

From the Democratic Review.
AND FRELINGHUYSEN.
Clay and Frelinghuysen relate we may term ultra Whiggery. He is unquestionably a splendid orator; he is a man of power over the man with himself. He is ambitious, but not in the mean sense; he is bold, daring, but incapable of appreciating general principles, and of seeing the relation between their causes, when these are not near at hand. Yet he is not inconsistent, disturbed in his mind, and can defend with firmness and without the least hesitation every body but himself with a political fallacy, or a logical refute him, demonstrate the moral certainty that his proposition is false, confront him with figures, and he stands unflinching of what you have said. His proposition in a re-asserts it with growing force, and pours forth the full tide of his sunnive eloquence in its You stand aghast. What can you do? His insensibility con-fuses you, and you almost begin to doubt your own demonstration against him as certain as the demonstration in Euclid.
To the right and wrong, he maintains a singular self-possession.
He is not disturbed by being confronted with moral insensibility than of his absurdity. He sees no difficulty in determining right and wrong, and in drawing the parallels of latitude, and in drawing to be right on one side and wrong on the other.
He is a man of rare abilities, but apparently of both moral and intellectual, who finds no difficulty in standing, when necessary to his cause, the eternal laws both of logic and of nature, and therefore a man whom the most needs be the most dangerous to be placed at the head of a movement it is possible to conceive.
He is not a man who would do anything that he would not do. Not a few even of the Whigs feel that he is an unsafe man; and manufacturers themselves supporting with fear and trembling; the Whigs has denounced more occasions than one, and reproaches him with faint praise.
Frelinghuysen is quite a different man while agreeing with Mr. Clay on measures to which Mr.
Frelinghuysen stands pledged, he represents other elements of the Whig party which still more evil, it possibly be apprehended. Mr. Fre-linghuysen is not only a Whig in the name of the term, but he is also a personification of narrow-mindedness, conceited pigotry—a man who attacks religious liberty, defends the unhallowed union of Church and State, and contends that the Government should legally recognize the religious majority, and declare what is counter to that to be contra bonos.
He concentrates in himself the spirit of 'Native Americanism' and 'Whiggery,' which displayed itself in the recent burning of the dwellings, seminaries, and in the city of Philadelphia.

every way worthy of your confidence, and who will not fail, if elected, to reward your exertions by an able, and what is of vital importance, an honest administration of the government.
You have, in addition to all this, in nomination for the second office, a citizen of your own State, whose name was not only most honorably associated with the earlier struggles of the Democracy of Pennsylvania, long before his own entrance into public life, but who has himself, also, on many and trying occasions, been made a depository of her confidence—one who has not less by his public services, than by the ingenuousness of his nature, and the numerous good qualities that adorn his character, who the kind regards of all will know him, whether they agree with him in politics or not.
Reciprocating most sincerely, gentleman, your friendly solicitude for my future happiness, I am, your friend, M. VAN BUREN.

MR. POLK'S ACCEPTANCE OF THE NOMINATION.
We present below says the Boston Post, from the manuscript copies in our possession, the correspondence between the committee of the Democratic National Convention and its nominee for the Presidency, the Hon. James K. Polk.
His reply is short and appropriate.— It will be seen that if chosen, he is determined not to be a candidate for a second term.
BALTIMORE, May, 29, 1844.
Sir—At a Democratic National Convention a Committee to request your acceptance of the nomination thus unanimously tendered to you; and they cannot forbear to express the high gratification which they experience in the performance of the duty, and the hope which they confidently entertain, in common with their colleagues of the Convention, that the devotion to the cause of Democratic principles which has always characterized your conduct, will not suffer you to turn a deaf ear to the call of our country, when, in a manner so honorable to yourself, she demands your distinguished services.
With the utmost respect and esteem, We have the honor to be your obedient servants,
HENRY HUBBARD,
WILLIAM H. ROANE,
BENJ. H. BREWSTER,
ROMULUS M. SAUNDERS,
ROBERT RANTOUL, JR., Committee of the Democratic National Convention at Baltimore.
Hon. J. K. Polk, Columbia, Tennessee.
COLUMBIA, Tenn., June 12, 1844 Gentlemen—I have had the honor to receive your letter of the 29th ultimo, informing me that the Democratic National Convention then assembled at Baltimore, had designated me to be the candidate of the Democratic party for President of the United States, and that I had been unanimously nominated for that office.
It has been well observed, that the office of President of the U. States should neither be sought nor declined. I have never sought it, nor shall I feel at liberty to decline it, if conferred upon me by the voluntary suffrages of my fellow citizens. In acceptance of the nomination, I am deeply impressed with the distinguished honor which has been conferred upon me by my republican friends, and am duly sensible of the great and highly responsibilities which must ever devolve on any citizen who may be called to fill the high station of President of the U. States.
I deem the present to be a proper occasion to declare, that if the nomination made by the Convention shall be confirmed by the people, and result in my election, I shall enter upon the discharge of the high and solemn duties of the office with the settled purpose of not becoming a candidate for re-election. In the event of my election, it shall be my constant aim, by a strict adherence to the old Republican landmarks, to maintain and preserve the public prosperity, and at the end of four years, I am resolved to retire to private life. In assuming this position, I feel that I not only impose on myself a salutary restraint, but that I take the most effective means in my power of enabling the Democratic party to make a free selection of a successor who may be best calculated to give effect to their will, and guard all the interests of our beloved country.
With great respect,
I have the honor to be,
Your obedient servant,
JAMES K. POLK.

H. Roane, Benjamin H. Brewster, toul, Jr., Committee of the Democratic National Convention at Baltimore.

GREAT REACTION IN FAVOR OF WHIGGERY.
The N. Y. Courier and Enquirer, sneering at the conversions to Democracy, sets them at naught, and puts them to shame, by shewing the other side of the picture. That paper says:—
"Gen. Thomas Edwards, of Bridgeport, Ct., who has for many years been a prominent member of the locofoco party, and who was their candidate a few years since, has come out for Clay and Fre-linghuysen. Alfred Edwards, his son, heretofore known as a successful locofoco orator, is now on a tour thro' the State, using his influence for the Whig cause."
The Journal of Commerce, in reference to this statement says "there is some fun in the world yet, even in politics"—and by way of letting out the joke explains that
"Gen. Thomas Edwards, of Bridgeport, Ct." is an old negro man, and "Alfred Edwards his son" is a negro simpleton who amuses the mass meetings of boys by spelling words, in which he raises such utter rebellion against the spelling book, that the archbishops cheer him right merrily.
STANZAS.
BY HENRY W. LONGFELLOW.
I know a maiden fair to see,
Take care!
She can both false and friendly be;
Beware! Beware!
Trust her not!
She is fooling thee!
She has two eyes so soft and brown,
Take care!
She gives a side glance and looks down, Beware! Beware!
Trust her not!
She is fooling thee!
She has a bosom white as snow,
Take care!
She knows how much it is best to show,
Beware! Beware!
Trust her not!
She is fooling thee!
She weaves thee a garland woven fair,
Take care!
It is a fool's cap for thee to wear, Beware! Beware!
Trust her not!
She is fooling thee!
ANSWER.
So you think me fair to see!
My heart, take care!
'Tis ever true, nor false can be!
Then why beware!
Believe me,
I'm not fooling thee!
And if my eyes are "soft and brown," Why take care!
'Tis your own fault, if you are not Believe me,
I'm not fooling thee!
My hair I know 'tis of "sunny hue," But why take care!
My smiles are sunny too, for you—
Then why beware!
Believe me,
I'm not fooling thee!
"She has a bosom white as snow," O flattery rare!
And if I do know 'how much to show,'
Why cry beware!
Believe me,
I'm not fooling thee!
"The flowers," I know were very fair,
But why take care!
You need not fear their sweets to share, There's nothing false or fickle there,
Then why beware!
Believe me,
I'm not fooling thee!
GRACE.

PROPOSALS
For Publishing in the town of Macon Noxubee County, Mississippi, a Democratic Newspaper, to be entitled the
JEFFERSONIAN
The importance of establishing a Democratic press in every part of the country, to advocate and uphold our principles, and to keep present to the minds of the people the political subjects that agitate the country, as well as also to keep them advised at an early day upon all important news, both Foreign and Domestic, is so freely admitted that we deem it unnecessary to rehearse any of the advantages and benefits accruing from it. Suffice it to say that the intelligence of the people, is the basis upon which rest the permanency of our Government, and the prosperity of our Republic; and that the press is the only efficient means to be employed in that general diffusion of knowledge, necessary to enable every man to cast his vote according to the best interests of his country, and prepare him to guard the cherished principles of Democracy against every encroachment of Federal power and monopoly. The crisis has now come when every man is awakened to the consideration of a correct exercise of that sovereign right by which we will shortly elevate one of our citizens to the office of Chief Magistrate of the nation; and that this right may be the more correctly exercised, the principles of each candidate before the people must be well weighed, and their effect upon the country, if adopted, duly considered. To this great end, that the people may have all the advantages to be derived from the light of more full information upon the political questions of the day, and of the bearings they may have upon the welfare of the country, and also the different views of the candidates upon these questions, we propose to publish a Democratic Journal at Macon, which will be ardent and uncompromising in the support of the principles of Democracy, and will advocate the election of JAMES K. POLK and GEO.
M. DALLAS.
Fully aware of the arduous undertaking, and of the responsibility devolving upon us, we will enter upon the duties determined to leave nothing undone that would recommend our Journal to the Democracy of Noxubee, and hoping that they will come unreservedly to our aid, we will issue the first number of our paper on Thursday, the 4th day of July, Macon, Miss., June 24th, 1844.
Terms:—The Jeffersonian will be issued every Thursday morning, upon a Super-Royal sheet, and forwarded to subscribers at Three Dollars per annum, in advance.

GREAT MEETING AT AMHERST.
There was a great Democratic gathering, amounting to about 1000, at Amherst, Mass., on the 4th ultimo. Addresses were delivered; and the right spirit prevailed among the hardy yea-manly present. The Baltimore nominations were received with cheers and high satisfaction.
The Federalists called a meeting at the same place, a few days previous, to respond to their nominations, but they only mustered twelve men.
