HON. JOHN R. HANKEY.
Republican Candidate for Senator.

WOOD county, one of the most important of the many counties in the great State of Ohio, and of the 33d Senatorial District, has not been honored with a State Senator since 1853, and it is, therefore, but a just tribute to the Republicans of the county that one of our citizens should be selected to grace the ticket nominated by the Republican Senatorial convention of this district.

For many years Wood county has been accustomed to labor for the election of candidates who have been selected from other counties of the district, and never have the Republicans failed to do their entire duty in this respect, and it was but a fitting acknowledgment of worthy efforts of the past, that Wood county should be honored with a candidate for Senator this year.

In the nomination of Mr. Hankey one of Wood county's most worthy citizens and Republicans has been selected, and by his election the senatorial district will be represented earnestly, faithfully and well; its interests will, in every particular, be given the care and attention of an active and able legislator; and when the time arrives for the selection of a Senator to succeed Calvin S. Brice, in the U. S. Senate, Mr. Hankey's vote will conform to the sovereign will of the people and will be cast for the grand and gallant Republican, ex-Governor Joseph B. Foraker.

Mr. Hankey's entire life has been one of activity and progression. Being thrown upon his own resources at a very early age he has by energy, sound judgment and honorable methods, succeeded in rising to a position of independence and affluence.

He has never been an office-seeker, and with the exception of an appointment as trustee of the State Blind asylum during the administration of Governor Foraker, has never held an office, and in this instance he disposed of the duties with credit to himself, the institution and the State.

Of his early life and struggles at the beginning of his career the evening Tribune of Bowling Green published the following: "John R. Hankey was born on a farm in Wayne county, O., in the year 1843. At an early age he was taught to till the soil and fell the trees of the dense forests which were on every side. A very meagre education was obtained at the country schools, which, to say the best, were not excellent; but worse yet, he did not have the chance he should have had to attend even these.

At the age of seven years his mother died, and the boy was left without that valuable and lasting advice which none but a mother can impart. Later the father moved from the old farm into West Salam.

At the age of 15 years the subject of this sketch determined to leave the parental roof and seek his fortune by hard knocks. Work was not plenty in his home town and he started out on foot to Wooster, a distance of 17 miles. Upon arriving in the city he made application with the J. B. Child's clothing firm for a position. The proprietor saw that there was something in the lad and gave him work at $100 per year and board. Well it was that he was so lucky, for he had not sufficient money in his pocket to purchase a square meal. Young Hankey was careful and attentive to business and was not long in learning the ways of trade which soon made him a valuable man to his employer."

He continued with the Child's foot to Wooster, a distance of 17

Careful people make the Underwear we sell, and then they are more elaborate than you would take the time and patience to make; and then, again, they are cheaper, if you figure it up.

CARPETS.

We have better facilities now than we ever have had for handling Carpets, and propose to make this one of our main lines. We sold everything we had in stock before moving to our new room, (except a few short ends and remnants), therefore, our line to-day is strictly new.

Let us say this: If Desirable Patterns, Good Qualities and Low Prices will build up a business, WE MEAN TO DO IT.
