

FAVORABLE STATEMENT.

The Showing of the Banks Better Than Had Been Expected.

Other Circumstances Tending to Heave the Unsettled Market—Profits, Taking Note to Decline, Though Many Net Gains Are Scored.

NEW YORK, July 13.—At least one circumstance that has been an unsettling factor in the stock market this week, namely, apprehension regarding the money market, was disposed of by the money market statement. That statement was much more favorable than had generally been expected. The decrease of $2,000,000 in the loans given some idea of the extent of the liquidation in securities that has taken place this week.

The most encouraging feature of the showing, however, is the increase of over $3,000,000 in lawful money. While the large increase in the surplus reserves is due chiefly to smaller deposits, resulting from the reduction in the loans, it is interesting to note that three-sevenths of the increase in the surplus is in cash received by the banks from the interior. It is, of course, impossible to forebode what the interior movement of money will be during the coming week, but it is quite plain that for two or three weeks to come the Treasury is likely to disburse more money than it collects. The collections so far this month have been heavy, but there was also a notable demand for new internal revenue stamps.

While collections are likely to be lighter, disbursements on account of the various appropriations are certain to be large for some little time to come. Another source of supply is the Klondike, receipts from which are likely to be heavy during the remainder of the summer. Advances were received today of $3,000,000 in transit to Pacific Coast points.

Simultaneously with these developments the corn exchange market is developing pronounced weakness, owing to offerings of bills against grain futures. It seems probable in view of the severe crop shortage abroad that Europe will begin to import breadstuffs from the country earlier than usual this season. The shipments last week were something over a million bushels larger than the preceding week, and more than two millions bushels larger than the same week last year.

There was also a noticeable increase in exports of corn last week. It appears from these circumstances that Europe cannot be expected to supply the road unless it pay an unprecedentedly high price for the corn. It is, therefore, not surprising that the comparatively small amount that Berlin secured in this market this week was a notable success. The continued condition of financial affairs in Germany, caused by the failure of a large industrial institution, is not, however, as pessimistic as it may appear. It is not likely that the disaster will mark a tendency, but was the result of extraordinary circumstances.

While the condition of the local money market since the beginning of the week, together with today's showing by the associated banks, is not likely to stimulate speculation for a further week, it does make it clear that ordinary conditions can be obtained at fairly low rates which may induce some substantial buying of securities now that many of them have declined to figures at which they will yield the higher rates for their money than can be obtained in the loan market.

Other factors likely to encourage conservative operations on the long side of the market are the railway tariff returns, the restoration of rates by the roads during business hours, the fact that the Missouri River points, and the tendency of railway companies to increase the distribution of their profits.

After the money market became easier early in the week, the predominant influences shaping the market were the labor troubles and the crop situation, chiefly in Kansas and Missouri. By attaching the most important importance to the prospective damage to the corn crop in those two States, particularly in the portion of Kansas in which the raising of corn is always an extra hazardous risk, speculators in grain and in stocks, particularly at the West, have made vigorous campaigns in the markets for each.

That these speculators are not entirely sure of their own ground is shown by a sharp break in the price of corn today on fears that rain might fall in the sections where the harvest is expected to close of business today and Monday morning. Simultaneously with the break in the price of corn, the price of wheat advanced. It is sold off again, however, when it was discovered that the reaction in corn was chiefly in the making of a well defined prospect of rain in the western and southern portions of the corn belt.

So successful have the speculators referred to been in their effort to centre public attention on the weather, that immediate moisture in portions of the Southwest, which the fairly satisfactory condition of the corn crop in other States has virtually been ignored.

The week has been a remarkable one on the stock exchange for the volume of liquidation that has taken place and the extent of the resulting decline. Beyond the slightest suggestion that the machinery of the street has been disarranged in the recent past, no other change for the worse in general business, which, however, has been unusually brisk in practically every line, with a minimum of speculative ventures and with confidence in the market, has been shown. The only disturbing circumstance—and it is an important one—is the restlessness of labor in certain quarters.

Today's stock market was irregular. The opening of the market, except for the United States Steel stocks, which followed a sharp decline in the London market. The market was rather heavy selling of them, and also some good buying that resulted in a slight advance. The publication of the bank statement stimulated covering of shorts, but in the late dealing professional traders disposed of their holdings, but not apparently to hold them over Sunday.

Notwithstanding the final retrograde movement of the market, the gains were higher than last night. Noteworthy net gains were enjoyed by Atchison common, Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, and the Pacific, and many of the less active shares. Union Pacific, which led the list in activity, closed only a fraction higher at a reaction of more than a point from yesterday.

In the industrial list the strong features were Amalgamated Copper, Colorado Fuel, Consolidated Gas, and Virginia-Carolina Chemicals. The latter, which had been the most active, closed at a reaction of more than a point from yesterday.

The first half month of the new fiscal year has been a record for the stock market. The level has tumbled fully all over the list, the losses averaging to the extent of 10 to 15 per cent.

The street at present is wondering if the new year will be the opposite to its predecessor. It may also be asked if the fiscal year ending with June 30 will be remembered long in Wall Street as the great year of the stock market.

The break in the market is not mysterious in any way. It has been looked for by the market since the beginning of the month or more. As a matter of fact, a tumble was expected before the panic of the week before last.

The market certainly has not reflected any change for the worse in general business, which, however, has been unusually brisk in practically every line, with a minimum of speculative ventures and with confidence in the market, has been shown.

THE CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Reports of Rain Cause a Small Panic in Corn.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Wheat opened on a high temperature, prevailing in the North. The strength was momentary, however, for when close prices started to break, wheat followed. Local bulls let go and commission houses executed stop loss orders.

The financial situation looks more encouraging since the bank statement figures appeared. The reserve has been increased so materially that the surplus need not be entertained for the present. It should be borne in mind, however, that the movement of the crops has not yet begun, and it is likely, too, that some further shipments of gold to Europe may be made.

Despite the rumors of rains in Kansas, Missouri and other Western States yesterday morning, which caused a slight reaction in the market, the grain market is generally on a sound basis and there will be ample funds for liquidating requirements, and the speculator who will feel the security.

Our lands lie in every direction from the Great Oil Wells at Beaumont, and practically form A Belt Around the Gushers.

We have a tract of land on the slope of High Island, where all geologists agree that wonderful oil deposits are located. We own land near Sour Lake, where the finest quality of lubricating oil is produced. We own land near Saratoga, where small oil wells have flowed for years, though not developed; and we have land near the widely-known Oil City in Nacogdoches County, where oil of lubricating value has been piped into the town of Nacogdoches, not to mention our holdings near Houston, where the field is being developed for market gas. And in addition, our lands are also scattered through Jasper, Sabine, Orange, Shelby, and San Augustine Counties.

Boring Will Begin as Soon as Rigs and Pipe Can Be gotten in the Field. Think of the vast formations made from pump wells in California, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and other States, and then consider the results of an investment in a field where wells are struck which flow from 50,000 to 70,000 barrels a day. If you have money invested in another company send and get our map, and prospectus and learn more about the field where your money is invested.
