

Our Stein-Bloch Frock

On this high bred coat are lavished the best efforts of the Stein-Bloch master-tailors, for, being unrivaled by pattern or tone, it depends for its quality on pure workmanship. Graceful and patrician, it will give a senator dignity in debate, or a bridegroom confidence before the altar. Made from the finest and softest worsteds and vicunas, especially woven and imported for it. Its price is surprisingly moderate, and should be carefully noted by those who have studied the cost question on merchant tailor quotations.

TERSELY TOLD.

Mobile Register: Mr. W. J. Berry of Pensacola is registered at the Bienville.

Hugh B. Hutton is in the city, having come down from Birmingham to visit his family.

The friends of W. C. Walker, of 706 East Wright street, will regret to learn that he is ill.

Louis E. Jones, who has been spending the past eight months in Washington, has returned to the city and is being greeted by his many friends.

The regular monthly meeting of the City Council is to be held to-morrow night, when several matters of importance to the city are to be discussed.

In announcing the winner of the puzzle prize Sunday morning, The Journal omitted his last name. It should have read Edward Wheat Lorton, as that young man was the successful one.

Dan Murphy is up from the navy yard on a ten days vacation. Mr. Murphy had not been in the city for nearly three months, having been quarantined at the yard during the fever.

Advertising copy for The Journal's Thanksgiving Edition which is to be issued next Sunday should be got in to-day or to-morrow. Copy reaching the office after to-morrow night cannot be guaranteed for insertion.

President Roosevelt's "self creed" for young men is: "Self-respect, self-restraint, self-reliance." Want advertising often creates self-reliance; self-respect is its inevitable sequel; and self-restraint is the sanity which crowns all.

Leslie E. Brooks yesterday received from the Pope Manufacturing Co. a fine automobile, which he purchased recently on his trip to New York. The machine is now being tested by the owner, and will be used by him in his visits about the city. It is one of the handsomest machines yet seen here.

The Journal welcomes back to his post Dudley C. Barrow, one of its regular city collectors, who has been away in Alabama and Georgia for some weeks. During his absence Dudley did not forget his attachment to The Journal, and as a result of his work several subscriptions were added to its growing list.

J. Clarke Porter arrived last week from the north, but left yesterday for Selma, Ala., where he is to-day on business. Mr. Porter expects to receive this week a fine blooded driving animal which he purchased while in Kentucky. The horse is said to have a record and some fast time is expected when Mr. Porter gets the animal in training.

MUST RESPECT ENLISTED MEN

Chaplain Jones, U. S. N. Tells of Secretary Bonaparte's Recent Order.

Chaplain Harry W. Jones, D. D., of the United States navy, lectures at the Windsor auditorium Tuesday night on his experiences off Santiago during the war with Spain, arrived in Jacksonville yesterday, and is registered at the Windsor, says the Jacksonville Times-Union. Dr. Jones came here direct from Norfolk, where he is stationed on the receiving ship Franklin.

In speaking of recent happenings in naval circles, Chaplain Jones spoke interestingly of the last order of Secretary Bonaparte, regarding the social standing of enlisted men, and the treatment that must be accorded them. In this order Secretary Bonaparte took the position that the uniform of an enlisted man in the United States navy must be respected and courteous treatment accorded its wearer.

"The incident that gave rise to the order," said Dr. Jones, "occurred at Berkeley, Va. A young enlisted man telephoned to a machinist there for rooms and board for himself and wife. The machinist thinking it was a petty officer applying for the accommodations, readily granted the request. When the young man appeared, however, and it was seen that he was only an enlisted man, the machinist declined to rent the rooms to him.

"This action was reported by the young man to his commanding officer who in turn reported it to the commandant of the station, Admiral Harrington. The latter officer reported the incident at once to Secretary Bonaparte, and he, not waiting even to write an official order, telegraphed Admiral Harrington to dismiss the machinist from the navy yard force at once and stated his determination to have the uniform of the navy respected and honored everywhere.

"In fact," continued Chaplain Jones, "the old feeling against the enlisted men is rapidly dying out. A better class of young fellows is enlisting, and instead of men recruited from the more worthless classes we are drawing from the farm boys and boys of good home-training. This alone has tended to steadily decrease the feeling between the men and the officers, and the order of Secretary Bonaparte will greatly aid in wiping out the slight feeling that nearly one-half of the enlisted men on the U. S. S. Gallic are regular church communicants is a sufficient indication of the class that is now enlisting."

Appealed to Prince Louis.
In speaking of the visit of Admiral Prince Louis of Battenburg to this country, Chaplain Jones told of an amusing incident that occurred at the sailors' banquet in New York. The enlisted men made up the sum of $10,000 to tender a banquet to the sailors of the British fleet, which both Admiral Prince Louis and staff attended. Admiral Evans was compelled to leave the banquet hall somewhat early, and when the men desired to secure an extension of their leave of absence from ship duty he could not be reached.

Without any hesitation, the men applied to the English Admiral for an extension of leave on the ground that "twelve hours was not sufficient time in which to eat all the oysters." The Prince took the responsibility of extending the time, allowed the men, and at the conclusion of the banquet the entire gathering went to Coney Island and took possession of the attractions there.

A FINE NIGHT-CAP

The Best Thing in the World to go to Bed and an SLEEP ON.

"My wife and I find that 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and a cup of hot milk, or some cream, with it, makes the finest night-cap in the world," says an Allegheny, Pa., man.

"We go to sleep as soon as we strike the bed, and slumber like babies till rising time in the morning. It is about 3 years now since we began to use Grape-Nuts food, and we always have it for breakfast and before retiring and sometimes for lunch. I was so sick from what the doctors called acute indigestion and brain fog before I began to use Grape-Nuts that I could neither eat, sleep nor work with any comfort. I was afflicted at the same time with the most intense pains, accompanied by a racking headache and backache, every time I tried to eat anything. Notwithstanding an unusual pressure from my profession, I was compelled for a time to give up my work altogether.

"Then I put myself on a diet of Grape-Nuts and cream alone, with an occasional cup of Postum Food Coffee as a runner-up, and sometimes a little dry toast. I assure you that in less than a week I felt like a new man—I had gained 6 pounds in weight, could sleep well and think well.

SWITCHMAN WAS KILLED THIS MORNING

Sandy Williams Run Over and Badly Mangled Above the City.

Sandy Williams, colored, employed by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad as switchman, was killed this morning about 3 o'clock, at a point opposite King's dairy. The body was dably mangled, the legs and arms being almost completely severed.

It was stated this morning by parties who were on the two trains that Williams was sitting on the track waiting to throw the switch for one train when another came from the north. He did hear the noise of the engine and was run over and ground to pieces.

City Physician Pierpont and others in the city received the report that one man had been killed and several injured. The city physician left at once for the scene in the patrol wagon, but upon his arrival found that his services were not needed, the man being dead, while none others had been injured as stated.

BIG MILL FOR THE TOWN OF ALAVESTA

Special to The Journal.
Marianna, Nov. 20.—Mr. T. D. Sale of Anderson, Fla., is a guest at the Chipola. Mrs. Sale and children have been here for some time.

Mr. Sale is one of the firm of the Sale, Davis Co., which recently bought the interests of Mr. E. L. Vickers in the Vickers-Sale Turpentine Co. Mr. Sale, speaking of improvements to be made, says his company will build a large double mill at the new town, Alavesta, where the B. C. & St. A. railroad touches the bay. Mr. Sale has the mill of the Green-Gay Lumber Co. at Gay, and is having a large barge built to move the mill across the bay to Grassy Point, where it will be used to cut timber for the large mill they expect to build in addition to the small mill in operation, by January or February.

In addition to building a manufacturing plant costing nearly two hundred thousand dollars the company will install an ice plant. These improvements will add materially to the value of property along the bay shore and give employment to about 700 men.

When the new railroad is completed to this point the new industries will make a town of considerable importance.

Birmingham Jews Contribute.
Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 20.—At an enthusiastic meeting Sunday K'nesseth Israel congregation (orthodox) raised $820 for the Russian fund. This swells the total amount raised in Birmingham to $2,800. Rabbi M. Newfield notified Treasurer Schiff this afternoon that Birmingham would raise $3,000 for the fund.

Death of Willie Pons.
Willie Pons, who has served for many years as harnessmaker with John Thompson, died this morning after a lingering illness. The deceased had many friends in the city and his death will be greatly regretted.

Fashions in Beards.
English history is rich in examples of the way in which fashion in beards has changed from time to time. The spies sent out by Harold reported that the Norman invaders "did almost seem to be priests, because they had all their face and both lips shaven," which is confirmed in the Bayeux tapestry. It was to distinguish themselves from their hated conquerors that the English wore their hair long. Stow speaks of long hair as well as beards in Henry I's reign. "Men contended with women in their long haire, and when this decayed through old age they knit about their heads certain rolls and braiddings of false hair." The monk Wulstan described the practice of wearing the hair long as "immoral, criminal and beastly." When one of his long haired flock knelt for his blessing, it is said that he would whip out a knife and cut off as many of the tresses that lay under his consecrating hand as he could manage in the rather limited time at his disposal.

London and New York.
The contrast between society in London and New York is not so great as many suppose. There are more low dresses and diamond tiaras in London and more smart, tidy women in New York; more beards in London and more clean shaven chins in Manhattan. There are larger hotels in New York and bigger shops; there are red pillar boxes in London and smaller gray ones in the city on the island. But these things are small details. In the main both cities are much alike, and the men and women behave in much the same way. We have no streets to compare with Fifth avenue, and they have no park to compare with Regent's park and no Westminster abbey! But we drive out and dine out just the same, we eat and think and dress and read just the same, or anyway so much alike we seem like one big family party, which is just as it should be.—London Black and White.

OFFICER FIRED AT FLEEING NEGRO

Latter Was Endeavoring to Secure Bricks When Shots Were Fired.

Two shots about 10 o'clock last night, near the corner of Tarragona and Garden streets, caused considerable excitement in that vicinity, and also caused many persons who heard the reports to wonder what had occurred.

The shots were fired by Officer W. C. Ward at a negro, whom he had arrested in the negro dance hall, known as Russell's hall, but neither of the bullets took effect and the man, whose name was not known at the time, soon made his escape.

The negro, who was one of those in attendance upon a colored ball, is alleged to have acted in a very disorderly manner and the officer was called and placed him under arrest. When at the bottom of the stairway the negro gave the officer a shove and ran, the latter following him.

The negro after getting some distance away stopped as if to pick up a brick and as he did Officer Ward fired one shot at him. The negro turned and fled, but again stopped and stooped to the ground, when the officer fired another shot. The man did not tarry longer, but turned and fled.

A large crowd was attracted by the shooting, and the police arrested four negroes only one of whom however, was connected with the affair. He was taken into custody for opposing an officer by refusing to give the name of the disorderly man.

Protest Against Massacres.
Rome, Nov. 20.—Two well attended meetings, one of university students and the other of Jews, were held here Sunday to protest against the massacres of Jews in Russia. At both meetings resolutions were passed to send "salutations to the martyrs of the autochry" and praying for public liberty in Russia. Many energetic speeches were made.

WILL ASK GRAND JURY TO ACT

Mrs. F. M. Turner Will Be Held Pending the Action of That Body.

It is very probable that the killing of F. M. Turner, Jr., some weeks since by his wife, will receive some consideration at the hands of the next grand jury of this county. In fact the father of the young man, Rev. F. M. Turner, who formerly resided in this city, will ask that an investigation be made by the jury.

The case of Mrs. Turner, who was held on the charge of manslaughter, was to have been tried in the criminal court at the present term, but yesterday it was continued when the case was called.

Rev. Mr. Turner, who is an evangelist, reached the city yesterday morning to be present if the trial should occur, but it was postponed and when the grand jury convenes he will go before that body and produce additional evidence. He stated last night that he had some important evidence regarding the death of his son. The new evidence, it is understood, is in the shape of affidavits made by parties who were acquainted with both Mr. and Mrs. Turner.

The father of the deceased young man left last night for Selma, but will return when the grand jury meets and produce what evidence he has in his possession.

DREW THEIR OWN WILLS.

Eminent Legal Lights Who Did So and Blundered.

Many celebrated men have neglected to settle their affairs. Ben Jonson, Dryden and Sir Isaac Newton all died intestate, Bacon insolvent, and the epigram on Butler's monument in Westminster abbey sufficiently explains why he and many others like him never made a will.

The poet's fate is here in emblem shown. He asks for bread, and he receives a stone.

"Wills," said Lord Coke, "and the construction of them do more to perplex a man than any other, and to make a certain construction of them exceedeth jurisprudentia's artium." An old proverb says that every man is either a fool or a physician at forty. Sir H. Harlow happening one day to quote the saying to a circle of friends, Canning humorously inquired, "Sir Henry, mayn't he be both?" At any rate, experience teaches that lawyers who draw their own wills sometimes make great mistakes. Sir Samuel Romilly's will was improperly worded, Chief Baron Thompson's will became the subject of chancery proceedings, while the will of Bradley, the eminent conveyancer, was actually set aside by Lord Thurlow.—London Standard.

FOREIGN ETIQUETTE.

Some Things Harmless Here Would Be Bad Far Abroad.

There are some points of foreign etiquette which are absolutely inexplicable to the British mind, and, indeed, it is very doubtful whether the nations to which they are peculiar can themselves offer any explanation. Why, for instance, is it bad form if you visit a Frenchman in his own room to lay your hat on the bed? The fact remains that it is universally considered the worst of manners.

Again, in Germany, if you are walking in the garden with a lady and it occurs to you to pick a dower for her acceptance, be careful to pluck also a leaf or two to make the nosegay complete. Failure to do so is an insult, for which you may possibly be called to account by her nearest male relative.

If you are unexpectedly asked to stay to a meal in an Englishman's house you would not think twice of using his hairbrushes nor be of lending them. But in Hungary such a thing is impossible. To ask for the loan of a hairbrush in a Hungarian house is an unspeakable barbarism, and if it were not known that you erred from sheer ignorance would bring down upon you a most insulting response or possibly a challenge.—London Mail.

MARINE LEAPERS.

The Tuna Is the Most Graceful of the Jumpers of the Sea.

Many of the inhabitants of the sea are good jumpers and some have become famous. Among them should be mentioned the tarpon or silver king, a huge fish with scales that gleam like silver, which constitutes the famous game fish of Florida. The leaps of this beautiful creature are often astonishing. Several years ago a steamer was rushing down the St. Johns river. The captain was sitting on the fore deck, leaning against the pilot house, when suddenly there rose in the air a beautiful shining fish four feet in length. It came on like an arrow and landed in the lap of the captain as neatly as though it had been placed there.

In the Pacific waters the tuna, an ally of the horse mackerel, is noted for its leaps. Sometimes a school sweeps up the coast and the powerful fish, often weighing 800 pounds, are seen in the air in every direction. They are like an arrow, turn gracefully five or six feet in the air and come down, keeping the water for acres in a foam, and if not the greatest jumpers they are certainly the most graceful of the leapers of the sea.

OLD PEOPLE CONSTANT SUFFERERS IN WINTER

Most old people are great sufferers in winter. They are seldom free from pains or ailments of some description, because they are not as able to withstand the severity of the climate, with its damp, changing weather, as are their younger, more vigorous companions. Cold weather starts the old aches and pains; they suffer with chilly sensations, cold extremities, poor appetite and digestion, nervousness, sleeplessness and other afflictions peculiar to old age. With advancing years the strength and vitality of the system begin to decline. The heart action is weak and irregular, the blood becomes thin and sluggish in its circulation, and often some old blood taint that has lain dormant in the system for years begins to manifest itself. A wart or pimple becomes a troublesome sore or ulcer, skin diseases break out, or the slight rheumatic pains felt in younger days now cause sleepless nights and hours of agony. There is no reason why old age should not be healthy and free from disease if the blood is kept pure and the system strong, and this can be done with S. S. S. It is a medicine that is especially adapted to old people, because it is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks, selected for their purifying, healing and building-up properties, and is very mild and gentle in its action. S. S. S. warms and reinvigorates the sluggish blood so that it moves with more rapidity, and clears it of all impurities and poisons. As this rich, healthy stream circulates through the body every part of the system is built up, the appetite and digestion improve, the heart action increases and the diseases and discomforts of old age pass away. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Skin Diseases, Sores and Ulcers, and all troubles arising from diseased blood.
