

ST. PAUL LEADS THE RISE

A Fairly Sensational Advance Made in the Market.

Other Railways Follow in the Upward Trend—Northern and Southern Pacific Strong—General Electric Makes Substantial Gains.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—St. Paul common led the stock market up today in a fairly sensational advance. It has been a matter of comment in technical discussion of stock market affairs for a number of days that St. Paul has been acting in a rather singular fashion. It oftentimes failed to participate in upward movements in the market at large, and indeed this erstwhile leader seemed in danger of falling into general decline. That the stock has by no means lost its influence upon the remainder of the market was disclosed abundantly today, for beyond question its advance was one of the main factors in the rise in prices throughout the list. At the opening of business there seemed to be some disappointment at the absence of any confirmation of yesterday's rumors respecting the Northern Pacific-Great Northern arrangement, but the first price movements showed general gains in contrast with yesterday's final figures.

The market's undertone of strength was not shaken by the explicit but perhaps technical denial that anything of the nature of the Northern Pacific-Great Northern arrangement was contemplated, although in consequence of those denials there was a sharp reactionary movement in the stock market. With the course of the morning the striking upward movement in St. Paul set in, and it was then that the market at large began to display the most pronounced evidences of buoyancy. Very little that was explanatory of the strength of St. Paul came to light, but reports were current that the stockholders would very soon be compensated for their disappointment at the absence of an advance in the dividend rate in September by the issue of valuable stock rights.

There were a number of noteworthy movements in the railway list aside from St. Paul. Northern Pacific and Southern Pacific were exceedingly strong, as was New York Central. Indeed, most of the higher priced shares advanced smartly, notable instances being Rock Island and the higher priced anthracite coal stocks. Among the lower priced issues Southern Railway, Erie, and the Readings were notably firm. There was, however, nothing in the way of a general advance in explanation of these movements. The local traction stocks were inclined to lag behind the remainder of the market, and little of interest transpired in the industrial quarter.

The so-called specialties were firm, with an extremely sharp advance showing in General Electric, nevertheless, there was some disappointment expressed that no definite information was obtainable in regard to the proposed merger of Great Northern matter, the absence of news in that respect had only a negative effect upon the stock market. The list was concerned, its course was evidently dominated almost exclusively by the rise in St. Paul.

The trading was in larger volume than for a long time, and the strong tone of the market was maintained with but little alteration, despite the still somewhat contracted outside market. A favorable influence on this market, sending in a much higher range of prices for American buying, was the fact that a balance over thirty thousand shares of various issues.
