The feature of the game was a home run by Prim, of the Leideckers.

Cream of tartar should always be mixed with flour, soda with milk.

An ounce of good gelatin is always sufficient to a quart of liquid for any dessert.

A pinch of salt added to the white of eggs will make them beat up quicker and lighter.

Three ounces of sugar are sufficient to every quart of milk for custards of any kind.

White meated game should be very well cooked, while dark meats should be served rare.

Never use too much flavoring of any kind in baking, especially cinnamon or almond extract.

Keep the soup kettle always tightly covered lest the aroma of the soup escape with the steam.
