S. A. Johnson, a suburban farmer who rells his produce at the O Street market, has addressed a letter to Commissioner MacFarland, complaining of the enment of the hucksters upon the rights of the produce raisers and asking that the evil be remedied. The letter is as follows: "As a truck gardener living in the sub-

THOUSAND DOLLAR BILL FOUND Colored Man Recovers the Mone Where He Dropped It.

After a long search for a missing $1,00 bill, just drawn from the Lincoln Na-tional Bank, Alexander Walker was yesterday relieved to find that the preclous piece of paper had been found on the floor beside a table at his home, where he had counted the money. Walker is a colored man of considerable means. Besides keeping a large grocery and provision store at 89 N Street southwest, where he lives, he owns a number ber of men.

Of late he has made several purchases of real estate. Yesterday after concluding a bargain for a certain piece of property with which to make the first payment. Albert S. When it is stated that these 320 acres of land have advanced in price from $1.25 an acre, or $100 for the whole site, to nearly $1,300 an acre since last May, the phe nomenal jump in values can be more easily realized. This appreciation in val ues is entirely due to the selection of this ues is enlirely due to the selection of this location for a county seat by the Government. Until last May the sites of Lawton, Anadarko, and Hobart had nothing to distinguish them from the surrounding country, typical Indian lands of wild and absolutely undeveloped prairie. When the sites were fixed upon the nearest railway was thirty miles distant, by the time the lots were staked off and the sales begun, the road had crept ten miles nearer and prices had begun to risc.

It was in May last that Assistant Land Commissioner William A. Richards proceeded to Oklahoma, by direction of the Secretary of the Interior, for the purpose of subdividing the lands ceded to the United States by the Comanche, Klowa, Apache, Wichita, and affiliated tribes of Indians, into three counties and selecting sites for county seats in them. The three counties were named Comanche, Klowa, and Caddo counties, after Indian tribes who ceded the lands—the body of Indians known as the "Wichita and affiliated bands" being composed principally of Caddos. "The other side seems to be out for got in this case, your honor, and we intend to give them all the gore they want," was the opening remark of Mr. Dewees, of Dewces & Dewees, counsel for Lieutenant Commander Robert Burton Rodney, U. S. N., retired, in his answer to show cause why he should not pay alimony to his wife, Margaret E. Rodney, who is suing him for divorce.

Justice Anderson, who is presiding in the equity branch of the Supreme Court of the District, interrupted counsel with the admonition that the courts were not created for the purpose of extracting gore from any one. This incident took place just after the convening of the court. At that time counsel for Mrs. Rodney was not present, and further hearing in the matter was postponed until 11:30 s. m.
As a defence against complying with the order of the court requiring him to per month, Lieutenant Commander Rodney has made two affidavits, which were referred to in the proceedings today. In one of these he says:

"After the misery and wreck which alimony has caused in his home and life by its unhinging of the mind of his thought-less, foolish, young foreign wife, he asks less, foolish, young foreign wife, he asks the court to be considerate with him." He further states that he believes that the granting of alimony in such a case as this would be to turn the institution of alimony into travesty and ridicule.

Mr. Rodney further states in one of these affidavits that his wife is indebted to him for forty-eight days' support, "during her second period of wanton desertion of him from June 23, to August 19." He also suggests that an allowance for this should be credited him in the payment of alimony under the present order of court. He also states that the levy of $45 per month alimony is excessive, intolerable, and burdensome.

Mr. Rodney alleges that he does not receive his pay from the Government in advance, and that "it is a climax of injustice to extort money in advance from a payer who himself can get that identical in ney only at maturity."

1. another affidavit dated yesterday Mr. Rodney states that he has cared for his wife under all circumstances and from July 29 to August 27 last, has paid her $40. He then goes on to say that his wife "is irresponsible with money, of which she has an abnormal greed, merciless and conscienceless, and never pays for anything that can be shirked or blik-
