THE WEATHER

From now on will no doubt be stormy and bad, so that it will necessitate your carrying an umbrella around all the time. To resist such wear the silk must be of good quality and must not crack. We have a very fine umbrella we are selling at $1.50, $2.00 and $3.00 that will resist the worst kind of weather and keep its color. We also have a finer line as high as $10.00.

THE DELTOID MUSCLE.

It Plays a Prominent Part in the Business of the Custom Tailors.

"It is a rare thing," said the talking man, relates the Washington Star, "to find a merchant tailor who can get a 'perfect fit' in the clothes he makes. So rare in fact that I have sometimes thought that tailors, of all artisans, knew least how to do their work right. Yet the tailor, or the cutter rather, is not always to blame, for a perfectly cut garment may be often set askew by a careless maker, who by a crooked seam or a slight departure from the line set for his needle may throw the whole thing out of plumb. Still, a good tailor ought to know when a garment fits, and should either be able to correct its unfitness or not let it leave the shop. Speaking of the cutting part, I remember an incident that occurred once at a convention of cutters held in Cincinnati. The subject for discussion was the cutting and fitting of garments, and a testy old Scotchman had the floor. He said in effect that if a coat were cut to set right upon the deltoideus muscle that the wearer would always find it comfortable and well fitting.

"In fact," said he, "the deltoideus muscle determines the fit of a coat."

"Will the gentleman state what and where the deltoideus muscle is?" asked a cutter on the other side of the chamber.

"The Scotchman turned on him sharply.

"Sir," he said, angrily, "do you claim to be a cutter and not know where the deltoideus muscle is located? Don't you know, sir, that a knowledge of the human anatomy is as important to the tailor as it is to the surgeon? Do you expect to cut a garment to fit an object whose every line and curve you do not know? You might as well try to fit a plug to a hole without knowing the size of the hole. No, sir, the gentleman will not state what and where the deltoideus muscle is. It is your duty, sir, to know the deltoideus muscle; not mine to instruct you."

"The discussion ended there, simply because there was nobody present to carry it on, for I don't believe a man in the place except the old fellow knew anything about deltoideus muscles. I know I didn't, but as soon as I got to a dictionary I looked it up. Later I gave the matter some study and I found that the Scotchman was right."

A DOG'S PERSISTENCY.

Wonderful Determination of a Hunting Dog That Tread a Bear in California.

The mysterious disappearance of two valuable hounds owned by A. W. Combs, of Oakland, has been explained, and the story behind it proves one of the most remarkable cases of canine faithfulness and determination ever recorded. Combs was one of a party of hunters who returned a few days ago from a week's hunting trip in the mountains back of Crescent City, Del Norte county, says the San Francisco Chronicle.

The party had taken along four hounds, which were missed during the first night in the mountains. They had evidently strayed away during the night and for the following four days the hunters were without their companions. On the fourth day, however, two of the hounds returned to camp, the two belonging to Combs being finally given up for lost or stolen. When the hunters were ready to start for home they informed Superior Judge Cutler of the mysterious disappearance of the two hounds and requested him to advertise a reward for their return in his name.

One day subsequently Mr. Combs received a letter from Judge Cutler conveying the happy news that the hounds had been recovered. Judge Cutler writes that they were found in the mountains several miles from where the Oaklanders had been hunting by a miner, who had heard them barking for several days. The miner had gone to investigate and found two hounds holding the fort at the base of a large tree, into which a bear had climbed for safety from their attack. This was nine days after they had been missed from the hunters' camp, and for several days they had remained on watch at this particular tree. They were completely exhausted and very nearly starved to death, as was also the bear, which the miner killed.

MYSTERY OF A LOST RING.

The Circle Got Around a Mouse's Neck and Strangled Him to Death.

"I was told a true lost-ring story the other day which I believe has never been in print, although such may be the case, says a writer in the Boston Herald. A well-known society woman suddenly missed a valuable diamond ring from her finger. It was a ring she seldom removed, but all that could be remembered about it was that she had just washed her hands. Fearing it had slipped off in the operation the plumber was quickly called in and all the traps opened, with the faint hope of finding the jewel, but without avail, and sorrow reigned in the household, for the diamond was not only intrinsically valuable, but a dearly prized souvenir. Some time later the set bowl in the bathroom had to be replaced, and when it was removed, lo and behold, crowded in behind the water pipes was the skeleton of a mouse, and round the skeleton's throat of a neck hung a diamond ring. Identification was immediate and the mystery quickly cleared up by the poor little beast. He had feasted on a box of bran which milady kept to whiten her fair hands and into which she undoubtedly dropped the ring. Mouse, through vanity or accident, slipped it over his head, but in trying to escape with the lot he died a felon's death.
