

The Holy Week in the Eternal City

There is always a large crowd at St. Peter's on Palm Sunday and as early as eight o'clock the people begin to assemble. The ceremonial itself lasts about three hours and in order to see it many visitors stand for five or six hours. Ladies alone are favored with seats, and only then if they are in dark dresses and with black veils over their heads, instead of hats and bonnets. One of the papal regiments is always on duty within the sacred precincts to be replaced by the "double guard" of the pope when the latter enters the church. During the service the chief sacristan brings forth an armful of so-called palms and places them on the high altar. These are stalks about three feet long resembling a walking cane dressed up with wisps of yellow straw. In reality they are stalks to which artificial palm leaves had been glued.

His holiness the pope, who dresses plainly for the occasion on account of the fact that the church is still in mourning during the Lenten season, enters the church in his chair of state. He advances up the nave; he gives his blessing to the assembled multitude until he finally reaches the throne at the further end of the church.

Blessing the Palms.

After some music the pope proceeds to bless the palms which are brought to him from the altar. The blessing is effected by reading certain prayers and the incensing of the palms three times. An embroidered apron is now placed upon the pope's knee and the cardinal advances to his holiness, receive a palm from him, kissing his right hand, his knee and the palm. The mitred abbots, who are next to receive the palms, kiss the pope's foot instead of his hand. There is some more music and then low mass is said, after which the pope is carried back with the same gravity to the small chapel whence he came, which connects by a passage with the Vatican.

The great event in Rome on Wednesday in holy week is the singing of the Miserere in the Sistine chapel. The service which is also called Tenebrae from the darkness in which it is held begins at half-past four. The whole office is a finely finished musical composition which is performed by organ and sung by voices of what is probably the finest choir in the world. During the singing of the service all the candles on the altar are extinguished one by one, with the exception of the topaz which is placed in a concealed behind the high altar, a symbol of death of all the prophets before the coming of the Savior and of the resurrection of the Christ.

The Sacred Oils.

On Thursday, the ceremony of blessing the oils takes place in St. Peter's during mass. There are three varieties of oil to be blessed and the ritual surrounding benediction is somewhat complex. The first is the oil of the catechumens used in blessings, baptism, in consecrating churches or ordaining priests and in blessing and anointing sick and dying. The second is the oil used in extreme unction administered to those who are dying, while the third or sacred chrism composed of oil of the balm of Gilead is used in confirmation, in the consecration of bishops and in the blessing of bells. The bishop is attended by at least twelve priests with seven deacons and seven subdeacons all robed in white, and the ceremony is most impressive to the members of the Catholic church.

All the bells in Rome are mute from half past eleven on Thursday morning until Saturday evening and such is the force of custom that in many of the hotels handbells are employed to announce the hour for dinner and even school bells are mute. On Thursday also the pope attends at St. Peter's for the ceremonial washing of 13 bishops. The pope is dressed very plainly in a white with a small white biretta and a red cape. He divests himself of his cape before the ceremonial and at the close presents each of the bishops with a towel and a few flowers, a gold medal being afterwards sent to them by an official of the Vatican.

Ceremonial of the Supper.

After this there is the ceremonial celebration of the Supper, in which the 13 bishops and 13 deacons, the pope, who pours out wine and water for them to drink. On this day the altars are all stripped and there is set up in the nave of St. Peter's the grand penitential where a cardinal sits to give absolution for mortal sins, which are beyond the sphere of ordinary confession.

In the streets on the evening of Thursday the shops of sausage-makers, candlemakers, and pork dealers are decorated and illuminated in a most fantastic way. The most important object in such a state of the Virgin and Child enshrined amidst candles and flowers.

On Good Friday the air of gloom is accentuated in the churches. The pope is robed in red but he neither wears his ring nor gives his blessing. The soldiers' arms are reversed and all decorations possible are stripped from the altars. Yet notwithstanding the peculiar solemnity of the religious services of the day the shops, public offices and places of business, also the palazzos, where pictures are shown, remain open as usual—the only indication of the religious character of the day outside of the churches being the muteness of the church bells. This disregard of Good Friday in Rome particularly strikes the Protestant visitors who come from countries where the day is observed reverently and gaily.

Rejoicings Are Loud.

On Saturday evening on the reading of a particular passage in the Sistine chapel the use of St. Peter's are rung, the guns of St. Angelo are fired and all the bells of the city immediately break forth. At St. Peter's there is the blessing of the paschal fire and the paschal candle is lighted. As might be expected Easter Sunday is celebrated in Rome with elaborate ceremonial, the pope himself officiating at high mass at St. Peter's with the most gorgeous ritual. The magnificent basilica is decorated and altars and round the tomb of St. Peter. Seated in his official chair and robed in vestments which scintillate with gold and precious stones and wearing on his head a magnificent tiara the pope enters the crowded church. Beside him are borne two large fans of ostrich feathers and over him is a richly embroidered canopy. After officiating, the pope leaves the church to appear a few moments later surrounded by high officials of the church in the central balcony from where he extends his blessing. In the evening the dome and the entire church are a blaze of candles and artificial lights.

"Alive Unto God."

Not the future state of the soul, but its present condition is the vital thing. Men are hidden not to be anxious about the morrow—and that may include the eternal morrow—since "the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself." And all will be well with man, as with the "fowls of the air" and "the lilies of the field," if, as they do, he performs the functions ordained for him, and is loyal to the true law of his being. Human souls are to "be dead indeed unto sin" in order that they may be "alive unto God." If they are thus alive their immortality is assured. "There needs no ghost come from the grave to tell us this,"—Exchange.

Promise of the Spring.

Today people are not so much concerned with the date of termination of the Easter fest—unless it be the makers and sellers of fashions, who would like to see it come as early as possible, the better to dispose of their wares. Today men and women accept the feast of gladness and the promise of the spring to come, but thinking of the joy of the resurrection and the promise of the spring to come.

GATHER FOR JUDGMENT DAY

Moravians Visit Burial Ground Easter Sunday to Bury the Dead, Should They Arise.

The Moravian churches of this country have their Passion week, with somewhat peculiar rites. They settled in Pennsylvania and North Carolina. At Bethlehem and other places, except the feast of gladness and the promise of the spring to come, but thinking of the joy of the resurrection and the promise of the spring to come.

The church congregation is up before the dawn of Easter day. They assemble at the church and proceed to the burying ground to welcome the dead should they rise. They are led by a brass band and church choir. The concourse passes up the broad gravelled walk, which runs between rows of ancient cedars, to the center of the cemetery, which is odd, quiet and beautiful. There they pause and sing hymns, in which all the people join. The singing stops as the sunlight comes over the rugged eastern hills. All is silent and solemn while the clergyman reads out the names of those who have been placed to rest in the burying ground since the previous Easter.

Easter and the Passover.

Although the date of Easter had been settled with the particular intention of preventing it from ever occurring on the same day as the Jewish Passover, the Nicene decree failed to prevent this entirely. Since 1800 Easter and the Passover have been observed together on April 12 in 1805, 1825 and 1918. Also they will occur together on April 1, 1923; April 17, 1927, and April 9, 1931. However, the Passover usually falls on the week before Easter. It never comes before March 26 nor later than April 25.

Treat Catarrh new way

Head colds, too, yield to the double action of Vicks VapoRub

Apply Vicks up the nostrils. Snuff it well back. Also melt some Vicks in a spoon or tin cup and inhale the vapors. At night repeat and rub an neck. Vapors will be inhaled all night.

Sufferers from chronic catarrh will get welcome relief and better sleep thru this treatment, and persistence will be well rewarded.

Just rub it on and breathe in the vapors

THE EMPTY GUN

Write as the saying is about the "empty" gun being the most deadly, and as often as the explanation that "he didn't know it was loaded" has been given following a tragedy, the careless handling of firearms still continues. Hardly a day passes in America that someone is not fatally shot by a supposedly empty weapon. The fatal business goes on as though a warning had never been issued. We once knew of a father who instructed his children never to point a gun of any kind at anybody. Doubtless he taught to said bonds, both principal and interest being payable at the office of the Treasurer of said village in Wauseon, Ohio, said bonds being issued under authority of Section 3916 of the General Code of Ohio, for the purpose of extending the time of payment of an indebtedness which from its limits of taxation, said corporation is unable to pay at maturity.

DEMILLE FILM HAS BRILLIANT CAST

Quartet of Famous Players Distinguish "Midsummer Madness"

A breath-taking story and a brilliant cast are the combination promised in William DeMille's latest picture, "Midsummer Madness," coming to the Princess Theatre for two days commencing Tuesday next.

The story was adapted from Cosmo Hamilton's novel, "His Friend and His Wife." Mr. Hamilton is well known as the author of "Scandal," "The B. indness of virtue," and many other successful plays and stories.

The plot centers around two young married couples who are close friends. One of the wives is so lavish with her outward expressions of her love for her husband that he becomes a bit tired of her. Now that she is so completely won, he longs for new fields to conquer. His friends' wife, on the other hand, is blessed with a husband who is more interested in business than in her; she craves romance. So an "over-loved" husband and his friend's under-loved wife are attracted to each other. In a moment of folly, they commit an indiscretion that nearly ruins four lives.

COLDS AFFECTS THE KIDNEYS

Many Wauseon People Have Found This To Be True

Are you wretched in bad weather? Does every cold settle on your kidneys? Does your back ache and become weak? Are urinary passages irregular and distressing? These symptoms are cause to suspect kidney weakness.

Weakened kidneys need quick help. Doan's Kidney Pills are especially prepared for weakened kidneys. Wauseon people recommend them. Ask your neighbor.

Mrs. Lydia E. Yarnell, 111 E. Walnut St., Wauseon, says: "I keep Doan's Kidney Pills on hand all the time. I know there is no better remedy for kidney complaint. At times when I take cold or over-work it causes dull nagging backaches and a soreness over my kidneys. My kidneys also acted irregularly. Doan's Kidney Pills from Read, Wager and Gorschuch's Drug Store have always put my kidneys in good order again and relieved the backache. I know Doan's are a fine remedy."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Yarnell had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.
