—The magazine for the women who sews, "STYLE AND AMERICAN DRESSMAKER" has a beautiful evening scene on the front cover of the August number. There are several designs of the PETER PAN DRESS, which has already proven so popular. There are also many good suggestions for fashions for the late summer and early fall. The children's fashions are unique and original and cannot be duplicated anywhere and through their agency alone, the magazine should find favor with women who make children's clothes. The young girls will find a new department which will interest them; Embroidery designs. In fact, the whole magazine is replete with clever ideas for the woman who sews.

Send 10c for sample copy, or $1.00 for year's subscription to STYLE AND AMERICAN DRESSMAKER, 24-26 East 21st Street, New York.

Homer's Seven Cities.

It has been said that "seven cities claimed Homer dead, who while living had no place to lay his head," or words to that effect—that is to say, Homer's fame became such after his death that seven cities contended for the honor of having been the place of his birth. Do you know the name of those seven cities? They are Chios, Athens, Rhodes, Colophon, Argos, Smyrna and Salamis.
