

GENTLEMAN JIM FAITHLESS

Mysterious Blonde Who Has Complete Mastery of the Pagelist.

Mrs. Corbett's Father Says That His Son-in-law Is Insane—Corbett Says the Report Is "Premature."

New York, June 5.—A. H. Hummel, of the law firm of Howe and Hummel, when asked today if there was any truth in the story that Mrs. James J. Corbett would sue her husband for absolute divorce, declined to make any statement.

CLOSES ITS FIRST YEAR.

National Park Seminary to Hold Its Commencement Today.

National Park Seminary, at Forest Glen, Md., will hold its commencement today, the closing exercises consisting of music by a string quartet, piano solo by Prof. Lawrence, salutatory, by Miss Bessie Jones, of Ohio; violin solo, by Anton Kaaspar, an address by J. De Witt Miller, etc.

PROSTRATED BY HEAT.

Several Cases Reported Yesterday, But No Fatalities.

Thomas Egleston, of Atlanta, president of the Southeastern Tariff Association of Fire Underwriters, was in session here, was taken suddenly ill yesterday. The attack was directly due to intense heat and manifested itself in a severe case of indigestion.

ACCUSED OF CRUELTY.

Ticket-Taker Betz' Wife Is Suing For a Divorce.

Alexander H. Betz, of No. 507 O street northwest, and yesterday filed a divorce suit against his wife, Mrs. Lillian M. Betz, of No. 613 Sixth street northwest. The bill says she is "ticket agent at Albaugh's Theater."

TEAS THE RAGE.

Some Successful Entertainments in New York in That Line.

Charity entertainments, always frequent during the spring, have been very smart and successful and introduced some novel features. A May-flower tea held in one of the most beautiful studios in New York had for tea pursers sweet Puritan maidens, Princesses and Princesses, one of the large attitudinizing women who move about in bouquets of pussy willow and spring blossoms.

BANQUET TO EDITOR CHASE.

It Will Be Tendered Him Tonight by Virginia Journalists.

Editor Magnus L. Robinson, of the Alexandria, Va., Leader, in conjunction with the members of the Northwest Press of Virginia, has completed arrangements for the banquet to Editor W. Calvin Chase, of the Washington Bee.

SUING THE METZEROTTS.

Two Firms Want Payment for Building Material Furnished.

Jackson, Sharp & Co., Inc., a corporation, and Charles White & Co., filed suits yesterday against Henrietta C. Metzertott and other heirs of the late William G. Metzertott. They live at Avenue M.

What Stumped Her.

We know many who have a mania for collecting all sorts of queer facts in history, science and so forth; but his wife has no sympathy with him in this direction. The other evening he laid down his paper.

Pie and the Yankees.

Southerners understand that you New Englanders have pie for breakfast every day.

SAVIORS OF POOR CHILDREN

First Consignment of Diseased and Feeble Little Ones Sent Into Virginia to Be Reinvigorated by Pure Air and Food—Two Weeks' Outing For Them.

Ten little ones, whose eyes have seldom beheld anything but the lone, unbroken line of streets and houses, and whose ideas of the green country were such as they had formed from the parks and squares, were, through the instrumentality of the Union of Junior Christian Endeavor Societies of Washington, given an opportunity of testing their vision upon the beauties of nature, tasting the joys and delights of rural life and drawing into their lungs long, deep breaths of pure, invigorating life-giving air.

About a year ago the Juniors conceived the idea of instituting a country home for poor children whose parents could not afford to send them, and as the case with everything the Endeavorers set out to do, it was not long before the necessary money was raised and everything in readiness for the opening this spring. With $600 in hand a house half way between Fostoria and Eagle Church, Va., was rented and Rev. Philip S. Steele with his wife and daughter placed in charge.

TWO WEEKS' OUTING.

The sum of money that is at present available will be sufficient for the support of ten children in the home all during the summer and if any more funds are obtained the overworked mothers will be sent with their pale and haggard children. Each child is given a two weeks' outing free from all cost for board or transportation.

The first lot was taken by Rev. E. B. Bagby to the institution on Monday, under the supervision of Mrs. Steele, who will look after the delicate charges with a mother's care. Notable among the party were two pinched faces of pain-racked and cough-racked little children, to whose cheeks the fresh summer breezes will bring back the rose hue of youth and whose wasted bodies will be strengthened and nourished by the pure country air.

One was a youth whose form was horribly misshapen by hip disease. For some time he has been an inmate of the Newsboys' Home and has contributed to his support, so far as he has been able, by selling papers on the street. Being anxious to compete with more active rivals he has been too zealous in his efforts, having gone beyond his strength, complete prostration is the result.

HOPE OF THE FUTURE.

In the country he hopes to win back his strength and expects on his return to be self-supporting if some charitably inclined person will procure for him work that can be done at home.

Miss Mordant Wilson, of the Newsboys' Home, gives the boy a good, moral Christian education and says that he is exceptionally bright and is in addition able to read and write nicely.

Another one, who went on Monday, was a homely, but very little Swiss boy, who had been found by Miss Jennie O. Kimball in her work among the poor in East Washington and for whom she willingly procured a home in the Newsboys' Home.

Perhaps the most affecting sight was that presented by a little girl scarcely yet entered on her teens who was carrying in her arms a bundle of rags and a bundle of clothes and thin emaciated frame showed that she had just recovered from a long illness.

There was not a healthy looking child in the lot, but it will be interesting to note the difference in their condition when they return. The officers of the Union of Junior Christian Endeavor Societies, under the supervision of Mrs. Steele, will be conducted, are: Rev. E. B. Bagby, president; Mrs. M. R. Fishburn, vice-president; Miss Della Randolph, recording secretary; Miss M. E. Fenwick, corresponding secretary, and Mr. John B. Seaman, treasurer.

ACCUSATION OF CRUELTY.

Johnny Had the Third.

"Father," said a young hopeful the other day, "how many fowls are there on this table?"

"Why," said the old gentleman, as he looked complacently on a pair of nicely roasted chickens that were smoking on the table, "there are two."

"Two?" replied the snarling boy. "There are three, sir, and I'll prove it."

"Three?" replied the old gentleman, who was a plain, matter-of-fact man. "I'd like to see you prove it."

"Easily done, easily done. Is not that a turkey?" said the snarling boy, laying his knife on the first; "and that one" pointing to the second; "and do not one and two make three?"

"Really," said the father, turning to his wife, who was stupefied at the immense learning of the son; "really, this boy is a genius and deserves to be encouraged," and then he turned to the snarling boy and said, "Well, do you take one fowl and I'll take the second and John may have the third for his learning."

"Just Like a Woman."

"What is it, Mamma, with a telegraph?"

"A telegram! Oh, ask him if James is killed!"

"He says he don't know, mamma."

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear! What shall I do here, Mamma, here's the purse; pay him your money, whatever he asks. Oh, my poor James! I just knew something would happen to him before he went away this morning. Will they bring him home in an ambulance, Mamma?"

"I'll possess, mamma. Maybe you'd better look the telegraph."

"I can't, I can't. Oh, it raves me right for not kissing him but three times when we left. Ah, we've been married such a short time, too!"

"Why don't you open the telegraph, mamma?"

"Well, I suppose I must; but, oh, I can't tell you how I dread it!"

Reads telegram: "Will bring friend home to dinner, James."

THE DEADLY AIR.

HEAT ONLY ONE OF THE LIFE DESTROYING QUALITIES.

Dust, Germs, and Life Destroying Elements Unnumbered.

Letters Written by the Decapitated Colonel Years Ago Containing Strictures Upon the Secretary Were Sent to Washington—Abrupt Departure From the Capital For Maine.

Col. Charles B. Morton, of Maine, auditor for the Navy Department, was summarily dismissed from the government service at noon yesterday by President Cleveland.

Col. Morton did not remain in Washington very long after the notification. He left the department, proceeded to the Buckingham, packed his trunk and shook the dust of the city off his feet for that of Augusta, Maine. He has been at the Buckingham for about a year, was very popular there, and the news of his dismissal was received with much regret.

It is said that he made no explanation of his dismissal. "That is very natural," said one of his friends last night; "he wasn't asked for any."

The genesis of the little sensation at the Treasury is about as follows: Col. Morton was a strong Democrat.

FOUGHT BLAINE HARD.

Blaine didn't like him, and he didn't like Blaine politically, and Col. Morton fought him hard in the first Cleveland Presidential election. Hence Col. Morton got an office under Mr. Cleveland. Col. Morton had a bosom friend in Augusta, Me., who also wanted a job, and Col. Morton tried hard to get it for him, but failed.

During his trial in his friend's behalf the latter in his own mind decided to work on Mr. Carlisle. This was eight years ago. Col. Morton, so the story goes, had a question for a covering only among men.

CARLISLE FELT INSULTED.

Col. Morton's friend, who related the story to The Times, believes that the friction with Secretary Herbert and other officials had nothing to do with the case. Mr. Carlisle regarded his friend's admiration and the President acted for that reason alone.

He does not believe it at all likely that the friend would have said anything offensive about the President himself, as he owed so much to him, and as the President had made appointments at Col. Morton's suggestion.

The friend who told the letter to Secretary Carlisle was an applicant for a post-office in Maine.

ETHICS OF GOOD CLOTHES.

The business woman can not afford to disregard the conventionalities of dress.

She who is wisest and more far-seeing follows in the wake of present-day fashions, avoiding exaggerations of absurdities so far and so long as possible, but even adopting them when she finds herself forced to do so as a certain conspicuous among women.

Men have small patience with the woman who departs from conventional dress standards, for here they find admiration for that other woman who holds all matters of dress in contempt and regards her clothes as a question for a covering only among men.

The woman whose dress is neat, stylish, becoming and suitable to the time and place is the woman with whom they like best to associate.

"I'm almost made out of this fellow's poem," said Uncle Si, laying down the magazine his niece had brought to the farm, "but not quite."

"Read it, uncle," said the niece.

"It goes this way:

"'Low in the west there sullen lies A cloud portentous, black, with tongues of flame;

A strange, dim, uncorrected figure when the sun is bright, brings the terrors to my eyes.

A subtle feeling permeates my frame."

"Well, what is there you do not understand? It seems a clear exposition of moods produced by a coming storm."

"I understand the storm part of it all right, but what I don't get at from his verses is whether the fellow can't in his metaphors or his corns. Some folks feel it one way and some the other, you know."—Cincinnati Tribune.

A Fine Collection.

An extraordinary collection of books of the library of Mr. Genousius, late Greek minister to England, is about to be brought under the hammer in London. It consists of the first and rarest editions of the Greek classics in unusually good copies. Aides, Junias, Staphisaurus, Of Homer there are 130 copies, of Anacreon 40, of Lucretius 60, of Theocritus 50, and so on. Among the books are Racine's "Pitarch," Henri Estienne's "Aldine," Thucydides, "Metoch," three editio princeps of Demosthenes, all with manuscript notes of the possessors.

Besides these there are 154 lots of Byron, including the original manuscript of "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers,"—Exchange.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS RALLY

Great Post-Convention Gathering at Metropolitan M. E. Church.

Board of Control Instructs Committee to Report on Transportation Rates For the Great Conference.

The Epworth Leaguers will hold a post-convention rally on Monday evening, June 17, this decision having been reached at a meeting of the board of control, held at Foundry Church, last evening.

In submitting this report to the board, President Matthews stated that there was so much to be said of the recent convention held in Philadelphia recently, that such a rally seemed to be advisable, in order that an early opportunity may be had of reporting to all of the chapters at once.

It was voted by the board to hold the meeting at Metropolitan Church, corner of Four-and-a-half and C streets, in case it shall prove not to conflict with other appointments there, and in case there should be a pre-arranged meeting at church the league will go to McKendree Church on Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Reports were received by the board last night from the various officials, including J. S. Barker, first vice-president; Harry O. Hine, third vice-president; E. T. J. O. Hine, secretary, and George S. Gilson and W. B. Matthews, from the transportation committee. Among other items reported was the recent organization of two chapters, one at Bowie, Md., and one at Perkins, Md., at which representatives of the District League officiated.

The next event of note in the League calendar is the great international conference to be held in Chattanooga, Tenn., beginning June 27. It will continue in session five days, and will be composed of representatives of the three great Epworth leagues of the Methodist Church in America—the Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Episcopal South, and the Methodist Episcopal of Canada.

Among the speakers already secured are Rev. C. H. Parkhurst, D. D., Mrs. Maud A. Parkhurst, Mrs. M. E. Bowler, premier of Canada; Bishops Hendrix, Joyce and Harrows and Rev. Sam Jones.

The conference has been looked forward to with interest for two years, and it is probable that a large delegation will go from Washington. The committee on transportation was charged with the duty of securing the lowest rates and other necessary particulars, and to report at the post-convention rally on the 17th instant.

Those present at the board meeting were W. B. Matthews, of Foundry; J. S. Barker, of Wesley; H. O. Hine, of Waugh; E. T. J. O. Hine, of McKendree; E. S. Gilson, of North Capitol; E. T. J. O. Hine, of McKendree; George S. Gilson, of Grace; Harry Farmer, of Fifteenth Street; J. H. Allen, of Twelfth Street, and R. I. Carr, of Douglas Memorial Chapter.

Of Interest to Housekeepers.

The recent advertisements of the firm of N. T. Rodman & Co. in The Times are of peculiar interest to the housewife, for the firm publishes daily a list of prices of the more important items of groceries, and this list forms a sort of housekeeper's market and guide.

In this list form it is strictly a new departure in the grocery trade, and the movement is making itself felt.

We are accustomed to see grocers occasionally advertise specially low prices on certain lines, but this concern is apparently unparagoned in its low prices on a large number of articles.

For instance, Rodman & Co. offer Epworth's "Best" flour at 55¢ per barrel to-day, Friday, and Saturday, which price is less than present wholesale cost. All the other prices are proportionately low, and the store at 944 Louisiana avenue should be a paradise for frugal shoppers.

Shell Game Artists Sentenced.

Bradley Barber and Charles Johnson, alleged shell game workers, were sentenced by Judge Kimball to three months in the workhouse on Monday in default of $200 real estate bonds.
