which Mrs. Patterson has had occupied by Mrs. Slater, Mrs. and Miss Patterson are now comfortably settled there.

Mrs. James T. Hopkins and family have returned to Washington after having spent the season at Narragansett Pier, where Miss Hopkins was among the belles of the summer.

Miss Helen Steele, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Steele, will be among the debutantes of the winter season, and will be introduced to the principals in a divorce between a supposed elch and a nominating convention.

Miss Margaret Cassella, who has been abroad for some time past with her mother, will make her formal debut into society this season at a tea given early in December.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Legare are still at their country place in Connecticut, but will shortly return to Washington for the winter and occupy the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Kent on Massachusetts street. Mr. and Mrs. Kent will spend the winter in California.

The kind offices of Mrs. Cleveland are it is said, to be sought by several Southern Members of Congress, after they shall have returned to Washington, in behalf of Miss Carrie Sherman, of Fairfax county, Va., who, after many years' absence, is expected to return to her home in the District of Columbia. Mrs. Sherman was an intimate friend of Mr. Cleveland, sister of the late President Arthur, and she was highly esteemed by the President himself.

Immediately after Miss Sherman's dismissal as seamstress from the White House, she had also been a schoolmate of the latter and for a long time kept up a correspondence with her, which she had written in Boston to Mrs. Cleveland and asked her assistance with the view that Miss Sherman might be reinstated. The lady received no reply, and it is now believed that the letter never reached its destination. Miss Sherman is a well-to-do and distinguished society, and she now resides with her brother on a part of the property that was originally granted by the King of England to Lord Fairfax.

She was appointed to a position in the War Department soon after the war, and although subsequently she became paralyzed on the left side, she was quite able to discharge her duties to the time of her dismissal. She was for many years in receipt of a salary of $100 per month, but saved nothing, as all that was left after her payment of taxes and other expenses was given to those whom she believed were worthy of her charity. Miss Sherman is a confident that Mrs. Cleveland will be noticed to interest herself in her case and that before long she will be able to take charge of the desk at the War Department that she so long occupied.

The Independent Social Club of Good Hope, Annapolis, gave a masquerade birthday party last evening at the residence of Mr. Beaton on Chesapeake street. The guests from Annapolis were Miss Maud Simmons, Maggie Keating, Annie Smith, Nellie Simmons, Mrs. William J. E. Hodson and Hughes, Messrs. Leonard and Murray, Mr. Charles W. Marked, Esq., and Messrs. Bertram Thoburn, Warren Tolson, and Harry Kelley.

MR. WELLES SAID "NOTHING." When Mr. Welles asked "What He Would Do About Mr. Dove's Appointment." The appointment of William H. Fletcher to the southwest station went into effect yesterday afternoon when he was given charge of the office by Postmaster Welles.

The Postmaster said yesterday that the appointment for additional facilities at Germantown drug store on Pennsylvania avenue and in Tennyson street was granted at a date as early as possible.

Mr. E. L. Welles, Postmaster at Washington, called to see the postmaster yesterday and had a brief talk with him on the subject of his recent appointment of William H. Dove, from West Virginia, to the southwest station at Washington. Mr. Welles has been reported as saying that Mr. Dove is from Georgetown which statement the postmaster corrected as Mr. Dove resides at No. 1210 G street, northwest Washington.

Mr. Welles stated the grounds on which he objected to the appointment of Mr. Dove, and asked the postmaster what he was going to do in the case, to which the postmaster replied: "Nothing."

The matter of Mr. Welles' protest is to be discussed at the next meeting of the East Washington Citizens' Association.

Disconsolate Without His Violin. Richard Heyzter is a strolling German musician. He was confined in a cell at the Twelfth street station last night, charged with making threats against his divorced wife.

"If I only had my violin," he moaned, "the hours would be half so dull here. Ah, I could forget myself and these iron bars if I had my old fiddle here."

Heyzter had to fret his time away without an instrument. He is said to possess decided talent and a skillful, delicate touch, but drink has robbed him of his power. Recently he was sent to the workhouse, and had just been released when arrested for abusing Mrs. Ada J. Heyzter, who secured a divorce from him.

Anxious About the Korean. St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 18.—No news has yet been received here of the Allan line steamer Korean, Capt. Main, and the friends of those on board are becoming very anxious. The Korean sailed from Georgetown, New York, on the 12th inst. She was bound for New York, and was reported to have been wrecked on the 15th inst. She is now six days overdue. There are on board about 100 persons, the officers and crew numbering seventy.

INDUSTRIALS MADE A SPURT. Sugar, Consolidated Gas, and Other Stocks Gained Considerably. CHANGING TONE OF THE MARKET. Unsettled and Movement of Prices Irregular, Though Speculation Was Fairly Active—Toward the Close the Figures Generally Moved Up, and the Closing Was Strong.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Speculation on the stock exchange to-day was fairly active, but the market was unsettled and the movement of prices very irregular. London was a seller of the international stocks, chiefly St. Paul, while Boston sold Burlington and Quincy, and Chicago sold Northwest. The doubt expressed as to the declaration of the regular dividend on Burlington and Quincy had an unfavorable effect on the entire market, and reports of decreased earnings of Northwest was another depressing influence. The market was weak and lower at the opening, and there were fractional declines in the early dealing.

About 10:30 New Jersey Central led a pretty general rally with a gain of 1/16, Manhattan selling up 1/16. The improvement was not maintained, and before 11 o'clock had been in large measure lost in the active list, who some of the specialties fell off materially. The market continued heavy until after 11 o'clock, when a rally ranging up to 1/16 cent. was led by Sugar. A quick reaction followed, in which Chicago declined 1/16, Lake Shore and the other rail list a fraction. Entering into the afternoon a heavy tone characterized the dealing, but it was only the usual result of a market that was heavy for the half hour preceding 2:30. The movement of prices was but slight.

After delivery hour there was a reaction, led by Western Union, the granulars, and coal shares, but the temper of speculation underwent a marked change before 2:30, and during the last half hour prices moved up steadily and the market closed strong.

The earlier movement had entirely made up in the closing rally, and most of the list shows a decline compared with the final sales of yesterday, notably Lake Erie and Western preferred, 2 per cent. Baltimore and Ohio, Lake Erie and Western preferred losing 2 per cent.; Canada Pacific, 1/16, and Tobacco and Consolidated Gas each 1/16. Delaware and Hudson receded 1/16, and

The movement of prices was but slight.

After delivery hour there was a reaction, led by Western Union, the granulars, and coal shares, but the temper of speculation underwent a marked change before 2:30, and during the last half hour prices moved up steadily and the market closed strong.

The earlier movement had entirely made up in the closing rally, and most of the list shows a decline compared with the final sales of yesterday, notably Lake Erie and Western preferred, 2 per cent. Baltimore and Ohio, Lake Erie and Western preferred losing 2 per cent.; Canada Pacific, 1/16, and Tobacco and Consolidated Gas each 1/16. Delaware and Hudson receded 1/16, and

The market continued heavy until after 11 o'clock, when a rally ranging up to 1/16 cent. was led by Sugar. A quick reaction followed, in which Chicago declined 1/16, Lake Shore and the other rail list a fraction. Entering into the afternoon a heavy tone characterized the dealing, but it was only the usual result of a market that was heavy for the half hour preceding 2:30. The movement of prices was but slight.
