WHY THE WORLD TREMBLES.

Politics must be getting mighty interesting over in Bowling Green these days if the columns of the Sentinel-Tribune are any indication. In the issue of Thursday last a challenge is made by Editor Lyon to Editor Bloom of the Free Press for a joint debate on the subject of the political issues of the day. Of course we don't know whether Editor Lyon really means it or not, nor do we know whether or not Editor Bloom will call the bluff, but we do know that if such a meeting could be arranged the Editor of the Journal would like the job of managing the show and would be willing to offer a "little something" on the side for the privilege of staging this political tragedy. It certainly would be an interesting fierce event, and as yet we are not decided whether it would prove similar to one of those horrible examples of cruelty of ancient Rome where the martyrs were thrown into the arena for the lion (Lyon) to devour, or whether it would prove to be similar to that wonderful story of old where Daniel was thrown into the den of lions and all those ferocious beasts did was to walk around and smell of the shrinking, trembling victim, and then growl because they had no appetite. Really, we doubt the sincerity of the challenge, because nothing is said about "Marquis of Gooseberry" rules governing the contest, and we feel that great events of this kind should be properly governed. It may be, however, that our friend of the fierce name may be so anxious to get at 'em that he is willing to waive all rules and conditions in order that he may have an opportunity to "eat 'em alive." If this show could be staged in Maumee it would certainly prove a great "drawing" event—a large number of bar-tenders would be necessary to do the "drawing."

Racing for the Cup of death is far worse than mere horse-racing. The latter is said to be the sport of kings, but automobile racing for the benefit of manufacturers of motor machines is the sordidest and most deadly of all so-called sports.—Ex. Here is another spasm from the brain of some one who is possibly afraid to ride faster than a donkey can carry him, and the wisdom of the item would indicate that the donkey had been its parent. The sport of kings may be horse-racing, but does anything take the chance of breaking his own neck by driving or riding the animal? Is it any more dangerous to drive a racing auto than to tempt fate with an aeroplane? Did anybody have a brain-storm because Wellman raced for the "Cup of death" when he started across the Atlantic dangling from a bag of gas? How many men have lost their lives in an effort to find the North Pole? And what good did it do to find the pole? Neither Cook nor Peary could sell or give the thing away after claiming its discovery. How many men lost their lives in seeking gold in Alaska? Wasn't there something "sordid" and "deadly" in that? Strange how some of these "high brow" editors find so much to condemn in the development of the automobile. Whose business is it to object if a man wishes to seek information or develop an idea or perfect a plan, by taking a chance with death in order to accomplish his object? Here's to the man who is brave enough to take the chance!

Of all the sickly delusions that ever entered into a political campaign, the howl of the Toledo Independents about a "non-partisan judiciary" is the most silly and disgusting and the spectacle that Wm. H. Maher and his protegee Johnston Thurston are making of themselves is enough to make the angels weep. Johnston Thurston, the Independent candidate for Circuit Judge and his political parent, Wm. H. Maher, are stumping the district trying to get votes for Thurston. Their speeches are of the "I am more holy than thou" character in which Johnston declares his special goodness and purity and eternal and everlasting fitness for the office, and brother Maher exclaims "Yea, verily, it is so," and for further proof of their claims they refer to the editor of the News-Bee.

To put an end to hasty marriages Judge William O. Thomas, of Kansas City, suggested that persons contemplating marriage be compelled by law to announce their engagement in the newspaper sixty days before the date of the wedding. His plan is to demand evidence of announcements before issuing a marriage license. Judge Thomas said he would bring the matter up at a meeting of the circuit judges of Missouri, this fall in the hope of getting that body to recommend the law to the legislature when it meets next January.—Ex. We think the question of marriage is not the one that needs more difficulties attached thereto. The number of marriages is already too small while divorces are too numerous and too easily obtained.

From every point of view the farming class of this country is in better shape now than at any period since the civil war. More people own their own homes and farms; more are free from the yoke of bondage inflicted by burdensome debts; more are becoming independent each year by making a comfortable living for their families; more are awakening up to the necessity of giving their children better educational advantages, and, withal, prosperity and contentment seem to prevail throughout. Let progress still be our watchword.

Colonel Roosevelt says the people have a perfect right to criticize opinions of the Supreme Court. They have, and also they have the same right when it comes to the opinions of an ex-president.

Accidents will happen, but the best-regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for such emergencies. It subdues the pain and heals the hurts.

When the ballots are counted at the coming general election, it will be found to be much easier for the counters because of a new law that has been recently passed. The last legislature passed a law which expedites the work of the clerks of election. All straight tickets are tabulated as such. The clerks will count only the mixed or scratched tickets. When they have the total of the scratched tickets the number of straight tickets is added to it to make the grand total. Formerly the clerks had to tally for each candidate on each ticket. The board has ordered the new poll books with a space designed for straight tickets. This will expedite the count in receiving returns.

When a little boy about 14 years of age, scarcely able to "tote" a drum, signed the muster roll and declared his intention to serve Uncle Sam through the war of the rebellion, he did not think of the pay. He just wanted to do something for his country. This is a good time to remember that boy, and when you go to the polls put a cross in front of the name of John C. Croft for Infirmary Director, and it will be doing something for one of the "old boys" who is indeed worthy and deserving of the position.

Lyceum Theatre

Frederic Thompson's "Polly of the Circus" will be the attraction at the Lyceum Theatre, Toledo, for a four days' engagement, starting with next Sunday's matinee, and including a popular price matinee Tuesday.

All the life of Polly has been spent under the round top and in the circus car. She knows no world not covered by canvas, nor did her mother. When the play begins the circus tents are pitched on the commons adjoining the church and parsonage in a small town. "Polly" is injured by a fall from her horse and is carried into the minister's house. A motley crew of clowns, riders, acrobats and canvasmen flock to the parsonage where they are well received by the young minister, much to the disgust of the deacons of the church. The minister agrees to care for the girl until she is well enough to return to the circus and he does care for her. He soon learns that she is ignorant and begins instructing her and makes her so well contented with her new home that when she recovers she does not return to her former sawdust world.

Eleven months pass by, and the minister and Polly come to love each other. But the tongue of scandal is wagging in the village and the deacons call upon the parson and demand that he send the girl away. He refuses, but Polly decides to go, and rejoins the circus. A month later the circus again comes to the town and when Polly attempts to mount her horse she swoons and is caught in the sheltering arms of the minister. The final curtain falls as the circus winds its way out of the village, leaving Polly and the minister gazing at the departing caravan. In "The Light Eternal" which comes to the Lyceum Theatre, Toledo, for a three days' engagement, starting with next Thursday's matinee, and including a popular price matinee Saturday, Martin V. Merle, the author, seems to have hit upon a happy blend of unhappy love and religious persecution that has resulted in one of those rare dramas, or almost melodramas, that appeal alike to almost every class and condition of people. Avowed theatre goers fairly revel in its intense drama, while churchmen find much to commend in its religious fervor. "The Light Eternal" combines every phase of human emotion with the beautiful and subtle sentiment of the Christian religion, the brightest thoughts of a brilliant young playwright with the cleverest conceptions of a master producer.

Do you want a first class base heating coal stove, as good as their is made? Then take a look at

THE LINCOLN

These stoves are built on the three flue effective construction for obtaining the greatest value of the products of combustion. The hot gases pass to the base of the stove from both sides of the firepot. thence to front of the stove, around flue strips, where they join and pass in one unbroken current to the rear and up to the pipe collar. It will be noted that the entire base of the stove is an effective radiating surface and that it is free from a central flue heater opening, which interferences with the circulation of heat thrown off by the base of the stove. A CORROBORATION.

Of Interest to Perrysburg Readers.

For months Perrysburg citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Perrysburg residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Perrysburg reader.

Charles Bayer, Main St., Perrysburg, Ohio, says: "I am glad to re-endorse Doan's Kidney Pills. I used this remedy three years ago and it completely rid me of kidney complaint that I have had no need of kidney medicine since. I believe Doan's Kidney Pills to be a sure cure for kidney trouble."
