

International Harvester Manure Spreaders

STEEL frame on steel wheels—that is the lasting basis on which International manure spreaders are built. All parts, including box, beater, spreading mechanism, apron, are built by experts, using best materials, from careful designs based on field tests.

Every detail is strong and durable, built for long life and ease of draft. Among the features that will interest you are these: Simple protected beater driving mechanism, all of steel; gear and worm; low, easily loaded box, with ample clearance underneath; end gate, preventing clogging of beater while driving to the field; etc.

All styles are in the I. H. C. spreader line, high and low, endless and reverse apron, and various sizes for small and large farms. Our catalogues will tell you more. Write for them and let us tell you also where you may see I. H. C. manure spreaders.

WHO'S SPLIT NOW?

Address by the Hon. Edward C. Turner at Wauseon Get-to-Gether Meeting Saturday, March 28, 1914
 Reasons Why Democratic Party in Ohio Will Split.

"A house divided against itself cannot stand."
 The Republican party of the state and nation demonstrated that principle very thoroughly in 1912.

The reasons for both splits are the same. It is the attempted grafting onto the party principles and party policies the idea and policies of a few men whose personal ambitions and whose personal interests are affected. It is the attempted substitution of the desires of those in control of the machinery of the party for the judgment of the masses; who do the voting. It is the idea represented by the term "bossism." It is the slogan of the so-called party leaders, who, elated with the success of the cause they had been championing, becoming drunk and puffed up with the praise prompted by the success of the cause, until they assume that the victory was personal to themselves rather than to the cause they were supposed to be championing.

Leaders are valuable only as they are able to reflect in their leadership the sentiments and will of a majority of the people and to point out the snares and pitfalls to be encountered in disregarding such sentiment and will.

The man who fails in this man who mistakes the means for the end, who office and power are not ends. They are merely means or agencies for securing an end. Power is not delegated nor offered by the success of the party simply to serve for the aggrandizement or emolument of the recipients. They are delegated by the masses as the means of administering a trust for the benefit of the greatest possible number.

That faction of the Democratic party now in power in this state has made the fatal mistake of assuming that their victory was personal to themselves as individuals, that the offices and powers they were given were conferred solely for their own emolument, aggrandizement and convenience.

Instead of their offices and power being a means to carry out the wishes of the people, they are using them in an attempt to perpetuate themselves as individuals in office and power. By their own abuses of the power conferred by the people, they have not only presented the over-shadowing issue for this campaign, but they have disrupted their own party.

Listen to their indictment by a Democrat. I quote from the circular letter sent out by Congressman J. J. Whitaker:

"The Democrats in this state have received indication that there is universal dissatisfaction among Democrats and the people generally with Governor Cox's administration. This dissatisfaction is based on his policy of substituting a power of appointment by him for election by the people, to the end that he may have an army of personal political retainers to do his personal will. The state of Ohio ought not to be the place, the year 1913-14 not the time, and the Democratic party not the instrument whereby local government is to be set aside for any purpose, less than for the purpose of establishing a Tammany in Ohio for the furtherance of the political ambitions of the Governor."

"Under the guise of reform legislation he has established about ten thousand appointive offices to be filled by him or under his direction, thus placing ten thousand more men under direct pecuniary obligation, to him. Without sound judgment or realistic intention, but with excessive egotism, narrow ideas, limited knowledge and general superficialism he has assumed an attitude of general director of all things in general. Candidates for United States Senator are alternately picked and kicked at his changing will. Congressmen are arrogantly informed that they must support him and his measures or suffer the consequences of his imperious frown. Candidates for nomination for office are given to understand that without the support of the Governor's friends, the chances for nomination are as nothing. The very foundation principles of Democratic Government, upon which all personal and political rights are maintained, have been set aside to make room for this new imperialism of James M. Cox. Election by the people, home rule in taxation? No, never! Appointment by the Governor; that is the practice and policy of the great Progressive Ohio administration.

"There can be no compromise with this arrogant assumption of superiority over the will of the voters. Home rule in local communities in Ohio will be restored. The Democrats must either stand at the primaries, or the people will do it at the general election in November. With Gov. Cox at the head of the ticket this fall every congressional and county candidate will be imperiled. Candidates and prospective candidates must not blind their eyes to this fact; the rank and file of the Democratic party must ally with indignation and their wrath will be visited on the entire ticket if Governor Cox heads it."

"In undertaking this campaign we are face to face with a great army of employees of the state government, whose services will be given free to the cause of Governor Cox."

It takes a brave man to make a fight like that. And while Congressman Whitaker will have lots of followers and will be supported by substantial portions of the Democratic press, he can not hope to win at a party primary against such a machine as he refers to. It will be a case of unorganized volunteers against organized regulars who are fighting for a continuance of their income.

That the ranks of the Democracy are already split is certain; that there will be a family fight is just as certain.

Between now and August 11th the Democratic voters are going to learn the truth from members of their own party about the factional machine building and extravagances that are being indulged in by the present administration. But the only hope of those Democrats who are sincere in this fight against centralization is in the success of the Republican party, which while believing in a strongly centralized national government, did not and never will take away from the people of the community the management of their local affairs; a party that never did and never will assume that there can be but one officer in the state capable of trustworthiness to represent the people; a party that never did and never will tell the people that they are incapable of picking out their own local officers.

The day of "my party, right or wrong, my party" has passed. The people of this state are not nearly so vitally interested in who draws the salaries, whether they be Republican or Democrat, as they were in 1912. They are interested in how those laws are administered.

The people demand economy and efficiency, they are getting neither. They want the government to pay the cost of the army of employees under the Warnes and liquor laws the expenses of the state administration have more than doubled in seven years since Governor Herrick went out of office. The total expenses of the state for the year ending November 15th, 1910, were $10,477,889.85, under Governor Cox, amounting to $14,707,824.46.

And listen to what a Democratic editor, discussing Governor Cox's changes for re-election says:

"Let us now consider the present state of the administration's act and policies. All must agree that they have been of a character to so vitally injure the Democratic party, and to so unfortunately extend, they have been such as to drive Democratic voters to it, should the Governor be re-elected. Governor Cox gave the people in 1914 on a vote given him in 1912 which was 34,000 or 112,000 less than had been cast for any previous Democratic candidate in 1889. Governor elected since that time having to contend with policies adopted that have irritated thousands upon thousands of voters."

"Resolutions by farmers' groups condemning the acts of Governor Cox must result in the loss of democratic votes, with consequent gain to the Republicans. In contrast to the position, former Governor Harmon opening his campaign for the second term, had behind him the support of the farmers. The farmers reported Mr. Harmon almost solidly as a result of his proposed one cent tax law, which by its provision compelled a continuingly decreasing rate on an increasing tax duplicate. Now they are opposing Governor Cox on the same issue because of amendments to the law which assure no decrease in the tax rate because of increases in the duplicate. On the contrary the amended law insures a continuous increase in the number of dollars collected through taxation. To the tax payers this change has been offensive."

Listen to the editorial published in the Waverly Democrat of March 11th under the heading "The Spirit of Revolt."

"The Democrat takes no pleasure in referring to the spirit of revolt which seems to be abroad among Democrats of the state.

"Right or wrong as to their conclusions, the fact is apparent that without the support of the Governor to Governor Cox and his administration.

"According now to every indication, Democrats will go into the contest this fall, badly divided and one contingency will save them from defeat, that of a continued divided Republican party."

"Here's another, the Coldwater March 6th 1914, says:

"It doesn't require a prophet to foretell what will happen to Ohio Cox is the Democratic nominee for Governor. It will mean the election of a Republican U. S. Senator, a big loss in the congressional delegation, and the election of a Republican legislature in Ohio.

"A man who doesn't believe the people are capable of electing their county, township and municipal officers, should not have the gall to ask them to re-elect him Governor of Ohio. He should step before the people knock him out, for that's what they'll do next November by a 150,000 majority."

In another editorial the Chronical says:

"We are trying to obtain a photo of the man in this region who will vote for Jim Cox for Governor again. We want to exhibit it at the Banner fair among the other curios."

Here's one from the only Democratic paper in Huron county, the Experiment and News, and this was published in a box on their front page:

"It is a very amusing and generally conceded fact that, irrespective of party, the administration of Governor Cox has been one of continual wrangle, dissatisfaction and uneasiness. It has been an administration of cheap cheap politicians whose sole efforts have been machine building."

"The very first principle of this paper has always been for clean politics; it has always believed that a newspaper is to a certain extent a champion of public rights. The management of this paper does not believe it good citizenship to allow love of any political party to blind creators of styles are arbiters of fashion only to limited degrees in these latter days. For women have become too wise to accept styles that are devoid of beauty in lines, and the demand for beauty in colorings is positive. Those enterprising and clever creators of new ideas whose early spring song extolled bouffant draperies have already learned that the bouffant draperies have fallen down, both figuratively and literally. The idea remains, or, rather, reflections of it, but the draperies are not bunched and cumbersome at all.

Here is a gown in which Mme. Paquin has demonstrated her consummate skill by solving the problem of the new hip drapery in a satisfactory manner.

The fabric used is tafetta silk in a light feather brown. The skirt is prettily draped, falling above the figure easily, but with no unneeded fullness. It hangs from the normal waist line and the lines in it are beautiful because they are those into which the silk falls of itself.

The overdresser also falls freely from the waist line, but it is full, and corded at the edge so that it stands away from the figure. There is a wide folded grille of the silk and a bodice of net with ends extending through and below the grille.

American wearers will demand one change in this design. There will have to be more bodice. Also, for the figure of average plumpness, the standing ruffles on the shoulder will have to be omitted. We shall see this beautiful design with the bodice adapted to American taste, and American taste does not run to such drapery above the waist line or too much below it.

With all due respect to the wonderful Paquin, the gown will not be any less beautiful when some one of our own producers has Americanized the bodice.

Among other available fabrics besides tafetta, challis and soft cotton crepes merit attention. They are inexpensive and elegant and, the colorings are refined and beautiful. Either of them will develop a gown, patterned after the model shown here, that will be equally attractive.

The design is simple, but the skirt can hardly be managed without a pattern. There need be no difficulty about this, because nearly all the standard pattern concerns have models similar to it. The overall is a plated bouffant sloping up to the waist line at the front. The grille is made of two wide bias strips, and fastens with a flat bow at the back.

A plain net waist or a lace waist might be worn, with shirred shoulder straps made of the same material as the skirt, or the model, just as it is pictured, could be worn with a lace or net gusset. The introduction in the bodice of a touch of the material of the waist is preferable because it apparently lengthens the figure, which is almost another way of saying that it makes one look more graceful.

 "THE CAR WITH A CONSCIENCE"

Originality

There are a good many noticeable features about Oakland cars. But nothing is freakish. It is our aim to build beautiful cars but not costly ones. We strive for symmetry.

The same standard is used in the chassis, in which there are found originalities, but nothing that is not soundly done. We do not guess at anything. Guessing has cost millions to manufacturers and disappointment to owners.

The men who build Oakland cars understand thoroughly motor car values and are well grounded in motor car construction.

The men who have had experience in the automobile centers of the old world as well as the United States.

These are men watch the trend in automobile design and are quick to discern whether an idea is a good one or bad one.

If it is a good one, it goes in the Oakland car, but if an idea is popular for the time, but we know is incorrect in principle, it does not go in.

The 1914 line includes many types of open and closed bodies on four and six cylinder chassis. $1150 to $2600, fully equipped, f. o. b. Pontiac.

Mrs. Perkins Finds Swift Relief After First Dose of Mayr's Remedy

Mrs. W. E. Perkins of Point Place, R. R. No. 7, Toledo, suffered for a long time from stomach troubles. She felt bad most of the time and she could hardly ever find anything to eat that would agree with her.

She took Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy and was surprised at the sudden restoration that followed. She wrote:

"I have been taking your remedy and it has done me so much good and I am so much better that I am eating most any and every thing that I used to years ago before I knew what Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy was. I heard of your wonderful medicine."

Similar letters have been written by thousands of people in all parts of the United States Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy is known everywhere. The first dose proves—no long treatment.

Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy clears the digestive tract of mucoid secretions and removes poisonous matter. It brings quick relief to sufferers from stomach, liver and bowel troubles. Many dangerous operations and many are used it has saved their lives.

Because of the wonderful success of this remedy there are many imitators, so be cautious. Be sure it's MAYR'S. Just Like Father.

"I never saw a boy so much like his father—your husband's hair and eyes, even his manner of speech. But why does he jump when you speak to him?" "Because he is so much like his father."—Houston Post.

And now you want another term. To carry out your plan, just wait until November, Jim. And you will get the "can". And when "er you've heaped the turf."

We'll laughingly turn aside, And write upon your tombstone, Jim, "Defunct by Vonderhaide."

Lack of time forbids further quotation. Suffice it to say that a veritable portion of the Democratic party will under no circumstances vote for the re-election of Governor Cox.

On the other hand, as pointed out by Democratic editors, the Cox administration has been the means of solidifying the Republican party.

It is not surprising, therefore, that the party are going to hold him accountable to the extent of demanding a hearing. The people are not in a mood to be tampered with.

And here is one from the Ohio Patriot, the oldest Democratic paper in Ohio:

"The proper thing for Governor Cox to do is to retire from the race for Governor and allow the party to name a man as candidate who would have a chance to win out. With Cox Cox has no chance of winning the election. The chances of the other Democrats on the ticket. The fact might as well be faced by the Governor. Not one Democrat in the Columbus county is for the Governor and his nomination will disrupt the party."

The Coldwater Chronicle published this one:

"Oh, Jimmy Cox, my Joe Jim, When we were first acquainted, I thought you were a statesman, Jim, But now I know you ain't. That you are just for Jim alone, 'Tis easy to be seen, You own a legislature, Jim, And run a big machine. You've tagged your legislature, Jim, The proper thing to do, For it might wander from its cage, And bring up in a zoo. So don't let the rank of Jim, Don't let it get away, There'll be no other like it, Jim, Forever and a day. Just put your ear close to the ground And tell me what you hear, The rumble of an earthquake, Jim, Will surely hit your ear; Wherever there's a chance for a fraud, You feelers get a slice, You fool the people once, Dear Jim, You can not do it twice.
