—Does a farmer ever think, when he takes a jug or pail of water to the field, that the team is liable to become thirsty as much as himself? Fix up a half barrel with a cover and take it to the field and then when you take a drink, give the horses a few swallows. If they are warm allow them but a little at a time. It will refresh the horses wonderfully and will pay the farmer for his trouble.

EFFECTS OF INTENSE LIGHT

They Are Not So Serious When the Amount Received by the Retina Is Reduced.

It is not so much the intensity of the light focused on the retina as it is the quantity received by that sensitive organ that causes retinal fatigue or worse. In the great snow fields of the arctic regions the natives protect their eyes from the glare of the snow by goggles made of hollowed pieces of wood in which they have made small holes to look through. This, says the Optical Review, reduces the quantity of the light which passes into their eyes with consequent relief from the glare.

So, too, if we look through a minute pinhole disc at the sun we can endure the very bright light much longer than when we look with the naked eye. If we look at a distant electric arc light there is no retinal fatigue, while if we look at the same light from a short distance there is great discomfort, and yet the two retinal images are of equal brilliancy, only in the first case this image is very much smaller than in the second case; that is the quantity of light is very much different.

Then there is the flaming electric light which is now to be found in all of the large cities of the country. This light is much less brilliant than that of the arc light, and yet its size is so great that this more than makes up the difference, and it is, therefore, very glaring and uncomfortable to look at. In skyscraper it is possible to use a very intense light if it is made small in area and for the reasons above stated.

BEING OBLIGING IS A HABIT

Much To Be Said In Its Favor but Justice Often Is Sacrificed to Generosity.

From the earliest hours of childhood we are taught to be obliging. The little girl sitting at the table puzzling over fractions, is chided if she hesitates to run upstairs and get brother George's gloves which he left on the top of his bureau. The small boy must, of course, run on errands for his big brother, and the mother of six thinks it her imperative duty to impress on the minds of each of her brood their obligation to be self-denying. In a way much is to be said for this peculiarity of early education, yet there is something to be said in favor of justice. There is no reason why children should, as a matter of course, be constantly interrupted and called from their special engagements that they may save steps for able-bodied folk who would be the better for waiting on themselves. The trouble is that justice is sacrificed to generosity. The too-obliging person comes home from business tired, and before he has time to take off his coat is requested, if he be a husband, to walk to the village and procure several supplies that ought to have been ordered in the morning, and that might just as well wait until another day. Perhaps there are not a multitude of men in the world who have the weakness of being accommodating. There are a few, and they are simply taxed by the thoughtlessness of their families until they are worn out.—The Christian Herald.

ANCIENT CUSTOM IN MANCHE

Queer Procession That Marks Completion of Harvest and Repast That Follows It.

An interesting ancient custom is observed in Manche at the harvest time. When the work is on the point of completion a sheaf of honor is made and decorated with flowers, which the farmer himself carries in procession, surrounded by the harvesters. Two of the party, under the pretext of sweeping the way, raise a cloud of dust. If in the progress the procession meets a stranger the girls offer him some corn from a pewter plate. If he accepts and makes them a small monetary present, the girls kiss him.

But the principal ceremony is reserved for the repast, in which curds occupy a prominent place. When this part of the menu is reached the girls each choose one of the young harvestmen and endeavor to force him to take a spoonful. If the attempt is a success, it is taken as an offer of marriage on the man's part.—London Globe.

Better than Castor Oil

Children detest castor oil and who can blame them—you do yourself and why expect them to take it?—It is entirely too harsh for a tender stomach.

What they need is something that is mild in its action—does not gripe and at the same time is effective in all cases of constipation and troubles arising from indigestion—something they will like to take.

Nyal's Laxena can be given the younger ones with perfect safety—pleasant to take and sure in its action

It does away with the use of castor oil and other nauseating laxatives.

Always give your children Nyal's Laxena.

Twenty-five cents the bottle.

When we had a chance to get the exclusive selling agency for Nyal Family Remedies we jumped at it. They are known among all druggists as the highest quality line on the market, and are prepared by a great firm of manufacturing chemists, famous for fifty years.

HOW ABOUT THOSE WEEDS?

Have you cut the weeds? The time of the year approaches when they are most obnoxious. It is a well known fact that aside from injuring the appearance of a town, they cause disease. Further, it is against the law to permit them to grow. This doesn't mean in the front yard alone, but the entire lot and alleys as well.
