

The Stein-Bloch Double-Breasted Sack

—throws a good figure into strong relief, and bolsters up one where nature has been less liberal. Its general tone is brisk and active, with a fine swing whether buttoned up or wide open. Anybody can wear it and be happier for having it on, if vigor and health count for anything. Materials, fine serges, worsteds and homespuns, the mixed effects predominating. Pure wool fabrics. We don't flirt with "mercerized" cloth.

National Convention of Knights of the Grip

By Associated Press. Savannah, May 13.—The time of the National Convention of the Travelers Protective Association was today occupied with the report of F. W. Crandall, of the National Railroad Committee. The report was devoted to the question of giving increased powers to the inter-state commerce commission, and the association supports President Roosevelt's attitude on the subject.

S. H. Shardwick, general passenger agent of the Southern Railway, addresses the convention tomorrow, telling why the Southern does not give interchangeable mileage.

BRISTOL SCHOOL CLOSSES FOR TERM

EVENT CELEBRATED BY TEACHERS AND FRIENDS WITH A FISH FRY—GENERAL NEWS NOTES.

Special to The Journal. Bristol, May 13.—The Bristol High School closed last week after a very successful term of eight months, with Prof. W. W. Diamond as principal and Miss Clara Griffin and Miss Vanella V. Williams as assistants. While there were no special exercises at the close, the whole term has been characterized by a marked degree of success. Miss Griffin returned to her home at Sneads, while Prof. Diamond will stay with us until June 1st, and Miss Williams will remain and conduct our summer term of school. It is needless to say that they all have the highest esteem of the citizens of Bristol and vicinity.

Miss Mary Mullen, of Marianna, who has been teaching music at the High School will continue with us indefinitely, and also continue teaching music. The school teachers with their friends, concluded to celebrate the close of the school and their departure from Bristol, by engaging in a "fish fry" so on Saturday following the close of the school they engaged teams and drove about six miles south to Micheaux Lake, where they enjoyed picnicking and other sports, but at dinner time it developed that the finny tribe had not willingly succumbed to the seductive wiles of the baited hook, but as the young ladies had provided a bountiful basket dinner, their absence was not much deplored. Much credit is due to Mr. Mounier, who has recently purchased the apary located on the lake shore, for his kindness in providing tables for their use at dinner. A very enjoyable day was spent and all returned highly pleased with the trip.

The parties present were, Mr. Mounier and son, Mrs. W. H. Rankin, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Sheppard and children, the Misses Anna Rankin, Minnie Lee Rankin, Willie Morgan, Nannie McAlley, Maude Roberts, Folsom Solomon, Clara Griffin, and Vanella V. Williams. Messrs. W. W. Diamond, Joe Ed Morgan, Dec Rankin, Alto Rankin, Knowles C. Weiss, John H. Roberts and S. E. Thaggard.

Mr. Alex H. Cooper and children of Columbus Ga., who were former residents of this place, came down on the steamer Gertrude on Sunday night, to visit friends and relatives, and will remain a week or ten days.

We had a fine rain here this week and farmers are very much pleased over the condition of their crops. Liberty county has just completed a fine new court house.

An exciting chase after a negro was witnessed yesterday afternoon, when Officers Benjamin and Burnham ran a negro from the corner of Baylen and Zaragoza streets, to a point in the rear of St. Michael's cemetery. The negro had been fighting with Officer Benjamin went after him. The latter was later joined by Officer Burnham, and both followed the negro until he was lost to view in the rear of the cemetery.

DR. J. D. MOFFATT IS MODERATOR

By Associated Press. Winona Lake, Ind., May 13.—Dr. James D. Moffatt, president of the Washington and Jefferson College at Washington, Penn., was elected moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly this afternoon.

The Bismillah Ceremony. A little Moslem when she is four years four months old goes through the "name of God," or Bismillah, ceremony, which begins her real life. She is dressed in cloth of gold, with a veil and wreath of flowers, and friends are invited to salute the little queen. She sits on a gold cushion, which must be borrowed if she hasn't one, and all the rest sit on the floor. Then an old mollah recites very slowly a certain verse from the Koran, which is also written in saffron on a silver plate Bibi holds in her hand. She runs her fingers over the words and stammers them after him. "Say it now, Bibi. Be a good girl, then you shall see your presents." Soon they all cry: "Shabash! Shabash! Wah! Wah!" and the ceremony of the little girl's first lesson in reading, writing and religion is over. She salutes mamma, then shows her presents to her sabelis (girl friends).—Edmund Russell in Everybody's.

English Prison Pits.

Prison pits were vaults in which criminals in England were kept at night, chained together. There was one at Bristol which was in use as late as 1815. Down eighteen steps, it was only seventeen feet in diameter by nine feet high, and seventeen men were consigned to it every night. Even more typical was Warwick jail pit, which was occupied at least until 1797. It was an octagonal dungeon twenty-one feet in diameter and almost nineteen feet underground. In the middle was a cesspool, and beside it ran a stream of water which served the prisoners for drinking purposes. To this awful cell forty-two men were consigned every afternoon at 3:45, to remain there until after daylight the following morning. The inmates had to sleep on their sides, and their jailer never visited them without guarding himself with an antidote against sickness.

Top and Bottom.

"My friend," said the long haired passenger to the young man in the seat opposite, "to what end has your life work been directed?"

"To both ends," was the reply. "I have the only first class hat and shoe store in the village."

They Were Playing Together.

There is not an empty house in the town and parties are wanting to come in. Evidently some neat tenement buildings could be built and rented very profitably.

The new still and residence of Johnson and Thaggard, our enterprising turpentine firm, are completed at the river landing and the residence is occupied by Dr. E. K. Thaggard, who is a member of the firm.

BEULAH NEWS OF THE WEEK

EVERYBODY WORKING AND HAPPY—SUNDAY SCHOOL FORM.—ED—GENERAL NEWS NOTES.

Special to The Journal. Beulah, May 13.—Everybody is happy and everybody working, for why should we not? The glorious rain we had last Monday put new life into every living thing. Crops of all kinds are looking well and now the ground is moist enough so that we can finish up planting.

Rev. Garrett will preach next Sabbath at the M. E. church. Our Sabbath school has started all right with Mr. Walter Bowman as superintendent. Our literature did not get here in time for last Sunday, but the time was not lost, for after the forming of classes and assignment of teachers the rest of the time was spent in a beautiful song service.

Mr. Thomas Binnett, of the German settlement, was a pleasant caller last Sunday and went to Sabbath school with us. Uncle John Wilson spent part of last week at home.

Mr. George Davis is at home for the present. He was also out to Sabbath school. Last Saturday the families of A. J. Busby, John Hirst and Arthur Spore went to Perdido bay and spent the day fishing and boat riding, and had an old time picnic and fish fry. We caught fish enough for our dinner, but none to take home. That we had a good time and a good dinner goes without saying, thanks to the ladies who had charge of that part of the program, for they surely did well—particularly the young lady who made the coffee.

The families of John Bryant and Will White were fishing on the river the same day and report a good time, with a little excitement caused by the grease catching fire. Mr. Bryant's son, Leve, was slightly burned by hot grease.

Mrs. E. L. Shelby had the misfortune to step on a sharp piece of wood one day last week. The piece was as large as a person's finger and went pretty near through her foot, causing a very painful wound.

There was a plunder party at Mr. A. J. Busby's last Saturday evening and all had a good time playing games and eating the festive peanut. Mr. Otto Wicke, of the German Colony, has opened a store at his place near the clay pit on the hard road west of Mill creek. He is a pleasant gentleman to meet and I hope he will succeed in his venture.

There was a couple married by Rev. Shelby last Sunday at his residence, so I have been told, but did not learn their names.

A Story of Tennyson.

Dante Rossetti used to tell a story of Tennyson, with whom he was walking one sultry summer night through High Holborn. They passed a building brilliantly lighted up and from which issued the sounds of joyous music. "What is that place?" asked the bard. "It is called," replied Rossetti, "the Holborn casino." "I should like to look in," pursued the bard, "only I should be at once surrounded by a crew of groundlings, who would mob and pester and jostle me." "My dear sir," quietly remarked Dante, "if you were to get on one of the tables, announce your name and recite three of your poetic masterpieces into the bargain probably not 2 per cent of the audience would have the slightest idea of who you are."

Three Methods of Derision.

There are very few allusions to storks in Latin authors, but one of these is interesting. The birds have a curious custom of snapping their bills, making quite a sharp noise. Young and old birds, both during and after the breeding season, constantly do this. In the writings of Persius there is a reference to this habit. "There are," he says, "three favorite ways of deriding a man—by putting the hands beside the head like asses' ears, by putting out the tongue like a dog and snapping the fingers against the palm of the hand like a stork's bill." The first two methods of mockery are plain but what was the cause of the last?—Notes and Queries.

The Snake's Tongue.

The snake's tongue proves to be a most remarkable organ. A student finds its chief function is connected with a sense of feeling without touch and may be a finer development of the sense that enables some people to avoid striking obstacles in the dark. The forked tip and the numerous folds behind it greatly increase the surface exposure. The cells of the epidermis are interlaced by a network of extremely fine nerve fibers, which center in a deep nerve plexus beneath the epidermis and extending out into the folds.

Restless Nature.

Nothing in nature is absolutely permanent. Changes are going on slowly, but steadily, every moment, parts of the earth being elevated above the sea, parts sinking below it, the ocean wearing away the coast in one place and building it out in another, and so on to infinity.

Fiction.

"What are you writing, Hawley?" "A story. I'm going in for fiction." "Really? For a magazine?" "No, for my tailor. He wants his money, and I'm telling him I'll send him a check next week."

His Bitter Experience.

"Can't you swallow even a sugar-coated pill?" "No. You see, the blamed thing seems to take its coat off before starting on its trip."
