and remember the next time you suffer from pain—caused by damp weather—when your head nearly bursts from neuralgia—try Ballard's Snow Liniment. It will cure you. A prominent business man of Hempstead, Texas, writes: "I have used your liniment. Previous to using it I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism and Neuralgia. I am pleased to say that I am now free from these complaints. I am sure I owe this to your liniment." Sold by all druggists.

Oil Upon the Troubled Waters.

Lady—All your marine pictures represent the sea as calm. Why don't you paint a storm once in awhile? Artist—We painters in oil can't paint a storm. I have often outlined a storm on the canvas, but as soon as I begin to spread on the oil colors the waves subside and the sea becomes as calm as a duck pond.—Punch.

Peterman's Roach Food.

A Boon to Housekeepers.

ROACH FOOD DID IT

The most improved method to free a house of large or small roaches is to use the contents of a box of Peterman's Roach Food at one time. Shake it on joints so some of it will penetrate and remain to keep the premises continuously free. Roaches eat it as food; it is the most destructive remedy on this earth to them, and it will not scatter them to other places to live and multiply.

BEDBUGS—Peterman's Discovery (quick-silver)—Bedbugs take it up in the circulation when going over where it is brushed on lightly. It is invaluable if brushed on beds when apart, and on back of picture frames, moldings, etc. It will not rust or harm furniture or bedding. Odorless and not poisonous.

"Peterman's Discovery" (liquid) in flexible, handy cans for cracks, walls, mattresses, etc. Odorless, non-explosive.

"Peterman's Ant Food"—A strong powder to kill and drive away ants, also water beetle or black beetles in one night.

"Peterman's Rat-Mouse Food" makes rats or mice wild; they will leave and not return. Take no other, as time up, let even more important than money.

Originated in 1878. Perfected in 1895 by Wm. Peterman, Mfg. Chemist, 34, 55, 56 West 12th St., New York City. London, Eng., Montreal, P. Q.

IMPORTANCE OF THE DOG IN BELGIUM

The Canine Police of Ghent Are a Strong Factor in the Suppression of Crime.

The Canine Police of Ghent Are a Strong Factor in the Suppression of Crime—The Work They Do and the Way They Are Trained For It.

Every one is familiar with the important part which the dog plays in the domestic economy of Belgium. Anything and everything which falls to the part of donkey or horse in other lands is done willingly and cheerfully by these little creatures. But their use as servants does not stop with these ordinary duties, which can be performed by animals of no high intelligence. The Belgian dog has become a recognized member of the police force, and since his entry into this field of action crime in the particular districts which are patrolled by him is said to have diminished two-thirds.

This fact needs some explanation. Ghent is not only pierced by canals, but is surrounded by rich farms and land as well as by luxuriant market and horticultural gardens. The city does a large trade in flowers and bulbs. The dock loaders and floating population that shipping always brings are tempted to innumerable petty thefts, while the extent of the gardens and fields and the isolation of some of the farms make it extremely difficult for the authorities to cope with them single handed. In the hope of checking crime and robbery the chief commissioner of police obtained the services of dogs. He most carefully arranged every detail of their training, which is done entirely by kindness, and it is satisfactory to know that any member of the force would be instantly dismissed for striking a dog.

The methods used in training the dogs demand the utmost patience. Dummy figures are used, made as near as possible to represent the thieves and dangerous persons they may be likely to meet. The dog is taught to seek, to attack, to seize, to hold, but without hurting seriously. The first step is to place the dummy in such a position that it will resemble a man seeking to conceal himself. The dog soon understands that it is an enemy whom he must hunt and enters into this part of his lesson with delight, but it is more difficult to teach him that he must not hurt him. The teacher lowers the figure to the ground, and the dog learns that, though he may not worry his prey, he must not allow his prostrate foe to move a finger until the order is given. After this dummy, a living model is used, and as this process is not without danger, the person usually chosen for this part is one who takes care of the dog and for whom he has a lively affection. But at the same time he is prevented at first from showing too much zeal by wearing a muzzle. Afterward the experiment is tried on other members of the force, and in four months the dog's education as a policeman is considered complete, and he takes his place with the rest. The animals are also taught to swim and to seize their prey in the water, to save life from drowning, to scale steel walls and to overcome all artificial obstacles.

Most of these dogs are sheep dogs, but besides the Belgian there are also the Russian and the Brié dogs. During the day they take their rest in comfortable, loose boxes attached to the head station of police. But at 10 o'clock their duties begin, and the last stroke of the hour has no more than sounded before they set up a chorus of deafening barks, as if to show their eagerness to get to work. They are on duty till 6 the next morning, but do not seem fatigued by their long hours.

It is necessary that these hardworking animals should be well fed, and their menu for the day would not be refused by any hungry man. It consists of soup, meat, rice and bread, the last being the best Kneipp bread. They have a hearty meal twice a day as well as a biscuit and a slice of bread before starting on their night's round. Their uniform consists of a leather collar strongly bonded with steel and armed with sharp points, to repel any attack from their victims. From this collar hangs a medal which bears the dog's name and address as well as the date of his birth.

Should the dog be lost or detained this medal serves to identify him. In place of a helmet he wears a fine wire muzzle, which will allow him to drink, but not to eat. This is to prevent him from being poisoned. It is fairly loose and is attached by elastic bands which allow it to be instantly stretched off the head. In their quarters there is a dressing room, where each dog has a peg placed beneath his name and from which hang the collar, muzzle, chain, etc., which belong to him. They have their private medical man, who keeps a close watch on their health.—New York Herald.

Heart and Lung Trouble

Mrs. Mary Horn-Lockwood, who could not lie down on account of coughing and smothering spells is restored to strength and health by Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. "After doctors and medicine failed to help me, Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey saved my life, and I never felt stronger or better than I do today." The grateful lady writes:

"It gives me pleasure to have you use my photograph and testimonial in behalf of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which saved my life when two of the best doctors had given me up to die, and declared that no medicine could help me. I was taking Duffy's at the time, and kept right on, as I had great faith in its wonderful curative powers. I had lung trouble and a weak heart, and for six months was unable to lie down at night on account of coughing and smothering spells. I was reduced to ninety pounds, and was going into consumption. The impression of both my friends and the doctors being that I could not live. Despite their opinion, I gave up medicine, and after taking four bottles of Duffy's my condition was greatly improved. This was in the Fall, and I continued the use of your grand medicine all winter, the result being that by Spring I weighed 125 pounds, and after taking twenty bottles my health was fully restored and I never felt stronger or better in my life. I advised a number of friends who had throat and lung trouble to take Duffy's, and it never failed to cure them."—MRS. MARY HORN-LOCKWOOD, 18 River Avenue, Indianapolis.
