

The Daily Standard.

D. MACKLEY, Publisher.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, SEPT. 24, 1873.

SALUTATORY.

It is not necessary for me to indicate in advance what will be the course taken by the DAILY STANDARD. It will speak for itself. Heretofore the Jackson STANDARD has not been an impersonal journal. I have always endeavored to hold all the writers for its columns strictly responsible, personally. But it is simply impossible to carry on a daily paper, even as small as this sheet, by one man; therefore I have engaged a corps of editors. I am not responsible for what they may say, only in a legal point of view. Among them are fighting men—men who are able to take care of themselves, and they all go fully armed.

This is an epoch in the history of Jackson county. The present issue is the first daily paper ever issued in the county. I look to the time when Jackson will be a great manufacturing city, containing its tens of thousands of inhabitants, with many flourishing daily papers. Then a copy of this, the first little daily, will be a curiosity. Hence I would suggest to all those who receive the three numbers of this, the first daily, preserve it for future reference.

And now, kind friends, I hope our three days intercourse may be pleasant and profitable.
D. MACKLEY.

THE FAIR.

There was a good rain night before last, and all day yesterday was cloudy and cool. This morning is fine, but cloudy, with a prospect of clear weather.

At 10 o'clock we repaired to the Fair Grounds and made arrangements for ourself and the newsboys to go in and out as occasion may require. We found the President, W. S. Schellenger Esq. on hand, and Harmon Bunn, Wm. Vaughn, and other officers of the Society at their posts, and attentive to their duties. They appeared willing to extend all necessary courtesies to us and our forces.

Going into the Fair Grounds we found all clean and tidy, and everything in ample order. There is some kind of a panorama erected, and then a long new building, designed for selling refreshments, &c. Persons are busily driving stakes into the ground and the sound of the ax and the hatchet is heard over the grounds. At this writing, there are few persons in the grounds, and very little stock has arrived.

ELI BACKUS

Will write for the DAILY STANDARD on Friday.

It has always been feared that the want of pure water at this place would prevent the erection of rolling mills. When the shaft was nearly completed on Mr. Vaughn's land, a great stream of pure cold water was reached. It rushed in with such rapidity that it took a number of men day and night, with two pumps, for nearly a week, to keep the water out so that a few inches of slate could be removed, and the coal tested. As soon as the test had been made the pumps were stopped, and the water rapidly arose in the shaft. Great steam pumps will have to be used. We believe here is a sufficiency of pure water for all manufacturing purposes.

Last Saturday we called at the residence of John W. Oliver, in the west side of town, to see his father, Thomas Oliver. We knew Mr. Oliver many years ago, in Jefferson township. We often cut cord wood near where he did, at the furnaces. Mr. Oliver is now seventy years of age. He has resided in Jackson county 57 years. On Tuesday of last week he went up a ladder where some men had a scaffold, putting up an addition to his son's house, when the scaffold fell, and his foot and leg were badly bruised. He is confined to his bed.

Thanks to our old friend, Mrs. Du Hadway, for a large quantity, and nice variety of wedding cake. There was also a greenback with the cake, of a good denomination. We do not like to mix up gratitude with business, but we think that our thanks are hardly an equivalent for the greenback. Mrs. Du Hadway knows how to sell fine millinery goods, as well as to dispense good cake.

We are rejoiced to know that our friend Frank Hudson, the new proprietor of the Isham House, has some respect for the nerves of the people, as well as for their stomachs. He has a new, sweet toned bell, instead of the loud, shrill, cutting, rasping thing so long used at that house. And then, only think of that horrible old gong which was used there only a few years ago. Thank fortune, a better day has dawned upon the corner of Main and Broadway.

We have heretofore mentioned that Messrs. Vaughn, Jones and Chapman have fully tested the shaft coal on Mr. Vaughn's land. There is no doubt that Mr. Vaughn has 200 acres of this fine coal, which is a vast fortune for him. We learn that a company will soon be organized for the erection of one or more furnaces, to work this coal.

G. W. Starks has a show in the Fair Grounds. He has bears, and other animals, including a spotted dog, almost equal to the celebrated Jones dog.

There is very little stock at the Fair to-day. Allen Austin and G. David have good young horses, and John Johnson, ("Black Hawk") has his young spotted horse, and some fine Cotswold sheep. There are six lots of hogs, Chester White and Berkshire.

George Pugh is having a very fine frame residence put up on Church Street, adjoining the marble shop. It is nearly finished. We looked through it, and think it has the most convenient arrangement inside of any house we ever saw. Mr. Pugh made the plan himself.

The Jackson Marble Works of Pugh & Long, on Church Street, is an establishment of which Jackson may well feel proud. Some of the finest work in the State is turned out at this shop. We doubt if there is any more convenient and commodious marble shop in the State than this.

In our rounds the other day we called at the shop of J. W. Beyron, on Church Street. He is doing well in the business of Undertaker, and he is doing some fine turning and scroll work. He showed us a crutch he had just finished for D. W. Cherington. It was a very neat piece of work.

The improvements in Jackson progress so rapidly that what we wrote three days ago for the outside of our paper is nearly out of date. For instance, we spoke of the foundation having been dug for the new Bank building. Now the walls are going up.

We omitted in the report of the Sabbath School convention, in our Weekly, to give the contribution of Aten's Sabbath School. The amount was $5.25.

We made an effort to get the newsboy on the mail train to sell the Daily STANDARD along the railroad, and in Portsmouth, but he was afraid to do so, for fear it might injure the sale of the Cincinnati Dailies. Sensible boy.

Our Prosecuting Attorney has purchased a fine, blooded, imported dog. He is thin in flesh, (the dog we mean) it is true, but he has bottom. Our poetical "devil" could not let so fine an opportunity escape, and he goes for that dog.

DOGGEREL, BY ONE OF FOUR DEVILS.
Dina, through the haze, the sun goes down,
The shades of night are falling,
The turtle-dove in plaintive notes,
His absent mate is calling.

The fowls within the barnyard,
To their nightly perch are rushing;
The frogs, throughout the neighboring swamp
With mellow notes are gushing.

High up in air, a buzzard lank,
Is sailing to and fro,
Eying, with closest scrutiny,
The dark'ning earth below.

"What is he searching for?" you ask,
As he sails o'er hill and bog.
"That's easily answered," a boy replies,
"He's looking for Jones' dog."

Rev. M. R. Wheatcraft, of Oak Hill, called on us this forenoon. He has two interesting books for sale, as agent. One is an account of Stanley's discovery of Livingstone, in Africa, the other "What Woman should know about Woman." They are evidently good books.

Samuel G. Martin got Chris. Bertsch, the Baker, to send us a beautiful wedding cake to-day. As it came after dinner, we have not yet tested or tasted it.

We notice our old friend Reuben Dickason at the Fair. The old gentleman is one of our oldest citizens.

If any one thinks that Jackson is not a great business point, he would be cured by remaining an hour at the depot in this place.

The cars are crowded every day with persons going to the great Exposition at Cincinnati. If possible, we want to go next week.

Judge Evans, Hillborn Miller and several others of our citizens, started last night on an excursion to Omaha, Nebraska, and other points west.

R. B. Stevenson and wife, who have been visiting their friends at this place, left for their home in Illinois this forenoon.

In the hurry of making up, several typographical errors occurred, which will be corrected to-morrow, so far as the same occur in the advertisements.

The eighth grand-child of the editor of the STANDARD was born to-day. Mr. and Mrs. Hawk are the parents. "Sheboygan."

Elias Hildenbrand, formerly a citizen of this place, now of Greenfield, is in town.

Rev. J. E. Sowers of the M. E. Church started to Conference at Athens on the train to-day.

The M. E. Church at this place numbers 229 members.

The Presbyterian membership in this place amounts to about 160.
