SPEEDING

Toward its Last Earthly Resting Place is all that is Mortal of President McKinley.

Beneath the Great White Dome of the National Capitol the Funeral Services of State Were Held; Simple but Impressive.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Sept. 17.—All that is mortal of William McKinley is speeding toward its last earthly resting place at his beloved home in Canton, after the nation has officially and with state ceremonies paid its tribute of respect and love to the memory of its chief magistrate.

Beneath the cold white dome of the capitol the funeral services of state were held today over the remains of the dead President. The services were simple and were conducted in accordance with the rites of the Methodist Episcopal church of which President McKinley was a life long member. It consisted of only two hymns, a song, a prayer, an address and the benediction.

It was beautiful, solemn and impressive. Gathering around the bier, were representatives of every phase of American National life, including the President and only surviving Ex-President of the United States, Cleveland, together with the representatives at this capitol of almost every nation of the earth.

Mrs. McKinley did not attend the services at the capitol as it was deemed wise that she should not undergo the ordeal. She remained at the White House.

Arrangements for the movement of the funeral cortege from the White House to the capitol was completed last night. The day was gray and dreary. It seemed as if nature itself were in mourning for the nation's dead. As the hours passed dashes of rain fell at intervals. Despite this discomfort tens of thousands of sorrowing people massed on both sides of Pennsylvania avenue from the White House to the capitol.

As the funeral carriage, escorted by troops representing every department of the nation's martial service and by representatives of religious and civic organizations, passed down the thoroughfare to the solemn notes of the dead march from Saul the sorrowing people bared their heads. Many tears stained their faces and bespoke their grief. It was a silent throng.

At the conclusion of the funeral services at the rotunda the casket lid was removed in order that the immediate friends of the dead President, people whom he loved, might pass the bier for a last glance at his features. At half past twelve the crowds began to pass through the rotunda.

MANY VIEWED REMAINS.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Sept. 17.—During the six hours stay from 12 to 6 this evening, which the body was lying in state in the rotunda of the capitol it is estimated that 55,000 people viewed the remains. Still thousands of people were waiting to get a last glance at the casket when the doors closed. Then came the last chapter. The sad ceremonial of the removal of remains the grave at his old home at Canton began. The casket was once more lifted upon the shoulders of the body bearers and by them borne to the hearse at the foot of the east steps of the capitol. Thirty minutes time was required for the removal of the body from the capitol to the train. It was a quiet, noiseless journey, without music. Not a drum was heard, nor was there a sound from the crowd. Hats and uniforms were removed as the cortege passed. At the Pennsylvania Railroad station was a dense throng and the remains were received by a large delegation of army and navy officers. There soldiers and seamen carried the casket from the hearse to the observation car and placed them in the second section of the funeral train.

No less than 20 cars were required for the transportation of the funeral party to Canton. Tomorrow there will be still another train to carry to Canton a large party of Senators and Representatives and others prominent in national life.

The car Olympia was assigned to Mrs. McKinley, while the car Edgemere, which came next, was occupied by the President and his Cabinet.

Just before eight o'clock, when Mrs. McKinley was driven to the station, she walked with surprising firmness to her place on the train. From the carriage she was assisted by Abner McKinley and Dr. Rixey. It was 8:10 o'clock when this section steamed away, the first section having preceded it ten minutes. The observation car bearing the remains was flooded with light. Through its crystal sides could be seen the beautifully draped casket with its mass of rare blossoms so arranged that even as the train passed swept through at night the people in the country might gaze at the sight of the casket with the soldier standing at the head and the sailor at the foot. A guard of soldiers and sailors occupied the platforms. Ten minutes later a third section of the train, bearing army and navy officers, sped away and the national capitol had performed its part in the funeral ceremonies.

Baltimore, Sept. 17.—On funeral train leaving Washington the long winding train bearing the remains of the President plunged out into the darkness and hurried on its mournful journey. Countless thousands, extending from the station far out into the suburbs of the National Capital, waiting in the drenching rain, had an opportunity to catch a last fleeting glimpse of the flag covered casket as the train sped by.

After clearing Washington all was darkness. Now and then faces of little mournful groups, bare headed, at the sides of the track could be seen as the train flashed by. As little villages between Washington and Baltimore were passed the tolling of bells were faintly heard.

As the train came out of the long tunnels leading to Baltimore, thousands of resident forms were seen and the dismal tolling of the bells was heard. The station was packed with people who gazed sorrowfully at the casket while locomotives were being shifted. The train arrived at 9:34 and pulled out for the West a few minutes later.

AT YORK, PA.

York, Pa., Sept. 18.—On funeral Passing out of the station at Baltimore the track was lined with people. At Parkton, just before the Maryland line was reached, a brief stop was made to attach an extra engine to help the heavy train up the grade at this point. Then for miles the train ran through the dutch settlements of Pennsylvania. It was now after 10 o'clock, but many were at the track. York was reached at 11:30.

Ten thousand people were at the station and along the track. Bells tolled dolefully as the train slowed up but did not stop.

AT HARRISBURG.

Harrisburg, Sept. 18.—Soon after leaving York all retired aboard the train. It was raining steadily. Harrisburg was reached at midnight, but the crowd was enormous. The train stopped several minutes while the crews and engines were changed and multitudes gazed silently at the brilliantly lighted car.

CANTON PROGRAM.

By Associated Press.

Canton, O., Sept. 17.—The program for Wednesday is as follows: 11:00 a.m. arrival of funeral train; 11:20 a.m. march from depot to Court House; 11:50 a.m. arrival at Court House; 12:00 a.m. to 9 p.m. lying in state in Court House; 9:15 p.m., march from Court House to late residence on North Market street.

Canton is ready for the last home coming of President McKinley. All day long hundreds of men and women labored arranging decorations on buildings. At sunset tonight Canton was shrouded in black. At frequent intervals during the day there resounded the sound of marching feet as the military or civic organization made its way into the city to be in readiness for the duties of tomorrow and Thursday. They were but the first wave of human tide which is to flood the city.

Late this evening a constant procession of visitors was moving along to the McKinley home. Today there is no sign of mourning on the house nor will there be until the dead President is borne through its doorway Wednesday night.

Throughout the day visitors stood in knots about the house talking low and in whispers. Tomorrow on the arrival at 11:00 a.m. the train will be met by members of the local reception and executive committees, by hundred of personal friends of President McKinley and by the following gentlemen selected to act as honorary pall-bearers during the services in Canton:

John C. Deuber, George B. Freese, R. A. Cassidy, William R. Day, Joseph Riechele, Henry H. Harter, Wm. A. Lynch and Thomas T. McCarthy.

All were intimate friends of the President during his life time. Troop A of Cleveland, will act as escort in the march from the depot to the court house, where the body will lie in state. Cavalry will lead the way and the hearse drawn by four coal black horses, will follow. Then will come carriages bearing members of the family and distinguished visitors.

The casket will be placed in the rotunda of the court house and the doors will be opened to allow citizens an opportunity of paying their last tribute. Large detachments of militia and police will be present to facilitate the handling of the crowds.

Until 9 p.m. the body will remain in the court house and immediately after that hour will be taken to the family residence. Canton Post G. A. R., composed almost entirely of members of McKinley's old regiment and the 23rd Ohio, will escort the body to the house.

This is as far as the definite program of the Canton committee extends tonight. It is their wish that early on the morning of Thursday the body be returned to the court house and again lie in state until the time to leave for the First Methodist Church, where the funeral exercises will commence at 2 o'clock, but whether the family will agree to this is not known yet. The time of exercises in the church is forty-five minutes. The services will be simple. The discourse will be by Rev. Manchester of the First Methodist Church, prayer, by the Rev. Milligan of the Presbyterian, and Scriptural reading and singing of "Lead Kindly Light" and other hymns. At the conclusion of the services at the church the march to the cemetery will be taken up.

The casket will be placed in the receiving vault. A guard will be thrown around the vault day and night until the final resting place is prepared.

As yet there is no great influx of visitors, but a flood will flow in tomorrow. At 10 o'clock this morning not a room could be had at any of the hotels.

Provisions are made for feeding them, but if the crowds are as large as is expected, a large number of people will be compelled to walk the streets all Thursday night.

COUNCIL

Grants use of Auditorium for Memorial Exercises.

The City Council met last night at the City Hall and transacted but little business. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

A building permit was granted to Harry Meredith on Front street, above the St. Cloud.

Rev. E. A. Coll was present and said that the ministers of the city met last Sunday and had decided to hold suitable exercises next Thursday to commemorate the death of President McKinley and asked the use of the Auditorium for the occasion which was granted by the council.

A letter from the American Bridge Company was read in which they stated that they were making preparations to fix the Putnam street bridge as soon as possible and that they would send a few men here within the next few days.

The fire chief's report was then read and approved.

Benedict reported that the property owners along the lower Gilman street were ready to build new sidewalks, but cannot proceed until the proper grade is made and council ordered that the city engineer prepare the proper grade at once.

Sidewalks were ordered built on the west side of Barbara street, from Pearl to Virginia streets.

Strain made a motion that the Mayor be authorized to issue a proclamation for a special election to fill the office of councilman recently vacated by L. J. Cutter, resigning. The election to be held on Saturday September 28th. The motion was carried.

Mr. Danford was present and said that the council sometime ago ordered that the alleys between Second and Third streets and from Wooster to Washington streets be opened and that

NOT GUILTY

Is Plea of Czolgosz as Entered by His Counsel, Lewis.

Personally He Refused to Utter a Word--Probably Playing Insane.

By Associated Press.

Buffalo, Sept. 17.—Leon F. Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley was arraigned before Judge Emory in the county court this afternoon on an indictment for murder in the first degree. Again the prisoner refused to plead or even utter a word. Ex-Supreme Court Justice Lewis entered a plea of not guilty.

The accused will be tried in the supreme court next Monday morning.

There were crowds in court. The most notable incident was the hissing of the prisoner by the crowd who surged around him as he passed to and from the court room. The strong guard of patrolmen and deputy sheriffs was dispensed with. Lewis (one of the attorneys assigned as counsel by Judge Emory yesterday, called to see the prisoner before he was arraigned. Czolgosz refused to talk to Lewis.

FRIENDS

Of Mrs. McKinley Seriously Alarmed About Her Condition.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Sept. 17.—The friends of Mrs. McKinley are seriously alarmed about her. While they believe that she will be able to go through the services at Canton, a subsequent collapse is feared. Her present condition justifies this. If she has a breakdown it may not come until the final offices are paid to the dead.

This evening Mrs. McKinley was considerably weaker than when at Buffalo, but continues to bear up with great fortitude. This is no present sign of a collapse. This afternoon she gave vent to her grief more freely than at any time and wept for a long time.

Among those who called at the White House during the afternoon were Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Garrett A. Hobart and Mrs. John A. Logan.

HUNDRED

Injured in Rush When Doors of Capitol Were Thrown Open.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Just at 10 a.m. a frightful calamity was narrowly averted at the east front of the capitol. For hours a vast throng of people had massed in front of the capitol awaiting an opportunity to enter the rotunda. When the doors opened the people rushed, almost frantically, to the main staircase. The police and military guards were swept aside in a twinkling and there was a crush at the foot of the staircase. Despite the efforts of the police and military approximately a hundred people were injured. A number were seriously injured, but the majority was either taken or went unassisted to their homes.

When the remains were finally closed forever to the view of the Washington people; the cavalry escort was again formed to convey them to the special train which is now carrying the body to Canton.

Charles E. Hannold.

Mr. Charles E. Hannold, one of the best known and highly respected citizens of Washington county, died at his home in at Dell at 12:40 o'clock Tuesday morning. He was seen on the streets of Marietta last Friday and seemed to be enjoying good health and Monday evening was up and about the house and sat up in his bed only half an hour before he died.

Mr. Hannold was born in Strattonville, Pa., and moved to Marietta in the fifties and worked at the carpenter trade until his old age compelled him to retire from active life. He was seventy-five years of age. He leaves two daughters and three sons, Mrs. R. W. Miller, of Marietta, Miss Della Hannold, of Dell and G.

A. F. C. and C. C. Hannold all of this city.

The funeral will be held at the house at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon with burial in Mound cemetery.

Squire's Court.

Misses Parker and Sleigh got judgment Tuesday in Squire Kidd's court against Charles O'Day for $204.25, for doing some decorating in his house on Front street.

Weather Forecast.

West Virginia—Clear Wednesday and probably Thursday. Ohio—Clear Wednesday and probably Thursday.
