Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Several months after the town of Amarillo voted in favor of closing the saloons, a paper signed by a large number of the leading business men and officials was given publicity, in which it was unequivocally stated that the signers were of the opinion that the licensed saloon "was in every way preferable for the prosperity of a growing town or city." In conclusion, the signed statement says: "We would advise any sister community to avoid the local option proposition as they would the plague. None of the signers hereto are in any way interested in the liquor traffic, and some even voted for local option at the last election; wet towns get the money, dry towns get the drunks."

The authority for this statement can be verified by addressing any of the leading men of Amarillo. The names in detail will be furnished if desired.

Weatherford.
 E. Putman, ex-mayor of Weatherford, Texas, who is in the transfer business, after one year of prohibition in Weatherford, writes a letter addressed: "To whom it may concern:" in which he says: "Local option has not decreased my business as much as others, from the fact that I am kept busy moving families and business people out of Weatherford. I have moved more families out of Weatherford since the 5th day of June, 1902, the day that prohibition went into effect in Parker county, than I did in twelve years before."

Mr. Putman also says: "I notice city warrants have depreciated 10 per cent, and some means must be adopted to raise a revenue in place of that derived from the saloons. Juvenile drinking has increased, and adult drinking has not fallen off. Any person of any age can have any kind of

 The coat shown in the above illustration is simple and elegant, and is especially adapted for motoring, rainy days or traveling. The back has a seam down the centre which is concealed by a strap of the material stitched at each side. The front is made loose and full. It closes on the left side, giving it the double-breasted effect, and fits close about the neck, though it is collarless. At both sides of the front straps are used, reaching across bretelle-shaped pieces, and join the sleeves, which are made large and full.

PROHIBITION IS A CURSE IN TEXAS

During the past few weeks a great deal has been said pro and con relative to the effects of prohibition upon temperance and general prosperity, and in this connection a review of the experience of several Texas communities, as detailed by prominent men residing at the places in question, will prove of value.

Amarillo.
 Several months after the town of Amarillo voted in favor of closing the saloons, a paper signed by a large number of the leading business men and officials was given publicity, in which it was unequivocally stated that the signers were of the opinion that the licensed saloon "was in every way preferable for the prosperity of a growing town or city." Other Cities.
 Chas. B. Lewis, mayor of Ennis, Texas, after observing the effects of local option, condemns it in the most unmeasured terms, as does also H. E. Pickett, mayor of Waxahachie.

A statement made by E. M. Tate, editor of the Daily News and Weekly Echo, in Hopkins county, confirms all of the above with reference to conditions which exist there, and is more emphatic, if anything, in his statement as to the evils of prohibition.

R. H. Henderson, for many years U. S. Revenue Collector, describes local option as "a great calamity."

Phil. H. Foscue, cashier of the First National Bank, Sulphur Springs, says prohibition is "an unmitigated curse, and breeder of drunkenness."

Hundreds of other good business men in other portions of Texas condemn prohibition strongly, and over their own signature state the detrimental results as they have experienced them. Among these may be mentioned the following:

E. W. Bounds, Colorado, Texas.
 A. B. Robertson, President Colorado National Bank, Colorado, Tex.
 Dr. W. F. Gibson, Livingston, Texas.
 J. E. McCarty, Attorney, Dublin, Texas.

W. L. Beckman and twenty others, Greenville, Texas.
 J. P. Groves, mayor, and twenty-one others, Groesbeck, Texas.
 W. E. Doyle, mayor, and thirty others, Mexia, Texas.

Good Show Turns Away People.
 The ever popular Jewell Kelly Stock Company opened at the Opera House last night in "In the Shadow of the Guillotine," a story dealing in French intrigue.

"In the Shadow of the Guillotine" is a melodrama of the pronounced type, and one that from the rise of the curtain through the five acts, held the attention and won the frequent and hearty applause of the audience. It was richly and appropriately costumed and well staged.

The company, headed by Mr. Jewell Kelly in the heroic part of "Victor Loraunt," is exceptionally well balanced and away above the average stock or repertoire company, both in appearance and acting. To say the company as a whole was decidedly good would be putting it mildly. The individual members of the cast are finished performers, many of whom have played here before and well known in Pensacola.

liquor shipped in; our youth are taking advantage of it."
 A general statement signed by the leading business men of Weatherford confirms Mr. Putman in every particular.

Collin County.
 The county of Collin has always been considered one of the best in Texas, and the town of McKinney was noted for its thrift and progressive-ness. When local option went into effect, its business became paralyzed, and it seemed stricken with a blight. The express agent says that the amount of stimulants shipped in is positively astonishing, and the farmers either go to Dallas or Sherman with their products. The same condition exists in Plano.

A signed statement from leading men of McKinney confirms the above in every particular.

Waxahachie.
 In a few months after prohibition there were 31 brick business buildings empty. The express companies were bringing in from $75 to $100 worth of liquor a day in jugs and bottles. The salaries of the mayor and aldermen had to be reduced on account of the reduction of revenue, and a policy of discharging officials and general retrenchment most detrimental to the interests of the city was inaugurated. The county of Ellis, from being one of the most prosperous in the state, is now in a financial condition worse than it has been for many years, which is largely due to the evil effects of prohibition. Eight months after the success of prohibition, the mayor of Waxahachie, Mr. N. J. Ross, issued a statement in which he confirmed the above in every particular, giving names and figures. Among other things he says: "Our laboring classes of citizens have suffered perhaps most by local option. Over one-half of the mechanics of the city are absent at Dallas or Fort Worth to secure employment. I have not the time at my disposal to see all of our property owners of stores for rent, but the foregoing statement will suffice to convince the most persistent prohibition advocate of how prohibition has affected this city. Local option only closes the open saloons and causes young men (and old men) to keep whiskey in their rooms; local option has prohibited the legal sale of it here, but I question whether or not it has lessened its use. I trust that your people will defeat this obnoxious law at the polls on election day."

The specialties between the acts were all very good, and particular mention should be made of Rodgers and Marvin—the comedy duo—a laugh from their entrance to their exit, and also Miss Cressie Canada, a petite and altogether charming singing comedienne, who captured the house.

Miss Rodgers, who sang the illustrated songs, was very good also. She has a clear contralto voice and was compelled to respond to a number of encores.

The attendance was the largest, it is said, ever known at the Opera House. The "standing room only" sign was displayed shortly after eight o'clock, and Manager Smith was compelled to turn away nearly two hundred people who desired admission.

guerte," the wife of "Loraunt," was very good, as was also the work of Miss Cressie Canada, the vivacious "Florette." The bulk of the praise, however, belongs to Miss Anna C. Marvin as "Bridgett Doyle." Her interpretation of this character—a good natured, Irish amazon—was superb, and won for her hearty applause all through the production.

Mr. Wilson R. Todd as the "Count Lamar" was quite diabolical, and the "goods" rejoiced in his ultimate downfall. Mr. Edwin R. Rodgers in the character of "Sergeant Casey" made good from the first and was well received by his old friends.

Mr. Chas. Kendall as the "Duke De Borester" portrayed the part of a scheming and dissolute old nobleman to perfection.
