—Mr. David Motherwell, of our town, and one of the most ingenious mechanics we have ever met, is the inventor and one of the patentees of the new Tongueless Cultivator, manufactured by the Motherwell Iron and Steel Company, and named "Little Hocking." This is a double plow and materially differs in many respects from all plows of the kind made, and is altogether the most perfectly adapted cultivator ever manufactured. The plow will stand up alone, with or without team, and yet the operator has the most perfect control over the implement. Some notion of the ingenuity of Mr. M. may be inferred from the fact that he obtained patents on some seven claims. The M. L. & S. Co. control the manufacture in the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, West Va. and Pennsylvania.

He was sent on alone, and the following letter, published by request, from the gentleman to whom he was sent, shows that he made the trip all right.
ELMIRA, N. Y., July 10 '86.
MR. NIXON—Dear Sir: The boy, Pearl Friend, arrived here yesterday afternoon all right. He was a little home-sick at first, but he and our little boy are playing together, and he seems very happy this afternoon; when he gets over being tired he can write you if he wishes to. We are very much pleased with him; it shows well for your institution that you send the children away so neat and clean. We will do by him as we would wish any one to do by our own child.
Yours with respect,
J. E. COLLINS,
Elmira, N. Y.

The repairs on the University building are in progress. The painters have begun work on the East Wing, and the furniture for the normal department is expected this week.
The planing mill belonging to the Wells Brothers, at Little Hocking caught fire, Monday afternoon from the stack, and burned to the ground. From sparks, all the outbuildings in connection with the mill, all the lumber in the yard and the dwelling of Wm. Chambers took fire and were entirely consumed. The mill and surroundings were uninsured. The dwelling was insured for part of its value.
Prof. G. P. Coler, of the B. & O. school of Technology, of Baltimore, arrived here last week. He expects to spend about two months in this State, engaged in institute work, before returning to his regular work.
Vinton County.
Democrat Enquirer.
The storm which occurred in this vicinity on the 14th inst. was widespread over Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania and New York, and in many places did great damage to crops, stock, trees and buildings. At Shelby, Ohio, the lightning struck ten buildings inside of twenty minutes. At Chillicothe and elsewhere, heavy hail accompanied the storm, and the hurricane of wind hurled stones with such force as to break, batter and destroy nearly everything exposed to its fury. At Newark, Ohio, it is stated that thousands of birds were killed, apple orchards were stripped of fruit, whole blocks of buildings unroofed and church steeples blown down. At Glenville, O., hail stones 6 inches in circumference were picked up, and one party gathered twenty-five pounds of hail and made up a batch of ice-cream with it.

Miss Ida Kelly, of Logan, is visiting her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. James Ward, in this place.
Mrs. Mary Murphy, of Irish Ridge, has gone to spend a couple of months with her son Pat, at Logan.

The Adelphi News says the wool firm of N. Spencer & Co., composed of Nelson Spencer, George Rose, Sol Reigel, Jr., and M. F. Purtee, operating in the country adjacent to Adelphi, bought and shipped this season, 112,000 pounds of wool, 42,000 more than last season. They paid 25 to 30c., their purchases amounting to over $25,000. Mr. Spencer, in a talk with the editor of the News, said: "Washington township, in Hocking county produces as much wool as any other two townships in this neighborhood. We get much more wool from Hocking than from any of the adjoining counties. In that county are located some of the largest sheep raisers in Ohio. For instance, there are Uriah Linton, Guthrie Bros., H. H. West, Hensel Bros., and the Beerys. Vinton ranks next to Hocking. We bought 650 fleeces from one man in the latter county. His name was Stiers, and he is manager of all lands belonging to an iron company.

Amongst the largest wool producers in this county let us mention the Dunkles, Clarks, Pettits and the Steeles. We got but little wool in Ross county this year, and they were small fleeces. The western part of the county is a great point for sheep raising, but all that section lying nearest to us, the herding of sheep doesn't amount to much. We got no wool from Pickaway this year. All our wool was purchased in the three counties first named.
The Democracy of Pickaway county, will hold their Primary on Saturday, July 31, to elect their delegates to the county and other conventions. The county convention will be held Saturday, Aug. 7, to nominate a county ticket.

—Mrs. C. E. Bowen is visiting friends in Union county, Ohio.
—Wm. Leigh was yesterday the happiest man in town.—It's a boy.
—John Weller and family, of N. Walnut street, are visiting near Cincinnati.
—Many of our young people are spending the summer vacation with friends at various points.
—The Democratic Circuit Court convention for this district, will be held next Wednesday, July 28th, at Chillicothe.
—The Salvation Army had the largest congregation at the open air meeting Saturday evening that we have seen for some time. So far as we have seen they are well behaved people.
BUSINESS ITEMS.
—If you want nice, tender beef steak, go to Geo. Heine.
—McLain is taking orders every day for photos, crayon portraits, and no wonder, as they are the finest pictures ever offered to the public, and at prices within the reach of all.
—For the best quality of veal, beef or mutton at lowest prices, go to Heine.
—While the fine weather lasts, McLain will make you one dozen of his $5 cabinet photos for $3.00. Now is the time for a bargain. There is nothing shoddy about this, but all straight goods.
—Geo. Heine will furnish you the best mutton of the season at the cheapest rates.
—Don't fail to read the notice of a cheap excursion to Detroit, Mich., which appears on the last page of this issue. No doubt many of our citizens will take advantage of this opportunity to visit the lake and enjoy the cool and bracing atmosphere of the north. The rate is exceedingly low, and the tickets are good returning for four days.
