Proposed Joint Commission to Settle Venezuela Question.

Correspondent of the London Times Says It's Uncle Sam's Project.

The Scheme Must Be Adopted or Rejected as a Whole By Great Britain—The Turning Point in the Controversy Has at Last Been Arrived at.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Mr. George W. Smalley, the American correspondent of the Times, in a dispatch which the paper published Friday, protests against the plan for the appointment of a joint commission to settle the Venezuelan boundary dispute, being discussed by the American press as his or the Times' project. He says it is neither one nor the other, but is the plan that the United States government is ready to officially propose or accept on the conditions stated in his original dispatch to the Times. The scheme, he adds, must be adopted or rejected as a whole. It is not open for Great Britain to accept part of it. Nevertheless, it does not follow that the Washington government would not consider a counter proposal or a reasonable modification of the plan. He dwells upon the jingo opposition to the plan and other difficulties, which he declares are increasing, and contends that these show clearly the danger of delay and what risks the Washington government took in allowing the proposal to be published. The Times, in commenting on the dispatch, will contend that the turning point of the controversy has been reached, adding that the views of both ministries have been undergoing a healthy evolution tending to bring them closer. Further delay in resuming direct negotiations would be needless and mischievous. Lord Salisbury having taken the last step in the negotiations, the next move by diplomatic usage rests with Mr. Olney. Assuming that Mr. Smalley's dispatches represent the views of the American government it is only requisite to send these views to Lord Salisbury as speedily as possible. They might not necessarily command instant assent to all their details, but they would be received with the greatest possible respect and with an earnest desire to accept them as a basis for a prompt and complete agreement. The spirit in which they were formed would be thoroughly appreciated by the whole nation.

The Times contends that it would be desirable for the resumed negotiations to be conducted at Washington, where the representatives of Venezuela could attend. It disclaims the smallest idea of picking part of the schemes. It is quite understood that the project stands or falls as a whole. The suggestion made by the Times Thursday was that, with a view to expediting matters, one step should be taken at a time, and that the joint commission should meet immediately without waiting for a settlement of possible further steps.

Of the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo Railway, Dies in His Private Car at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 21.—President C. C. Waite, of the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo railroad, died Friday morning at 3:15. He was aged 52 years and had held his present position since 1889. He died in his private car in the yards of the company. One week ago last night, he accompanied a party of Columbus gentlemen to Jackson, O., to participate in a banquet celebrating the opening of a branch of the road to that city.

While at Jackson he was seized with a chill, and when the train reached Columbus the next morning he was too ill to leave the car. Pneumonia soon developed and his physician advised against removing him to his residence. The physicians had little hope of his recovery from the first as he was always frail.

Christopher Chamberlain Waite was the only living son of the late Chief Justice Morrison R. Waite, of the supreme court of the United States. He was born at Maumee City, O., September 24, 1843. In 1869 he was married to Miss Lillian Guthrie, of Zanesville, who, with two children, Harry, aged 23, and Ellsworth, aged 17, survive him.

MR. MORGAN

Addresses the Senate on the Cuban Resolutions.

Question No Longer One of Belligerency, But of Independence.

Spain Would Rather Lose the Island as a Result of War With the United States Than to Yield It for a Price, Says the Senator From Alabama.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—For three hours and a half Thursday the senate was engaged in a debate on the resolution for the recognition of belligerent rights of the Cuban insurgents and the alternative resolution for the recognition of Cuban independence. There was a very full attendance and the galleries were filled by an interested and sometimes excited assemblage of men and women.

The debate was opened by Senator Call (dem., Fla.) and continued by Mr. Cameron (rep., Pa.) who offered a substitute for the concurrent resolution in these words:

"That the president is hereby requested to interpose his friendly offices with the Spanish government for the recognition of the independence of Cuba."

In a written speech he declared that the question was no longer one of belligerency, but one of independence. He wanted the government to act upon the policy which he advocated as he asserted the policy of the republican party and of the American people.

He was followed by Senators Lodge and Morgan. Mr. Morgan was the author of the concurrent resolution and reported it from the committee on foreign relations. Each speech, in succession, seemed to outstrip the other in patriotic fervor and in devotion to the Cuban cause; and some of the speeches attracted applause from the galleries.

Mr. Morgan opened on very conservative lines; but, as he progressed and as he was drawn out by the inquiries of other senators, he seemed to give free scope to his words and desires and expressed himself in no doubtful or hesitating language in favor of taking the most advanced position. He declared his belief that Spain would not release her hold upon the throat of Cuba, and that she would rather lose the island as the result of war with the United States than yield it for a price, or lose it through the success of the insurgents. At one point in his speech he exclaimed, passionately, that in a certain event, it was "our duty to draw the sword, lay it on the table and say to Spain: 'If you want to take it up, take it up.'" This exclamation, of course, drew applause from the galleries.

Mr. Morgan was not able to finish his speech, but will continue at the session of Monday next, the senate adjourning at 5:30 o'clock until Saturday, when the president pro tem (Mr. Frye, rep., Me.) is to read Washington's farewell address.

HEARD FROM.

Corbett Anxious to Make a Match With the Winner of the Fitzsimmons-Maher Fight.
CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—James J. Corbett, who is playing an agreement in this city, Thursday afternoon sent two telegrams to El Paso. It will be noticed that Corbett signs himself "Champion of the World."

The dispatch to Fitzsimmons reads: "If you win Friday show the American public that you are not afraid to fight me. I will meet you in Chicago any day between March 1 and 6, and will make the match for money or simply for a purse, the fight to take place anywhere on earth. You will never be considered champion until you put me out of the way. I will expect an answer to this if you win. James J. Corbett, champion of the world."

The following was sent Maher: "If you beat Fitzsimmons Friday, show the world you mean what you say—that you will not take the championship without fighting for it. I will meet you here in Chicago any day between March 1 and 6, and will make a match for money or simply for a purse, the fight to take place anywhere on earth. Now, Peter, come on here like a man and we will have no trouble agreeing to terms. Hoping that you beat that big coward, I am yours truly,

"JAMES J. CORBETT,

THE FIGHT.

Fitzsimmons Knocks Out Maher in the First Round—The Fight Lasted About a Minute.

LANOHY, Tex., Feb. 21.—A slight rain is falling. The special train from El Paso, bearing Fitzsimmons, Maher and the other pugilists arrived here at 3:30 p. m., central time, unmolested en route.

The Texas rangers with Adj. Gen. Mabrey at their head, alighted before the train had been brought to a standstill. The rangers were lined up at the north end of the depot under the command of Capt. McDonald. An immense crowd, which had been brought here from Eagle Pass, San Antonio and intermediate points, was in waiting. During the 15 minutes' stop at Sanderson, Maher took breakfast in the Chinese lunch room in the depot. It was a diabolical meal of greasy boiled cabbage, half-cooked ham, hot hoe bread, cheese, pie, and a vile imitation of coffee concoction. Maher ate heartily, to the amazement of veteran sports, who had never before seen a fighter put such a mess in his stomach, within three hours of going in the ring. To expostulations the Irishman smilingly remarked that he knew his business. Fitzsimmons' party had provided him with a commissary on his private car, and while Maher was gorging himself, he ate sparingly poached eggs on toast, chops and coffee. Later he took some raw eggs, milk and brandy and lay down for a nap. After leaving Sanderson there was suspicion of a rain-storm and it became certain that operation of the kinetoscope would be out of the question. Then the managers began to talk of postponing the mill until Saturday afternoon and keeping the party over night. A large majority of the crowd regarded this as decidedly risky. Decision was held in abeyance until pending the arrival here.

At 4:25 the crowd started from this place afoot to cross the river.

Bulletin—Bob Fitzsimmons knocked Maher out in the first round. The blow by which Fitzsimmons knocked out his opponent was a right hand hook on the jaw. The fight lasted a trifle more than a minute.
