BOY'S BROTHERHOOD

Enthusiastic Meeting of Boys and Advisory Council—Ives Boys Brotherhood To Be Continued Under New Plans—Mr. Ives Remains The Chief Leader.

For the past four years the Ives Boys Brotherhood has been one of the institutions of which citizens of Wauseon have had great reason to be proud. The result of its working has been to produce as fine a body of many industrious and manly boys as any town or city in any state of the union has ever had reason to take pride in and boast of. The leading spirit in this work with the boys of Wauseon and vicinity has been and still is Mr. C. J. Ives. It was due to his initiative and effort that the boys were organized in the first place and the boys themselves chose the name of their organization "The Ives Boys Brotherhood." Mr. Ives has been without stint of his time and strength to this organization and it has grown under his leadership, (or rather with his leadership, for he has been a big brother, always with the boys to counsel advise and suggest,) from a mere handful of boys to a membership in good standing of 83 boys.

ROLL OF HONOR

Slowly the Fund For The Soldiers Monument Grows Larger. Another School District Added To The Roll—Minimum Amount Nearly Half Raised.

ROLL OF HONOR

There is a no surrender spirit pervading the Monumental Association and we feel that we have passed beyond the stage of discouragement. In the words of the great general of honored memory we are determined to "Fight it out on this line if it takes all summer" and there is to be no truce until the monument in Fulton county is an accomplished fact. Since the last issue of the Tribune, the secretary has received in money and reported new subscriptions $52.75. The total reported last week was $1419.15. The total for this week is $1472.15, just $27.85 less than $1500, or half of the minimum amount required. Study the figures and "get busy."

T. & I. RAILWAY CO.

Toledo and Indiana Railway Company Banquet Employees of the Road and Electric Light and Power Company Sunday Evening—The Trolley Base Ball League Organized.

The fine large hall over the freight room in the new T. & I. station at Wauseon has been furnished with chairs and tables, has a fine smooth hard pine floor and is well lighted and ventilated; it makes the finest kind of an assembly room and last Sunday evening it was opened by the Toledo and Indiana Railway company when the employees of the railway and electric light and power plant were their guests at an informal luncheon. Nearly everyone of the company's employees were present at some time during the evening and over ninety were served to the appetizing comestibles provided by the hosts. The luncheon was served by Mrs. Warren and her two daughters, Mrs. Hancock of Bryan and Mrs. Norris of Delta.

REFLECTIONS FOR THE EDITOR OF THE FAYETTE REVIEW.

I have read the Fayette Review for several years and have been interested in many of the sayings of its editor. I have read with pleasure his denunciations of rotten politics, corrupt political bosses and machines. But of late there seems to have been a change come over him for what he once condemned in politics he now praises. It could not be that he has been given some little political office for this change of heart.

WILCOX-LEE.

On Saturday afternoon March 21st, Mr. Harry N. Wilcox and Miss Neva Lee were joined in marriage by Rev. J. A. Wharton, minister of the Christian church. The ceremony was performed at the home of the minister, 130 N. Franklin street.

KATE B. SHERWOOD

Tribute To Her Character and Work. From Mrs. Allen Shadle Read At Memorial Services Held By Wauseon W. R. C. Wednesday March 18th.

This special call of today, is to pay a loving tribute to one of the noblest of humanity, it is nation wide. From Maine to California her name is known and revered for the life, long spent in doing good to others. By voice, by pen, by physical exertion, by all the devices of her active brain, she has inspired and framed the national love and esteem, which those who knew her best can daily testify to the noble traits of her heroic character, in forming and framing the ground work for many of the noblest of philanthropic societies the world has ever known. It was for her to suggest plans to operate on, and hosts of other noble women were ready to take up the line of march and aid her in bringing about her many plans for the good of the young, the old, the weak and the heavy laden. For nearly fifty years we have been familiar with the name of Mrs. Kate Brown Sherwood, and her beautiful songs of praise, which she freely gave upon every occasion where the soldiers were collected at encampment at reunions, or camps, fires, never failing to command to all that was good and great, none knew her but to love and admire her.

She inherited a high degree of intelligence and a firm development, were brought out to the bright scintillations of purity of soul, loyalty to country and humanity, and no more devoted wife and mother ever lived than the one whom the nation mourns today, but her life has not been spent in vain, and although the summons came to her so suddenly, her good deeds will never fade, and although we call her dead, really "There is no dead, what seems so is transience." "She is not dead she sleeps; and she shall wake to new joy, new triumph, and new power." Wake to receive her birthday and her dowry. Soon will the everlasting morning break. Soon will the mists and clouds, her soul forsake. And other mid leafy glade, and sunny bowers. Shall live each tree and bloom each sweet bright flower. She loved on earth, her heart's home to remake. We mourn but when for her that Sun shall rise. We shall forget our grief, and earth her place. And watch the dawn with glad expectant eye. That shall restore our dead to life again: As come bright birds along the Summer skies. We bloom bright flowers after the summer's rain. We say farewell, dear friend; for the No sob of ours shall mar the Angel's song: We thank thee that which hath thy spirit saved: Didst thou not know of love's eternity? Death hath but crowned thee Death has set thee free! Thou art thyself! thyself! freed, great and strong. With all the powers which to thy soul belong. And visions which to earthly eyes are hid. We know thy worth; we know thy heart of gold. Rich with its treasures of life manifold: Rich with its treasures of life manifold: We know "He stiveth beloved sleep." And that for them a place has been prepared. We who with thee our earthly love have shared. Know well that Heavenly love thy soul will keep. Rest, rest loved one, in sweet slumber deep. The sleep of earth is not to be compared With heavenly rest which hath thy spirit shared. And called thee hence, as shepherd calls his sheep. For thee we know that death hath had no sting: No victory the grave, and blest art thou: Therefore for thee no dirges will we sing. But love thee ever as we do now."

W. L. FINLEY.

If you doubt the truthfulness of the above statement as to whom this letter was sent write to the editor of the "Experiment," the only Democratic paper published in Huron county, Norwalk, and satisfy yourself. And now, Mr. Editor of the Review, if using Gov. Cox's appointees, to do personal work for the State Democratic Executive committee, if creating thousands of appointive offices and collecting large sums of money from a part of them as has been proven by their own confessions, and turning this money over to the chairman of Gov. Cox's State campaign committee is not building a state political machine that will rival Tammany of New York what would you call it. These few reflections are offered for the editor of the Fayette Review who says Gov. Cox is not building a political machine in Ohio. AN OBSERVER.

NORVAL D. FOUTY.

Norval D. Fouty died at his home on the farm four miles southeast of Wauseon on Monday at 10:50 p. m. Cancer of the stomach was the cause of death. From this disease he had been confined to the house for about seven weeks. Mr. Fouty was a fine man and a good farmer. All of his life was spent in Fulton county in which he was born 48 years ago Jan. 18, 1866. All of his married life he spent on the farm where he died. Of the three children born to them two have died. One young man Grant Fouty is left to mourn the loss of his father. There is one brother Mr. Theodore Fouty, one sister Mrs. Frank Whitesell, and his father Mr. Stephen Fouty. The mother died when Mr. Fouty was about four years of age.
