TERSELY TOLD.

Dr. T. J. Welch has returned to the city. Dr. C. L. Smith has returned home from Atlanta, where he has been for some months. W. J. Rawls, of Dothan, Ala., is in the city and will remain here for several days on business. P. K. Nielson of the quarantine station, was in the city yesterday for the first time in over three months. S. Morasso left last night for Gulfport, where he will remain for several days on a business trip. Felix Conrad Gonzalez, accompanied by his mother, left on the noon train yesterday for different points in Alabama. The Rathbone Sisters will hold a meeting Wednesday night, November 29, at 7:30 p. m., at which officers will be nominated. B. Frank of Montgomery, proprietor of one of the large wholesale clothing houses of that city, was here yesterday on a short business visit. Mrs. W. P. Brownson and three handsome children, who have been spending the past three months in the country, have returned to the city, are at the home of Mrs. Frank Johnson, No. 18 East Wright street. Rev. W. S. Wade, presiding elder of the Pensacola District, will preach at the Gadsden Street Methodist church tonight. Everybody cordially invited to attend. Sam B. Flynn, who has recently been connected with the United States commissioner's office, left last night for New Orleans, where he will visit relatives for a week or more. Rev. W. S. Wade, presiding elder of the Pensacola district, will reach at the Palafox Methodist church today at 11 o'clock. The quarterly conference will be held there Monday. Prof. Jas. H. Finch, of the Muscogee schools, was in Pensacola yesterday. Prof. Finch is a regular reader of The Journal and he says Muscogee people could hardly get along without the paper now. Philip Grosskopf, who was ill for several weeks in New Orleans, later being brought to his home in this city, is now convalescent. His brother, Charles, who underwent a surgical operation at the Davidson Infirmary at Birmingham recently, is said to be rapidly recovering. J. T. Dixon, of the staff of the Live Oak Democrat, is in the city en route home after a short vacation spent in Mobile. Mr. Dixon will spend a day or two in Pensacola before resuming his work at Live Oak. He is greatly impressed with the Deep Water City and particularly with Pensacola harbor. The kind you want—Blue Ribbon Lemon or Vanilla Extract. Absolutely pure, zests twice as far and the flavor is perfect. Say Blue Ribbon Vanilla and say it plain.

ENDORSEMENT OF BILL IS DESIRED

A. R. Smith, Commissioner of the Merchant Marine League of the United States Will Meet With Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday.

IS MAKING TRIP TO RING PORTS AND INTERESTING COMMERCIAL BODIES, MANY OF WHICH HAVE PASSED RESOLUTIONS ENDORSING MERCHANT MARINE BILL.

A. R. Smith, commissioner of the Merchant Marine League of the United States, was a visitor in the city yesterday. He came to Pensacola for the purpose of conferring with the officers of the Chamber of Commerce with a view to securing the endorsement of the Chamber of the bill proposed by the Merchant Marine Commission of Congress, of which Senator Mallory is a member, and which it will be remembered held a session in this city about a year ago. The report of this commission was unanimous on all points but one, and that is the subvention of $5.00 per gross registered ton for each vessel which has been engaged in the foreign trade by sea or the deep sea fisheries for the period of twelve months. Three members of the commission oppose this feature on constitutional grounds. These dissenting members are Senator Mallory of Florida, Representative Slight of Mississippi and Representative McDearman of New Jersey. They suggest in lieu of the provision objected to that the government go back to its early policy of discriminating duties against imports transported in other than American bottoms, under which system American shipping thrived in the halcyon days of the long ago. In conversation with a representative of The Journal on yesterday, Mr. Smith expressed it as his opinion, representing the organization, that the interests of the country, that this policy would be non-effective now, for the reason that more than two-thirds of our imports are on non-admittable merchandise. In addition to this objection is another serious obstacle in the way of the successful operation of the plan proposed by the minority of the commission, i. e., it would require the abrogation of thirty odd commercial treaties now in operation. Summarizing the features of the bill recommended by the commission Mr. Smith stated its provision in the following terse terms: First, it provides for a national naval reserve of 20,000. Secondly, it makes provision for the establishment of ten new steamship lines, three from Atlantic ports, four from Gulf ports and three from Pacific ports. The Gulf steamers are to ply between the Gulf ports and Brazil, Cuba, Central America and Mexico, respectively. The Atlantic steamers are to run to Africa, Brazil, Argentine Republic and Uruguay, respectively; the Pacific lines are to operate between the United States and Japan, China and the Philippines, one line monthly and another fortnightly. The third line is to be to Mexico, Central America and the Isthmus of Panama. The service from the Gulf ports to Brazil is to be monthly; to Cuba, semi-weekly; to Central America and Mexico, semi-weekly. The third feature is a substantial increase in tonnage taxes levied on foreign vessels. The fourth feature provides a bounty of $5 per gross registered ton per year for vessels built or registered in the United States, such bounty, however, being limited to a life of ten years. According to Mr. Smith, the subsidies to be paid the steamship lines provided for will not be a burden on the government for the reason that the receipts of ocean postage are figured at $2,500,000 a year more than the cost. Mr. Smith regards the bill as a most important one, in fact an invaluable measure of national defense, since it would foster a merchant marine that would afford a number of American men-of-war in event of any disturbance. And on this point, he quoted Thomas Jefferson, then Secretary of State, who, in 1793, in a report to Congress said: "Our navigation involves still higher considerations. As a branch of industry it is valuable, but as a resource of defense essential. Its value, as a branch of industry, is enhanced by the dependence of so many other branches on it. In times of general peace it multiplies competitors for employment in transportation, and so keeps that at its proper level; and in times of war—that is to say, when those nations who may be our principal carriers, shall be at war with each other, if we have not within ourselves the means of transportation, our produce must be exported in belligerent vessels, at the increased expense of war freight and insurance, and the articles which will not bear that must perish on our hands. "But it is a resource of defense that our navigation will admit neither neglect nor forbearance. The position and circumstances of the United States leave them nothing to fear on their land board, and nothing to desire beyond their present rights. But on their seaboard they are open to injury, and they have there, too, a commerce which must be protected. This can only be done by possessing a respectable body of citizen seamen, and of artisans and establishments in readiness for shipbuilding."

Mr. Smith came to Pensacola from New Orleans and Mobile, where he addressed the commercial bodies of those cities and secured the passage of strong resolutions petitioning the Senators and Representatives in Congress from the states of Texas, Louisiana and Alabama, to support the bill reported by the commission when it comes up in the next congress.

Mr. Smith expressed the conviction that the passage of the bill is assured if the south will do its part in its support; that the south would benefit enormously by its operation and would develop into a shipbuilding section, having the most abundant and cheapest material—lumber and steel right at its doors. In anticipation of the passage of the bill several million dollars have been subscribed for the establishment of a shipbuilding plant at Alabama Point in Mobile bay, and with Pensacola's very superior advantages over any other port on the gulf, there is every reason to believe that capital would seek investment in a similar enterprise here.

A meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held at noon on Tuesday, when resolutions will be introduced endorsing the bill and it is hoped that all owners of vessel property in Pensacola who are interested in the measure will attend the meeting and give their views, whether they are members of the organization or not.

MANY EXHIBITS AT STATE FAIR

Special to The Journal. Tampa, Nov. 25.—Your correspondent is at the great State Fair of Florida. He has exhibited at many state fairs in the central, northern and western states but has never before exhibited at a fair showing such quantities of varied products and such extravagance in arrangements and decorations, some counties using 40 by 200 feet of floor space and their exhibits extending 20 feet high. One county alone is spending $1,000 for decorations and using over 300 colored electric lights. Some counties are spending $3,000 to $4,000 on their exhibits. They have piled up car loads of oranges and other citrus fruits in every conceivable and attractive shape, car loads of agricultural products, wagon loads of the finest vegetables of all kinds and many other things that few people believed were raised in the state. Fourteen counties make large exhibits and twenty-three counties are represented. The stock department astonishes everybody. Long lines of stables house horses, mules and cattle of all breeds, hogs, sheep and goats. Cattle weighing as high as 2,300 pounds each and hogs 940 pounds each are exhibited.

Hon. W. A. Bryan, the commissioner, and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Chandler, of Chipley, are here in charge of the Washington county exhibit. The exhibit is very unique and different from anything else in the buildings and attracts a great deal of attention.
