THE WEEK'S EVENTS

SATURDAY.

Meeting of the Browning club, hostess Mrs. Boucher, at No. 17 East Brainerd street.

HER ANSWER.

A Miss in our town had an offer to marry—
Jack Phelps was the man who proposed—
But she begged that a week for his answer he'd tarry,
And so was the interview closed.

This cautious girl went to see each married sister:
She'd four—were they happy, or how?

The first had a husband who she wished had missed her,
Divorce was her only hope now.

The second, who once on a time was a belle,
Had children—the number was three;

She did her own work, kept at home, one could tell,
Never danced, or saw plays, no, not she!

A third didn't dare say her life was her own,
When her head-tempered man was around;

And the fourth, of a lazy mate making her moan,
Supported them both, she'd be bound!

The maiden goes home, there to sit down and think;
For the best way to put it she seeks;

Then writes with firm hand, in the blackest of ink,
"Dear Jack, I'll be yours in five weeks."

PROF. SEEL GAVE FINE CONCERT FOR

BENEFIT OF THE SISTERS.
Prof. Henry Seel gave a fine concert on Thursday night at the armory hall for the benefit of the Sisters of Mercy, the evening having been one of unusual pleasure among the music lovers who had assembled for the treat. Beside the 12-piece orchestra, several very creditable solo selections were played, and Miss Baker also added to the interest of the evening by rendering a fine soprano solo. After the program, supper and light refreshments were served by the ladies.

AT THE SALVATION ARMY LAST NIGHT.

The Rev. Mr. E. C. Moore spoke last night at the Salvation Army hall, a large and very appreciative audience having been present. Mr. Moore, who is in charge of the Gadsden Street M. E. church, is among the local ministers who have received much richly deserved praise for assisting Adjutant Grimshaw in his present campaign of saving souls. His address last night was a particularly strong one, and contained many telling and conclusive points.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

This is a simple recipe for a cleansing cream: Oil of sweet almonds, four ounces; orange flower water, four ounces; white wax, two ounces.

"Running in place" stimulates the liver and the circulation of the blood and reduces superfluous flesh. This is simply the ordinary running step taken in one spot, with hands on hips and head well up, counting "one, two, one two," a given number of times.

The best thing to make the eyes clear and bright is good health. Indigestion, dyspepsia and biliousness cloud the whites of the eye, tinging what should be a clear white into a murky yellow. Don't use eye-washes or eye brighteners, but keep the blood pure, the whole system in good tone, and the eyes will become strong and sparkling and clear, unless there is some real eye trouble.

If the modern beauty keeps a small bottle of olive oil in her bathroom closet, and rubs a little of it well into the pores opened by the hot bath, she will never have that dry, harsh feeling of the skin, nor the horrid, pricking sensation, of which so many persons complain after the use of not water for any length of time. Not only will the skin grow soft and smooth under such treatment, but the oil acts as a tonic to the general health, especially if one is inclined to general debility.

If a child's finger and the nails are properly cared for from infancy the fingers will be a pretty shape and the danger of ingrowing toe nails and other ailments of the feet will be lessened. The finger nails should always be filed and not cut. Filing the nails will keep them thin and delicate. The nails should be trimmed in an oval shape, and if the fingers are inclined to be blunt this will often make them taper more. It is no wise to make the child nervous and cross by manhandling the nails for half an hour, for all that is necessary is to keep the nails clean and filed and the skin around the nails loose and pushed back. The toe nails may be cut, although the best method is to file them with a nail file or an emery stick.

Foley's Kidney Remedy will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. Cures backache and irregularities that if neglected might result in Bright's disease or diabetes. W. A. D'Alemberte, druggist and apothecary, 121 South Palafox Street.

ARE YOU COMING?

CHILDREN'S DRESS AIDS.

It is the little things of life that decide the big ones. Every one remembers that once a kingdom was lost "all for the want of a horseshoe nail." So it is with children's dress—or with any one's dress, for the matter of that. No matter how well made, how up-to-date and how tasteful coats and frocks may be, it is the little things, the accessories, that really decide one's claims to stylishness.

Of first importance in the little child's wardrobe are the accessories that keep out the cold and wind and rain of autumn and winter. Much easier to wear and much warmer than most fall coats are sweaters. For less than a dollar they are sold in large shops in good serviceable colors: Navy blue, crimson, gray with red facing and cuffs and even a good shade of green are suitable for cool days and wear to better advantage than the whites and pinks and blues so dainty and attractive for summer use.

Even in the first cool days the small child should be taught to wear gloves. For many a case of chapped hands and many a cough and cold acquired early in the fall has proved troublesome all through the winter. But since it is almost as important not to overheat the hands as not to chill them, don't insist on woolen gloves until the temperature really demands them. Some children, indeed, whose skin is unusually sensitive, ought never to wear woolen gloves unless they are lined with silk. Stout dogskin gloves wear well and are not expensive, especially when the roughened and cold mixtures that make unnecessary are taken into account.

Of even greater importance than warm hands are warm feet. For children that strenuously object to rubbers, galoshes are a boon. Those that fasten with two or three clasps

TRAINED HORSES AT TRI-CO. FAIR

MADAM MARANTETTE AND HER SOCIETY HORSES WILL BE ONE OF THE FEATURES NEXT WEEK.

In preparation for the exhibition of Madam Marantette and her Society Horses at the Tri-County Fair next week a broad and suitable roadway has been made by the management in front of the grand stand. Electricians have been at work, trying to make arrangements that all may be as bright as day for the night show.

"I am positive," writes a News-Scimitar (Memphis) man, "that nothing can eclipse the really remarkable and incomparable display given on the track by the magnificent Arabian horses, Chief and Sun Flower, well described as 'the beautiful equines with human brains.'" No better illustration of the truth of this assertion need be desired than to see them put through their paces at the fair.

To Madam Marantette must be accorded the brilliant success which has attended the breaking in of several famous horses, though it is with Chief and Sun Flower we are most directly concerned, and in her own accomplished horsemanship alive, an expert in every meaning of the word. Madam is justly proud of her achievements in and out of the saddle; her daring and skill are universally acknowledged, and in her own particular line she stands without a rival.

The reader will easily believe the aforesaid assertion, after witnessing her performance with St. Patrick, the imported Irish thoroughbred jumping horse, who holds the world's record for high jumps over bars 7 feet 10 1/2 inches in height. St. Patrick has, within the last week, beaten his own record four different times, making a jump of eight feet flat.

In addition to St. Patrick is Flibmaker, Jr., a Kentucky thoroughbred, and the marvelous South African pony, Kruger, who holds the world's record for jumping, 12 hands high.

It goes without saying that the horses and the Madam will be the leading feature of the Tri-County Fair, as they have been at the great state fairs where they have played during the past two seasons.
