

LIFE SAVING CORPS WILL BEGIN WORK

MEMBERS OF VOLUNTEER CORPS WILL MEET MONDAY NIGHT AT THE Y. M. C. A. TO BEGIN TAKING INSTRUCTIONS.

Monday night at 7 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. the work of the Volunteer Life Saving Corps, which has been organized to do service at Bayview Park during the approaching bathing season, will begin work. A meeting will be held at this time for the purpose of beginning what is known as the first aid course, this course consisting of regular lessons and instructions, covering a period of ten weeks.

In this course the members are given instructions as to methods to be employed in cases of persons about to drown, showing how to rescue and revive them; what to do in cases of fainting, snake bite, and, in fact, what to do in all cases of emergency when a physician is not available. The feature of the work alone is worth much to those who take the course.

A national examination is held in June and the members of this class will take the examination when it is given. A. Langford, who is the president of the life saving corps, urges all who are contemplating applying for membership in the corps to attend the meeting Monday night in order not to miss any of the instructions, which are so important, especially to those who have not had experience in this line before. Seventeen years are eligible for membership.

The corps has already been organized with a strong membership and many of those who will belong to the organization this summer were members last summer and got the benefit of the instructions given at that time, as well as a good deal of practical experience.

While the work of these young men is entirely gratuitous and voluntary on their part, they will establish regular watches, so that the people who visit Bayview Park this summer for bathing purposes will have the protection of the corps at all times, which will add a great deal, no doubt, to the popularity of the already popular resort.

MERIT IN MEDICINE.

The continued success of a medicine depends entirely upon its merit. For nearly forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been demonstrating its worth among women, as the greatest of all remedies for female ills, and the tremendous volume of letters on file in the Pinkham Laboratory, at Lynn, Mass., from grateful women in all parts of the United States and Canada, are ample proof of its merit.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a good, old fashioned remedy and enormous quantities of roots and herbs are used every year in making it the standard remedy for female ills.

As a Spring Medicine Hood's is King

"For all the troubles I have had Hood's Sarsaparilla surely is the king. I have taken it at different times in the past three years when I have suffered from catarrh and stomach troubles, and have always found it a grand medicine. My stomach is very much better than it was, and as a spring medicine, too, I know that no one can do any better than to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. My husband and I have reason to recommend it cordially, and we also think very highly of Hood's Pills, which we always intend to keep in the house." Mrs. E. R. Plummer, 387 Union Ave., Laconia, N. H.

Thousands of intelligent and economical men and women have come to know by experience the great value of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and to regard it as "common sense" to use this proprietary medicine in many diseases and ailments.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is made by a peculiar combination, proportion and process, giving it peculiar curative power. Roots, barks and herbs that are great specifics, and are gathered at the seasons of the year when their medicinal juices are most abundant in them, and that are properly cured, are its most prominent and effective ingredients.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has accomplished more radical and permanent cures of scrofula, eczema, rheumatism and other blood diseases, and of low or run-down conditions of the system than any other medicine we know of. It is agreeable, effective and economical.

Reply to Bonnie Burnham's Story on Woman's Suffrage

By NELLIE M. JERAULD.

It seems to me that some one should "rise up and speak in meekness" and come to the defense of our sisters and reply to Miss Burnham's article on Woman Suffrage.

If a "person of male persuasion" had written that article I am sure that Bonnie Burnham would have been very indignant and would have wielded her pen vigorously.

First she says it is not practical because women are not able to eliminate personalities. As it is possible that women as a class are so narrow, so small of mind, that they cannot face the issues of the day regardless of petty personalities? Evidently Miss Burnham is writing of the "lady of society," but to most of them this is not just. It is unthinkable that the majority of women would not be able to eliminate personalities from politics, that they would not vote for the husband of the woman who had snubbed her socially, "even if he stood for the very best of all moral standards."

An intellectual, broad-minded, cultured woman pays no attention to a snub, for she knows that a true lady never snubs.

But "ladies of society" are very few in number when compared to the working women. The latter are in the great majority and the woman working for a living has no time for snobbery. Her time is filled earning her daily bread.

Doing Double Duty. And then Bonnie says that she does not believe "that the woman-mind" was ever constructed, as a class, to take care of the home and the nation's affairs at the same time, thus doing double duty.

But the "woman-mind" evidently is constructed to be a wage earner and to take care of the home, for she does take care of the home and the nation's affairs at the same time, thus doing double duty.

A woman in the textile mills was talking to a man of suffrage and he said, "You shouldn't mix up with politics; your place is at home." The woman looked at the man with steady eyes and replied, "Then why don't the Harmony mills pay my husband enough to keep me there?"

The man walked away. Oh, yes, woman should be the homemaker, the fond mother and loving wife! That may have been the original intention, but I doubt it, but what opportunity has the mill hand, the factory worker, the school teacher or business woman to fulfill these wifely and maternal duties?

They are forced to maintain life, and because they are women they are forced to accept a lower wage.

Many Wage Earners. Industrial evolution has driven woman out from home; it has compelled her to take her place by the side of man as a wage earner.

Did you know, Bonnie, that there are six million women fighting life's battle as wage earners?

Yes, cold, hard, dry statistics give this as the actual number forced to the daily grind of mill, factory and store.

Daily these women are confronted by laws which they have had no part in making and are compelled to submit to conditions which they have no power to control. They literally have no weapon with which to fight.

Every law is made by man and when in the past woman has petitioned for laws which would in some measure aid her, she has either met with no response or with an evasive promise that in her blindness and credulity she believed. But she has learned to distinguish sound from things and found that the voice was that of Jacob while the hands were those of Esau, and when she learned this then she started to help herself.

As I said before, every law was made by man and some of the industrial laws are iniquitous and the ballot is the working woman's only remedy.

The suffrage question is not a question of right nor of justice. It is a need, and it is an economic question, for women, having been forced to leave the home and go into industry, are lowering wages, crowding men out of positions and creating fiercer and yet fiercer competition for jobs. And because women are more tractable and will work for less wages than men the manufacturers, wherever possible, put the women at the machines in preference to men.

Hurts Men's Chances. Men must compete for jobs with this army of underpaid women, and so this competition becomes more tense every year.

Where does the "home" come in under these conditions? You say, Bonnie, that you are a property owner and then go on to say that you are a woman and "not in it."

But you are "in it." As a property owner you are a tax payer. Does it make any difference to you how much taxes you have to pay? And do you want to know why these taxes have to be paid?

While I was living in Atlanta "the powers that be" decided to issue bonds for certain civic improvements and the matter was to be put to a vote. Now this bond issue would increase the amount of taxes very materially and some of the heaviest property owners were women and naturally they thought they should have something to say regarding this issue of bonds, so they drew up a petition and presented it to the mayor and board of aldermen. This petition stated the reasons why they, the property owners, should vote. The committee of ladies was received with half-concealed smiles, the petition listened to and then laid on the table. The newspapers mentioned the incident in a humorous and half-sarcastic vein, and that was the end of it.

Now just suppose those women had refused to pay the added tax. Those women property owners had to pay taxes the same as the men. Did they have a moral right to say whether these bonds should be issued? A woman should understand the law, for if she is a law-breaker, knowingly or in ignorance, she must pay the penalty, and if she must be governed by law, should she not have a word to say regarding the making of that law?

Not Logic. No, Bonnie, I don't like your "logic," for it is not logic.

If every man was a good, loving

POLITICS AT MYRTLE GROVE

CANDIDATES ARE INVITED TO SPEAK THERE NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT—THAT PRECINCT IS PRACTICALLY SOLID FOR WOODROW WILSON FOR PRESIDENT.

J. W. Boyett, of Myrtle Grove, was in Pensacola yesterday and announced that the people of his precinct were making arrangements for a big political meeting there next Friday night, April 12. "Everything will be free," said Mr. Boyett. "There will be no graft of any kind permitted. What we want is to hear the candidates speak and we invite all of them to come." Mr. Boyett says the greatest interest in the campaign is in the county candidates, but that people are also now waking up on the presidential nomination fight and he is satisfied that Woodrow Wilson will carry his precinct by a large vote.
