FRIDAY MAY 24, 1907

Returning explorers from a neighborhood of Jamestown report it in much the same condition as when first discovered by Capt. John Smith.

Gen. Kuroki has visited Washington and departed without expressing a single opinion on the San Francisco school question. Those Japs are diplomats as well as fighters.

Farmers who are raising wheat at fifty cents a bushel ought to be able to get some reflex consolation out of the fact that it is selling for a dollar a bushel on the Chicago exchange.

Under the direction of the Secretary of the Navy a vigorous crusade will be started against all derelicts. Col. Bryan ought to be thankful that the Navy Department does not operate on land.

Lillian Russell's daughter has just secured a separation from her husband. Looks as though the Russell family ought to buy their marriage certificates with a divorce coupon attached.

Modern society doubtless makes a mistake in not finding something for idle women to do. The idle woman is the menace of later-day civilization. It is tolerably certain that there are more busy women and more idle women in this country than were ever before assembled under one flag. The idle would like to find something to do. They turn in their annual to bridge whist, to amateur philanthropy, to church sociable charity, to visiting and gossip. The old story that "Satan will find some mischief still for idle hands to do," is daily exemplified here. The Catholic church in its wisdom uniforms hundreds of its adult female children and sets them to work nursing the sick, teaching the young, and at other more or less useful employments, but there are millions within and without the church who are living under the distracting burden of idleness. It is a malady of modern high pressure civilization.

It looks from a White House viewpoint as though there were going to be war in Ohio after all. Boss Cox of Cincinnati, said he was ready to come out of retirement and be a party to any old sort of harmony. Secretary Taft said all he wanted was harmony and even Senator Foraker said he would like a little harmony too. But it developed on further inspection that what they all wanted was different brands of harmony. Senator Foraker said that on consideration, he found the sort of harmony he was expected to be a party to would involve an easy chair and a cooling drink in some retired spot where the turmoil of public life would not disturb him. This was not what he wanted. Rest was not what he was after, he only wanted recreation. Boss Cox said he spoke only for himself, just the way he has usually worked when there was anything doing. And Secretary Taft who has not been saying much, found that the harmony program was off and has continued to maintain a discrete silence. It will be war to the knife till the elections in Ohio a year hence. It will mean from present appearances the political death of Senator Foraker or the extinction of Mr. Taft's presidential prospects. If it results in divorcing the Taft forces from the alliance with Mr. Cox, there will not be much cause for regret. The record made by the boss of Cincinnati while effective in practical politics, is not enviable from an ethical standpoint. It is to be hoped that a truce may be arranged within the state party, but the sort of a peace that was promised was a little worse than war.

Then There Was a Row. "Now, sir," she commanded, "look me in the face and deny, if you dare, that you married me for money!" He raised his eyes until they were directed to her countenance and faltered: "Well, I think I earned the cash, don't you, dear?"—London Mail.

POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE WED

On Tuesday evening, May 21, 1907, at 8:30 o'clock, Miss Bessie E. Sower became the bride of Oliver T. Davis, the ceremony taking place at the M. E. parsonage, conducted by Rev. Sower, and was witnessed by the immediate families of the high contracting parties, and Mrs. M. E. Windsor and Mrs. Richard O'Day.

After the ceremony refreshments were served. The parlors were charmingly decorated with purple and white lilies and the bride attired in an elegant costume of white dotted swiss.

The bridal couple left for Toledo where they took the steamer for Buffalo and Niagara Falls, expecting to return and be at home to their friends in about ten days. They will reside in the Frederick residence on West Second street.

The bride is the daughter of Rey. and Mrs. Sower and the groom is the eldest son of J. Davis and wife, both young people being most highly esteemed by a large circle of friends who extend them best wishes for a happy future.

LIME CITY SCHOOLS

Commencement Exercises Held Thursday Night were Very Interesting.

On Thursday evening last at the M. E. church in Lime City the annual Commencement of the High School was held, and was attended by a large audience.

The graduates were the Misses Gertrude Zingg and Helen Ault. The programme of exercises was very interesting, the graduates each delivering orations. Miss Zingg taking for her subject, "Climbing the Heights," while Miss Ault spoke of the "Geometry of Life." Both young ladies treating their subjects with great credit to themselves and the school. They were deserving the congratulations they received.

The programme was interspersed with musical selections by Fuller's orchestra of Perrysburg which were highly pleasing to the large audience present.

The class address was delivered by G. W. Housekeeper of B. G., while Rev. Sawyer of Perrysburg, gave a very interesting talk on the subject of education.

The schools have been under the careful direction of Prof. M. Bowers as Superintendent and Mrs. M. C. Eckenrode as Principle, and they have had the cordial support of the Board consisting of Eh Crass as President; Chas. Zingg, Clerk; Isaac Whitson, Treasurer; and L. S. Warner and Wm. Grover.

The Lime City schools have been doing excellent work.

A Narrow Escape.

G. W. Cloyd, a merchant, of Plunk, Mo., had a narrow escape four years ago, when he ran a Jimson bur into his thumb. He says: "The doctor wanted to amputate it but I would not consent. I bought a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and that cured the dangerous wound." 25c at Wm. Comstock & Son's, druggists.

RECITAL
"Enoch Arden," Tennyson's beautiful poem, set to music by Richard Strauss, will be presented by Mrs. E. D. Gardiner, reader, and Miss Anna Garber, pianist, at the Presbyterian church, under the auspices of the Dorcas society, Tuesday evening, June 4, at 7:30. Tickets 25 cents.
The Blade complimented Mrs. Gardiner in the following:
Before a large and appreciative audience in Central Congregational church last evening, Mrs. E. D. Gardiner gave her exquisite reading of Enoch Arden, accompanied by Prof. Arthur Kortheuer, who interpreted Richard Strauss' wonderful musical setting for this great soul poem. From the first Mrs. Gardiner had the sympathy of the cultured audience in the telling of the story of these simple, honest people of a little English coast town that Tennyson has made famous.
All the beauty of the summer and autumn of the English downs, the music of the sea, the happy laughter of the children at play, and later the stronger emotions of love and the anguish of strong souls were all expressed with delicacy and force, to which the music added a note of gladness or sorrow, as the story ran.
His Old Letters.
A Wall street business man showed a visitor a bundle of old letters that he was taking home from his office to burn in his furnace. "I wasn't always so particular about these useless business letters," he said, "until I learned that the women cleaners were sorting them out of the wastebaskets and selling them to certain firms which make a business of furnishing lists of names for various purposes, mostly to speculative concerns. Then I concluded that I owed it to my clients to protect them from the nuisance that follows getting one's name on a mailing list."—New York Sun.
The Aye-aye.
A very strange animal, related to the lemurs and peculiar to Madagascar, is the aye-aye. It feeds on wood boring grubs that tunnel into the bark of trees. The beast cuts away the outer bark with its chisel-like teeth, and as the worm retreats to the end of its hole pokes after it with a finger. This finger is a remarkable organ, evidently provided by nature for this purpose, being abnormally long and armed with a hook shaped claw for dragging out the grub.
The Inspector's Life.

A Dramatic Child.
When my son was two or three years old he was seated in his high chair at the table eating corn batter cakes and molasses, of which he was fond. After eating as many cakes as were good for him he was told he could have no more. Heaving a great sigh, he took the plate in both hands and licked all the molasses off. Then, looking steadily at the plate as he held it up before him, he said seriously, "I ain't got no more use for you," and threw it back over his head to the floor, where it broke to pieces.—Chicago Tribune.

Russian Jurymen.
The most incredible stories have been told of Russian jurymen. Thus the foreman of a jury declared he would not send a poor fellow to prison because it happened to be his (the jurymen's) birthday. Another jury had agreed upon a verdict of guilty when the church bells began to ring. They revised their verdict because a holiday had begun. A burglar was allowed to go free because the man whom he had robbed had refused to lend him money. This in the opinion of the jury was a direct incentive to crime.
