Before you step aboard a train purchase a ticket. A penalty of ten cents will be charged on each fare if you do not. This is the state law.

Our last legislature made some little changes in the game laws, and some of our Nimrods should not forget the fact. You may hunt squirrels this year in October instead of September, and you may kill all you find. The lawmakers also took one day off from the quail and rabbit limit. Twelve quail is all that one man can kill on any one day this year. The former law placed it at 18.

A very pretty custom, that has been in vogue in European countries for centuries and in our own southern states for many years, is that of naming farm houses. There is no more reason why a farm should not be named than there would be for not naming a dog or horse, yet it would seem that the people of the north do not take kindly to the idea. Some of our farmers near here have taken up the custom and we hope to see it grow until it becomes prevalent throughout the country.

Do you care to save $10.00 a barrel?

Actual tests have proven that at five cents a loaf for bakers' bread you would save precisely $10.00 a barrel on every barrel of

PRIDE OF LIMA FLOUR

Isn't that a pretty important consideration in itself—to say nothing of the lighter, whiter, sweeter, more nutritious bread?

AN OPINION ON ELECTION.

In the opinion of Senator Nathan B. Scott, the antinegro planks in the platform of West Virginia Democrats insures beyond all question the success of Mr. Taft in that state at the November election, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

West Virginia has a large percentage of colored voters, most of whom are accustomed to vote the Republican ticket. But the Brownsville affair created a great deal of dissatisfaction among them, just as it did among the negroes of other Northern states, and the Republican leaders there were beginning to show apprehension over what course they might pursue with respect to the Presidency. But now, by adopting a plank favoring virtual disfranchisement of negroes and also "Jim Crow" cars on the railroads, the Democrats, according to Senator Scott's view, have absolutely lost every chance of capturing any portion of the negro Republican vote.

"Secretary Taft will carry West Virginia by a comfortable majority," said the veteran politician and member of the National Committee, tonight. "Personally, I never have had any serious misgiving on this point, although some of the Republicans of the state were somewhat worried over the possibility of negro disaffection. But now even these men are confident there is no hope of Bryan getting our Electoral vote, in view of the action of the Democratic State Convention this week. I see no good reason why any one should doubt that Taft will be elected, either."

The Toledo police seem to be anticipating an influx of criminals during the G. A. R. Encampment, and are now making plans for the protection of citizens and visitors. The city has long been considered the abiding place of a large number of the criminal class and if the present force is to be augmented by foreign talent the average country editor will find it necessary to remain at home or to be provided with special protection in order to insure safety of his wealth during his sojourn in the city. However, it is safe to predict that Toledo will take the best of care of the visitors, as she usually does, and we are perfectly satisfied to take a chance in the city with all of our dollar and thirteen cents which we have been carefully saving for this occasion.

Road improvement will receive encouragement from a new source in the decision of the Lucas county Coroner who holds the County Commissioners guilty of contributory negligence because of the bad condition of the road where the recent automobile accident occurred in which two lives were lost. Who shall say the Coroner is not right in his finding? Why have roads unless they are kept in good condition?

The Democratic County convention will be held at Bowling Green next Tuesday and will be honored with the presence of Hon. I. R. Sherwood, candidate for Congress, and ex-Gov. J. E. Campbell. Perrysburg township will have candidates for three different offices—Phillip Wetzel for Auditor; F. E. Bowers for Probate Judge, and Adam E. Leydorf for Treasurer.

Get your flags and bunting ready for decorating purposes during the Encampment week. Perrysburg will have thousands of visitors, and we should let the veterans know that we appreciate their past service and welcome their presence among us.

After Armour injected a little new blood in his ball team the Toledo club has succeeded in winning a few games and now occupy second place. May the powers that be, help them to hold on to all they have and win another notch. There is no town on earth that we would rather have win the pennant than good old Toledo, but we certainly did begin to feel discouraged, but now that the light of success seems to shine on the MUDHENS we hope there will be no eclipse.

The recent accidents on street railway lines and by automobiles all point to the one fact that the people are keeping up too fast a pace. In nearly every instance the loss of life is chiefly due to the great speed of the car or machine. The race is not always to the swift. Moral—slow down and live longer.

SHOT AT THE CAT

But Man Gets Part of the Charge of Shot.

While loading tile in the Perrysburg Tile yard, last Friday, Wm. Adamson received part of the charge of shot that was intended for a very bad Thomas cat that had been too busy stealing rabbits. It happened this way:

John Wilson, the Superintendent of the tile yard, has some tame rabbits in the yard which he very much admires, and they have been very much annoyed and a few of them killed by a very voracious Thomas cat who seemed to have a taste for rabbit, and Mr. Wilson had loaded his gun with a small charge of shot with the intention of slaughtering the cat as soon as possible.

The second scene in this catastrophe finds Wm. Adamson loading his wagon with tile in the tile yard. The Thomas cat appears with his appetite sharpened for rabbit, soon followed by Mr. Wilson with his gun loaded for cats. The cat is seen hiding in a large tile; Wilson blazes away at the cat. Adamson feels something hit his legs, and calls to Wilson to know what he is doing, who replies, "shooting cats." "Well, you have peppered me also," said Adamson, and upon investigation it was found that one shot had entered the right leg a few inches above the ankle and another had entered the left thigh just below the groin. Dr. Bowers decided not to attempt to remove the latter shot because of its close proximity to an artery. Adamson is now taking a rest at home while the doctor is looking after his injuries.

The shooting was purely accidental and Mr. Wilson is greatly grieved over the accident. No serious results are anticipated from the wounds.

NEW PAROLE LAW

Sentences Given Under New Law in Wood County.

A recent amendment to the criminal laws, made by the last legislature, providing for parole by the trial judge, has been given a trial in Wood county.

Frank Camp arrested some time ago, having been indicted for non-support by the grand jury has entered a plea of guilty and has been sentenced to the reformatory at Mansfield, the sentence being suspended, however, while he takes care of his wife. Camp works in a printing office at Norwalk and has gone there to work.

George Breck, who had entered a plea of not guilty to failure to support his child, has changed his plea to guilty and has been sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory.

Sentence in the case of Breck was also suspended, or rather a provision in the law, added at the recent legislature, was taken advantage of by Prosecutor Ladd and papers issued in both the Breck and Camp cases, indicating that the men are on parole from the Mansfield Institution and that they are subject to all of the restrictions of a paroled prisoner which means that should they in any way violate the court's orders, their parole would be ended and they would be immediately committed to the institution.

Wood county is one of the first in the state to make use of the new provision, which promises to be of much use in compelling men to take care of their children.

EL PASO, TEXAS, Feb. 22, 1908.

Krakauer, Zork & Moye, El Paso, Texas:

GENTLEMEN—About seven years ago I built a residence in this city, and for all exterior woodwork I used Lowe Brothers Paints, three coat work. About three years later I built another house on an adjoining lot, and on this job I used White Lead and Oil mixed on the premises, also in three coat work. On examination I find that the first house painted with Lowe Brothers paint is in better condition at the present time than the one painted with Lead and Oil at a later date.

In view of these facts, I have decided to repaint both of the houses, using Lowe Brothers 'High Standard' Mixed Paints exclusively. I am satisfied that Lowe Brothers Paints are the best and most durable for this climate.

Yours very truly,
C. G. HAWKINSON.

HISTORIC PEN HELD AS RELIC.

Used by Franklin in Signing Declaration of Independence.

George Edward McLeland, who lives at 2526 North New Jersey street, Indianapolis, does not have much use for a pen, inasmuch as he is not yet five years old, but he nevertheless has the most interesting pen in Indianapolis. It is the one with which Benjamin Franklin signed the Declaration of Independence. His grandfather, Capt. George W. McLeland, who has passed his eighty-sixth birthday, has handed the relic down to the younger George. Capt. McLeland received it from his grandfather, Alexander McLeland, who was a page in the continental congress.

"Grandfather was a page in that historic congress," said the youthful George's 86-year-old grandfather, "and he was nicknamed 'Sandy' by its members. He gave me this pen, which is made of a wild turkey feather, when I last saw him at our home down in Jefferson county, in 1831.

"You see, I was only a shaver, about as big as young George there, when he gave it to me. He told me that all the men who signed the Declaration of Independence did not use the same pen, and that when Franklin signed it he turned to him and said: 'Here, Sandy, you take this and keep it, and now run along and tell the sexton to ring the bell,' and he then, with this pen in his hand, hastened out to the old man at the bell, and the first music of liberty rang out on the air.

"My grandfather lived to be 85 years old, and now that I have passed that milestone, and my days are numbered, I pass the old relic down to two generations. I came very near, however, turning it over to the old liberty bell people when the bell was in Indianapolis a few years ago."

WAITING FOR A FORTUNE.

Mr. Blinky Not Worrying Over It, Not the Least Bit, But Ready for It.

Like many another man, Mr. Blinky is always hoping that something will turn up. He's an intelligent man and he knows perfectly well that there isn't one chance in seven hundred and eighteen thousand billion that he'll ever get a dollar that he doesn't work for and earn; and still he's always hoping and thinking that something might happen.

And so when he gets to the office in the morning he looks in the letter box there, not really with the expectation of finding a fortune, but nevertheless thinking that there might be something; not disappointed if there isn't but wishing that he might find there a check for a million dollars, from somebody or somewhere, or notice of some fortune that had been left to him that he was now to come and claim.

It's just the same when he goes home at night. He's been away all day, time enough for 40 things to happen, for 40 fortunes to come in, and he knows there hasn't any come, and still it is not an absolutely impossible thing, and so he's always kind of hoping that he'll hear some good news when he goes home.

He never does, he finds everything going along there placidly; there hasn't been any fortune sent in or brought in by Uncle Sam, and he knows it, and sometimes he says to Mrs. Blinky, jokingly:

"Anybody leave us $2,000,000 today?"

"No," says Mrs. Blinky, smilingly.

"One million?"

"No."

"Half a million, maybe," says Mr. Blinky.

"No, nor half a million," says Mrs. B—

"Perhaps it was a hundred thousand dollars. We could do with that."

"No, nor a hundred thousand."

"Not a dollar?" says Mr. Blinky.

"No, not even a dollar," says Mrs. Blinky.

"Well, then," says Mr. Blinky, "I guess I'll smoke my pipe," and he does this right cheerfully. But he's always hoping.

Few Are Buying Pearls.

The pearl trade of Bombay has depreciated in value in the last season. It is there that the pearls are finally collected by the jewel merchants. Most of them are sent to Paris, and many are purchased there by wealthy Americans, most of whom, however, have bought sparingly this year. Pearls in Paris are now selling at a third of the usual price, and jewelers have canceled their orders for further consignments from Bombay.
