It was S. S. Cox, who declared that if the force could be utilized which is wasted by the cows of the country in switching their tails we could have power enough to run the world's machinery.

The American Agriculturist in its annual review of the harvest to be published in the forth coming September issue, puts the farm profits at $1,000,000,000 more this year in the United States than they have been during the recent years of depression.

Mr. JULIUS RUNGE, of Galveston, one of the largest cotton men of the South, takes a hopeful view of the cotton situation. He says that while the cotton crop is large there is no over production beyond the world's demand, and that prices may yet advance.

FRED DOUGLASS, after he was politely notified that he was not wanted has sent in his resignation as minister to Hayti. The ex-minister says that he intends to devote the rest of his days to promote the welfare of his race. He has had enough of politics.

ANNIE PETERSON, but eight years old arrived in New York Monday, after traveling unattended all the way from Stockholm. A tag around her neck contained directions in English, German and Norwegian, to forward the little one to Chicago.

EIGHT members of the Georgia legislature, whose names are not given, are charged with having offered to sell their votes to Pat Calhoun, the defeated candidate for Senator, last fall. Resolutions ordering an investigation have been introduced.

The President is said to be greatly annoyed at the declared hostility to him of Senators Cameron and Quay, and their pronounced support of Mr. Blaine, as the most available of the Republicans who offer themselves or are spoken of for the nomination of that party for President.

A TRAMP detected at Fort Jarvis, N. Y., the other day, in the act of attaching to the tracks of a railroad car, a novel contrivance for stealing a ride, volunteered the information that, seated on the contrivance, he had journeyed over 1500 miles. It was constructed something on the order of a swing.

Mrs. Helen M. Gougar, the Iowa prohibitionist, has announced that she proposes to make an October and follow McKinley all over the country, and answer all high protective tariff arguments he makes. She proposes to preach low tariff and high wages all through the campaign.

It is now conceded that Roswell P. Flower will be the democratic candidate for governor of New York. It is Mr. Flower's special distinction that he was chairman of the democratic congressional committee last year when the republican party was overthrown in the congressional elections.

The Pennsylvania State Republican Convention met at Harrisburg on the 19th inst. 204 delegates only were present. A platform was adopted and Blaine practically endorsed for the Presidency although after considerable discussion the question was postponed. Nominations were made for Auditor General and State Treasurer.

A CHICAGO man has come forward with a novel World's Fair suggestion. Instead of trying to build some lofty structure, he says, the thing to do is to dig the deepest hole in the ground on record, say ten miles deep. Besides the mineral bonanzas that might be struck, a great many geological problems would be solved, and a lot of money could be made by rigging the shaft with an elevator and taking passengers to the bottom.

THERE is a split in the Yalobusha Democracy. A dispatch from Coffeeville says: "Because of the arbitrary ruling of the county executive committee a majority of members being for George. The Barksdale men declined to participate in the primary election, allowing the George supporters to do all the voting. The total vote cast was 543, out of a registered vote in the county of 2105. The Barksdale men will hold an election later and assert they will beat George two to one."

The important question of the admission to the big show of '93 seems to be practically settled. Fifty cents will be demanded from every person entering the gates, but the money once paid, the visitor will be entitled to see every thing on the grounds. There will be no side shows, no paying for the permission of being allowed to pay for seeing something to encourage the people who are desirous of bringing exhibits from great distance and at great expense. Licenses will be granted for the selling of goods. It will be possible to buy an ivory back scratcher from a Chinaman or to have one fashioned by a genuine Bedouin at a fair price, but it will cost nothing extra to see anything.

In Memoriam.

Mrs. Rebecca A. Anderson, wife of D. M. Anderson died Aug. 11th, 1891, at her home near Phoenix, Yazoo County, Miss.

The deceased was a humble and consistent christian woman, a faithful and loving wife and a fond affectionate and self-sacrificing parent. Her life was a bright example of deep toned piety, and her exalted christian character lent an inspiration to all by whom she was surrounded. She was never pretensions, but always constant, ever ready with helping hands to minister to the wants of others. She was patient and forbearing in all the relations of life.

She seemed to have had a premonition that the end was near. Several days before she died she said to her husband, "We will have been married just 21 years next Tuesday and on that day I will leave you," and so it was. As the luminary of day was shedding his lingering rays upon the western hills upon this memorable anniversary, her dear sweet life went out. But death had no pains for her, she conversed freely with her friends and loved ones upon the subject of death, and said she was ready to go, and had no more to see here in heaven. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." W. W. C.

Again the grim reaper visits the home of our friend D. M. Anderson, and on Aug. 17th claims his precious daughter, Eva, only a few days since the wife and mother went to her reward, and now the pall of gloom and sorrow again hovers over the hearts of the disconsolate father and only surviving daughter, when they are called upon to give up dear Eva. The deceased was just blooming into womanhood, beloved by all who knew her, and endeared to all who had the pleasure of an intimate acquaintance with her. She was modest and retiring, but dutiful and earnest in every good work. The writer has known her from childhood, and for the past five years she has been a member of the Sabbath School of which he is superintendent. She was always at her post, and took a lively interest in the success of the school. She was diligent and thorough in study, and by her gentle and loving manners won the esteem of all her teachers and associates. Only about two weeks before her death she united with the Baptist Church and was baptised. It was at the close of the protracted meeting at Hebron Church. She said at the time that she felt that if she did not unite with the Church that day, she would never have another opportunity. And so it would have been. Can it be that Eva and her dear mother were each at the same time contemplating an early voyage across the mystic river?

Scarcely had the mother sealed the lofty heights, though ethics broad and boundless domain, and reached the gate of pearl and enters in where love and joy from springs of life unceasing flow, and light from out the throne eternal shines in bright effulgence, such as human eyes have never beheld, and which no mortal strain as human ear hath ever heard, when from the far down in silent contemplation, when presently the harp struck fresh their instruments of gold, and the high arches of the celestial city, reverberated with the harmony of sound. She arose and sought the gate whence all the throng was gathering, and each made way for her, until she stood within the gate, and looking out through space immense, she saw a shining form, which more familiar grew as it approached, till the light from out the throne, reflecting full upon the fair one, now disclosing each lineament of face and form—'twas Eva. Up, up, from out the dark and toilsome realms of sorrow, sin, and strife, with garments white, and beautiful she came. Wide open swung the gate of pearl, while the angel choir with joy, inexpressible full, sang of redeeming love. Fair Eva entered. The first to greet her was the mother dear, each in the others fond embrace was clasped, while love, pure and ineffable, such as to them on earth was never known lit up each face. Then in the happy chorus, united all the heavenly host, singing, "Alleluia! Salvation and glory and honor, and power unto the Lord our God." W. W. C.

Phoenix, Miss., Aug. 19th, 1891.

A balloon ascension at Manhattan Beach a resort near Denver, Col., came near resulting fatally for three persons. Several thousand people had assembled to witness the ascension of the mammoth airship, which was to carry, beside Prof. King, a couple to be married in the basket just before the rope was cut. The balloon shot up in the air, and at a height of 5000 feet it encountered a storm and burst. It fell for over a mile like so much lead, but fortunately for the occupants of the car, the silk formed itself into a parachute, thus stopping the rapidity of the fall. The three fell in a corn field about seven miles from the city, but with such force that they were unconscious for several hours afterward.

The average Ohioan wants, Ohio wool to go up, and Mr. McKinley wasupid enough to take the contract of putting it up. As a result Ohio wool is down lower than ever. And McKinley is going down with it.—St. Louis Republic, Jan.
