It is public sentiment that makes cowards of us all and yet there is not one man in ten thousand who has any correct idea what public sentiment really is. This is the reason we are all the time having legislation and conducting the government, both county and state, upon what the people do not know instead of what their representatives do know. It is this everlasting craze to bow down, worship and follow public sentiment without regard to whether the sentiment is informed or misinformed; without any regard to whether the sentiment is right or wrong, which constantly clogging our legal machinery with cowards and incompetent men; which has resulted in filling our statute books with adorable laws and has created a most deplorable situation. How can we have intelligent country and state legislation and good government unless, those upon whom the mantle of responsibility falls discontinued to publicly denounce our laws, to compromise with crime in this duty; but steadfastly and fearlessly, announce, administer and execute the law as written, awaiting result in the regular methods prescribed by legal procedure, a heart stone, in unison with the cry of the public, but with the intelligence and consistency discharge a known written duty. Public sentiment often times looks upon a proposition for public good with fear and trembling, which when once thrust upon them they first endure then embrace.—Carthaginian

MAN WHO SLEPT FOR LIVING

Peculiar Occupation of Englishman as Disclosed in Advertisement Printed in 1711.

To sleep for one's living may appeal to some as a more attractive alternative than to work for one's living. But the feat has been achieved.

In the Daily Courant of August 9, 1771, the following advertisement appears: "Nicholas Hart, who slept last year in St. Bartholomew's hospital, intends to sleep this year at the Cock and Bottle in Little Britain." Some further particulars of this professional somnolent are found in the Spectator for October 1 of that year. It appears that Hart was every year seized with a periodical fit of sleeping, which began on August 5 and ended on the eleventh. Its various stages are thus described:

"On the 1st of that month he grew dull; on the 2d, appeared drowsy; on the 3d, fell a-yawning; on the 4th, began to nod; on the 5th, dropped asleep; on the 6th, was heard to snore; on the 7th, turned himself in his bed; on the 8th, recovered his former posture; on the 9th, fell a-stretching; on the 10th, about midnight, awaked; on the 11th, in the morning, called for a little small beer." This performance, it is asserted, gained for Hart "enough to support himself for a twelvemonth."

ONLY THREE PRIMARY COLORS

Union of Red, Yellow and Blue Give Birth to All Varieties of Tints.

Red, yellow and blue are the three elementary colors whose union gives birth to all the varieties that delight our eyes. We have an illustration of this in one of nature's most beautiful phenomena, the rainbow. It is composed of seven colors, in which we distinguish the red, yellow and blue in all their purity.

Life is unproductive until the three united in one bring all things to perfection. Plants will blossom into a bright passion of life under the influence of the red and yellow rays, but no fruit appears without the added power of the blue ray. The red is the calorific, or heating principle; yellow, the luminous or light-giving principle; while in the blue we have the power of actinism, or chemical action.

COMEDY OF KISSES.

A bit of comedy came into a dull London court the other day, a comedy of kisses. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Alexander, in Aldgate, keep lodgers. One of these lodgers bears a striking resemblance to Mr. Alexander. Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Shrimpsky are next-door neighbors, and Mrs. S., said counsel for the plaintiffs, had told other neighbors that she had seen the lodger kissing Mrs. Alexander in the kitchen at midnight. Not only that, but Mrs. S., who was of a musical turn, gave vent to her feelings in song. One of these songs, sung in her back yard in a very loud voice, was: "Oh! father, if you don't come home I'll run away with the lodger." Mrs. A. and the lodger both gave evidence denying the kissing. The jury found for the plaintiffs, with £5 damages for Mrs. A. and 1 farthing damages for Mr. A., not half enough for a mug of ale.

HALLOW'EEN AT PLUNKVILLE.

"Now, Mose, if you takes part in the apple-lobbin' contest tonight I wants you to do so with some refinement."

"Who, me?"

"Yes, and not swaller no apples at a single swaller."—Courier-Journal.

REASONABLE RESULT.

"Why does Talkit get so heated when he makes a speech?"

"I suppose it is because it is generally full of hot air."

AS THEY LOOKED.

"How does that man write his pork quotations?"

"From his copy, it looks as though he might write them with pigpens."

REAL CAUSE.

History Teacher—What happened to Charles I.?

Pupil—He found his way blocked, so he lost his head.

NATURAL SUGGESTION.

"Jiggers has a continual itch for for office."

"That is why they are always scratching him on the ticket."

When the Sun Will Die. It may be said unqualifiedly that the sun, like every other thing connected with the present order, will finally cease to be what it is today. The time will most surely come when the sun will have ceased to throw off light and heat. Long before that happens however, the earth and other planets will have become "dead worlds," like the moon—no life of any sort upon them. It has been calculated that the sun will cease to throw out its heat somewhere about seven million of years from now.

Brave Girl Captured Convict. A girl postal clerk named Meier of Lichtenau, in Baden, Germany, is the heroine of an exciting chase after a convict who escaped while being taken to prison. When the man escaped from his guards, the girl, who is twenty-two years old, seized a stout stick belonging to one of the guards, mounted her bicycle, and followed the man. After a chase of half a mile the man sank to the ground exhausted and surrendered to the girl, who handed him over to the warders.
