Bosso's Blessing to Mankind!

$500 for a case of Fever after using.

$500 for a case of Fever it won't cure.

DIRECTIONS.

As a Preventive—Take a teaspoonful every two hours until it acts on the bowels, and then take enough only to keep bowels free.

For Yellow Fever—Take the first bottle in two or three doses within an hour's time. Then take a tablespoonful every hour until the second bottle is used up. Then take one tablespoonful every two hours until the patient has recovered. The medicine may be given with crushed ice. Let patient have plenty of fresh air and dressed as cool as possible. Give plenty of ice water, cold lemonade or soda water in small quantities and permit patient to eat as much desired. Two to three bottles usually effect a cure.

For Other Fevers, Stomach and Bowel Troubles—Take a wineglassful every two hours until system is thoroughly purged, and then take a tablespoonful every two hours until second bottle is used; then take only enough to move bowels freely. The patient may eat anything desired, except in typhoid fever.

For Typhoid Fever and Smallpox—Take medicine as directed for other fevers, but do not allow patient to eat any solid food. Patient should be nourished with broths, soups, toddies, etc., and treatment should be continued seven days after purging.

For Purifying the Blood—Take a wineglassful every two hours until the system is thoroughly purged and then take half a wineglassful two or three times a day. In scrofula and other stubborn diseases the treatment should be continued for two or three months after the patient has apparently been cured.

For Children—The above directions are for ordinary adult cases. For small children and very weak people the dose should be reduced accordingly. Ordinarily, one-half the above dose should be used in such cases.

No Danger—There need be no fear in taking the medicine, as it is perfectly harmless and may be drunk like water. In severe cases one and two bottles have been given at a single dose.
