TRAGIC DEATH OF MISS WEEKS

A Remarkable Career of a Florida Woman and Her Wonderful Achievements.

Regarding the tragic death of Miss Fannie Weeks, the former Florida woman who lost her life at Yellowstone Park last week, as mentioned in The Journal, the Washington Post gives some interesting facts concerning the life of the woman who was formerly a stenographer for Senator Wilkinson Call. Among other things, the Post says:

"Miss Weeks was born in Gainesville, Fla., about 1853. Her parents are dead, but she has living a sister and two brothers—Mrs. Matilda Wade, of Gainesville, Fla.; Mr. Stephen Weeks, of Gainesville, Fla., and Mr. Thomas Weeks, of Fort Myer, Fla., all of whom have been notified of their sister's death. Miss Weeks was educated in New York City, and was for some years a stenographer to Senator Call, of Florida. In May, 1886, she was appointed a superintendent and teacher of Indian schools in Utah. She received her appointment in this city, leaving the capital for what at that time was the most turbulent, thinly settled, and destitute portion of the Western frontier. For six years she lived and taught among the Utes, the White River Indians, and the Uncomphages, learning their language and obtaining an influence over her barbaric pupils little short of astounding.

How to Judge Beer

"CLEAN" TASTE

The absence of a disagreeable foreign or "aftertaste," proving scrupulous cleanliness during the brewing process.

The great majority of beers possess a mondy or musty flavor, which leaves a most disagreeable twang in the mouth of the drinker. This is due solely to lack of cleanliness, many brewers being indifferent to this virtue. In brewing the famous

The most scrupulous cleanliness is exercised over all vessels, pipes or any object with which the beer comes in contact, and every precaution that will conduce to sanitary purity is employed.

TURPENTINE IS ON THE DECLINE

HAS TAKEN A SHORT TUMBLE
WITHIN THE PAST TWO DAYS.

The Savannah News of Tuesday says: The decline in the price of spirits of turpentine, which was foreshadowed in the conditions of Saturday's late trade, came yesterday at the close. The market opened dull and unchanged at 63 1/2 cents, on sales of 305 casks. The undertone of the trade can hardly be considered firm at this price, however, as no demand was in evidence after the close and no sales were made. The receipts were 734 casks and the shipments 209. The New York market was quoted dull at 68 1/2 cents and London was reported at 47.

The rosin market opened firm at prices below, showing an advance of 5 cents on W. G. and H. to D, inclusive, and with OB at outside price. The sales were 2,287 barrels. The close was firm and unchanged and without additional sales. In the late trading most offerings were taken at quotations, though one sale was made at an advance of 2 1/2 cents on N. M. K. and 19 cents on L. The receipts were 2,271 barrels, and the shipments 747. The New York market was quoted at $3.72 1/2.

GOV'R BROWARD DELAYED BY WRECK

The Tallahassee Capital of Sunday says: Governor Broward was among the passengers on the early morning train for Jacksonville. The Governor goes to accompany Mrs. Broward and their daughters home. They have since their return from their Western trip, been at their summer home at Fort George.

The train on which the Governor was a passenger was delayed more than an hour on account of a wreck which occurred about two hundred yards from the Tallahassee station. The east bound train from Quincy colliding with the freight train which was standing on the main track.

The engines were considerably damaged, a colored man had his shoulder broken, he being the only person hurt in the collision.

The Governor and his family will return to the capital Monday.

COMMISSIONERS IN REGULAR SESSION

Met Yesterday, Notwithstanding the Quarantine Regula- tions.

The regular monthly session of the Board of County Commissioners was held yesterday, the meeting convening shortly after 9 o'clock with Chairman Avery presiding and all members present.

Inasmuch as the city members are not allowed to leave the city, and the county members cannot enter, the meeting was held in a hack in the middle of the road on the quarantine line, and was of short duration.

The primary object of the meeting was to audit the accounts, and order the payment of bills approved. This was done, and warrants will be issued today.

The matter of the appointment of a janitor for the court house was considered, having been postponed from a previous meeting. Robert Gonzalez was chosen to fill the vacancy.

Complaints were read from a number of persons, who make a livelihood by selling wood and charcoal in the city, that they had no means now of earning a living, and were suffering for want of food, owing to quarantine restrictions, and they appealed to the board for assistance. The board could render no assistance, or draw upon the county for such a purpose, but a committee consisting of Chairman Avery and Commissioner Sennott was appointed to solicit subscriptions for this purpose. All subscriptions will be turned over to Commissioner Anderson, in whose district these people are located and he and other responsible parties will see that the funds are properly used.

All business possible was postponed by the board, which adjourned after a very short session.

PRIVATE LINES WILL HAVE TO GO

MEMBERS OF CONGRESS AND RAILROADS ARE UNITED ON THIS QUESTION.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Out of the maze of doubt and uncertainty as to railroad legislation in the next Congress, members are becoming more inclined daily to believe that the private car lines at least will have to go. It may be that the Elkins and Aid riches will concede this much to the railroad rate agitators in the hope that it will somewhat serve to satisfy their desires for the passage of a bill along the Esch-Townsend lines. It is even stated that at the interstate commerce commission information has been received from several important railroads that they will not seek to prevent legislation looking towards the abolition of the private car line system.

A Member Talks.

A member of the interstate commerce commission said today, in reference to the recent interview of Commissioner Cookrell, that it would be but right for the railroads to furnish the special facilities, and they ought not to be in a position where they can delegate any part of their duty or responsibility as common carriers to anyone else.

"Many of the railroads," continued he, "are already airing this view of the situation. In the Louisville stock yards case, it was held specifically that such special facilities should be furnished by the railroads. Some of them are already won over to this view, and have given us definite assurance that they will furnish such facilities."

"Two striking examples of this in the west are the Pere Marquette and Michigan Central roads, which tap one of the most important fruit sections of the country."

"The roads have not only assured the commission in writing that they will furnish their own refrigerating cars, but that they will put into effect a rate which to them is a possible one. They only wait until their present contracts expire, and until they can secure the necessary refrigerating car equipment and ice house stations."

Rates Will Be Cheaper.

"The rates which the commission will enforce on these roads and which the roads have already accepted, are 53 per cent cheaper than have been the effect in the past."

"If the next Congress will correct the private car line abuses by either abolishing them or else so controlling them that the commission can get the same reasonable rates for the shippers they are now assured by a stricter enforcement of the laws against common carriers, it will go a great way towards accomplishing all that has been demanded by a suffering shipping public."

In addition to these roads mentioned by the member of the commission quoted above, it is said that the Illinois Central and Chicago Burlington and Quincy roads have taken steps in exactly the same direction, and that in a comparatively short time they will offer as common carriers all the facilities for refrigeration now furnished in their territories by the Armour and other private lines.

TRAGIC DEATH OF MISS WEEKS

"She was of great force and character, and was endowed with extraordinary courage. During the life of the late eighties, the Ute country of the White River reservation, learning that his life was in danger and knowing the influence which Miss Weeks possessed over the Indians, sent for her to come to the post, hoping to ward off the impending danger. The post was surrounded one night by several hundred Utes, determined to have the life of the agent and his family. A band of them managed to gain access to the agent's house and were on the point of entering his bedroom when Miss Weeks appeared and barred the way.

"A parley ensued in which the Indians stated that they had learned that Gen. Crook was soon to establish a garrison in their midst; that they had information that the soldiers were coming to kill the Indians, and that, furthermore, they felt certain that the agent whom they had trusted as a friend, had been responsible. They demanded his blood as the price of treachery. Miss Weeks not only prevented the Indians from carrying out their threat, but she also gained a promise from them that if she produced the agent he would not be molested. Ordering the Indians to be seated, she next threatened to shoot one of her subordinate school teachers who, hid behind the door, was making a great outcry.

Calmed Savage Red Men.

"Having quieted the frightened school mistress, she left the house to reach the agent's room by a roundabout way. It was then that she realized for the first time the extreme gravity of the situation. The house was surrounded on every side by a squadron of mounted Indians. Nothing daunted, however, she aroused the agent, who donned his weapons, determined, if need be, to sell his life at the dearest possible price. Together they returned to the room where the chiefs were waiting. A long talk ensued, in which a promise was agreed upon, and the day following the agent and his men and the Indians rode away to the new garrison where the matter was satisfactorily adjusted.

"Miss Weeks was fond of teaching and was an ideal teacher. In early life she had taught in the West Florida Seminary. When she first went among the Utes conditions were such that she at first felt that she could not stand the work. Once she wrote to Secretary Lamar begging to be removed, but he encouraged her to remain, and by degrees she became greatly attached to her work. Several teachers that had been sent to the Ute country before her arrival had failed and given up their places through fear and cowardice, but Miss Weeks established a rule of iron, soon turning the tables on the Indians, who came in time to fear her instead of her fearing them.

"At the time she arrived in the White River country there were no schools, but by her efforts and the interest which she brought to bear on her work, she by 1892 had built up a fine brick school.

A Most Natural Infatuation.

They had just become engaged. "Herbert," she said, "are you sure that you love me?" "Absolutely," he answered. "How can you tell?" "By the fact that I am anxious to marry you."

A Remarkable Comedy.

The most remarkably comical ever written is "The Visionaries," by Desmarests, the protégé of Michellien. Every character in the play has a hallucination of one kind or another. One is a coward who thinks he has conquered the world, another a poet who conceives himself better than Homer, another a lover who becomes enamored of every heroine he reads of in a romance, another a beggar who thinks himself richer than Croesus.

Grocer Sent Pkg. of Postum and Opened the Eyes of the Family.

A lady writes from Brookline, Mass.:

"A package of Postum Coffee was sent me one day by mistake. I notified the grocer, but finding that there was no coffee (the old kind) for breakfast next morning, I prepared some Postum, following the directions very carefully.

"It was an immediate success in my family, and from that day we have used it constantly, parents and children, too—for my three rosy youngsters are allowed to drink it freely at breakfast and luncheon. They think it delicious, and I would have a mutiny on my hands should I omit the beloved beverage. My husband used to have a very delicate stomach while we were using coffee, but to our surprise his stomach has grown strong and entirely well since we quit coffee and have been on Postum.

"Noting the good effects in my family, I wrote to my sister, who was a coffee toper, and after much persuasion got her to try Postum. She was prejudiced against it at first, but when she presently found that all the ailments that coffee gave her left, she got well quickly, she became and remains a thorough and enthusiastic Postum convert. Her nerves, which had become shattered by the use of coffee, have grown healthy again, and to-day she is a new woman, thanks to Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich., and the "cause why" will be found in the great little book, "The Road to Wellville," which comes in each pkg.

Making Marbles.

Germany maintains a monopoly of making stone marbles in spite of various efforts made to wrest the trade away. In the marble and agate quarries there are innumerable chips and bits of stone from the butting of the large blocks, and this refuse is broken into cubes about the size of a marble. An experienced worker produces these cubes of stone at an incredible speed and with remarkable uniformity. When about a bushel are ready they are dropped between a grooved bedstone and a revolving runner. Water is kept constantly supplied, and in half an hour the stones are turned out perfect spheres. With abundant water power the cost is slight, as a couple of men can keep a dozen stones supplied and the raw material costs nothing at all. In other countries the cost of preparing the blanks sets up the profits, and competition with the German made product is impossible.
