A western university has gathered an array of figures and a volume of information and arrived at the conclusion that the average value of a college education is $25,000. If one goes to college, therefore, and is just average he will have $25,000 more in his pockets some day than he would have had if he had gone to work four years sooner! All of which is nonsense. The measuring of the value of an education in terms of dollars and cents is a false mensuration, and the last one which a university should lay stress, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Such attempts as this give the foreign critics of our educational ideals ground for their sneers at our "diploma factories." The old bourgeois question, "Will a college education enable my son to make the business pay better than my experience has done?" is a natural one with a certain type of mind, but it betrays a total ignorance of what education means and what it seeks. Education and technical training are two different things, though they can and should both be acquired.

A sample of the first wall paper used in America is in the possession of Frank Hall. It was imported from London, England, in 1738, by Samuel Tallcott, to paper the rooms in a house in Glastonbury, which was built for him by his father, Benjamin Tallcott, in 1725-1727. The paper was taken from the walls of the house in Glastonbury and is in as good a condition as when it was placed there, a proof of the good material. Mr. Hall is going to send a sample piece to Admiral George Dewey, a descendant of the Tallcotts, with his compliments, in a few days.

It might be a good idea for the idiots who usually get into the papers for rocking boats to take to land traveling instead and furnish the victims of railroad wrecks where the brakes are not in the habit of working. In the latter case the joke would be on them.

A wireless service may be instituted between the United States and Norway. What is distance to a time like ours?

No, Wilhelmina, the turkey trot can scarcely be classed among "the ordinary walks of life."

Married men who go joy riding with other men's wives may perhaps plead that they do not wish to endanger their own wives' necks.

Our aviators are doing good work, but a pigeon with 4,200 miles to its credit still holds the record.

Ignorant fish that know no better than to bite on Sunday deserves to be caught.

Give the fly a rest and swat the man who rocks the boat.

Perhaps the fly-swatting crusade is overcome by the heat.

A machine has been recently granted a patent by the United States patent office covering a method of determining the direction of a sound wave or of locating a source of sound, and in doing this the waves emanating from such source are divided and the divided parts are compared by bringing first one part and then another through a common conductor. He employs an apparatus including two diametrically opposite receivers, the direction of the source of the sound waves being determined by stopping one of the said receivers, thus indicating into which of the receivers the particular sound wave was received.

SUFFERED ECZEMA FIFTY YEARS—NOW WELL.

HOBSON'S ECZEMA OINTMENT has proven a perfect cure. Mrs. D. L. Kenney writes:—"I cannot sufficiently express my thanks to you for your Dr. Hobson's Eczema Ointment. It has cured my tetter, which has troubled me for over fifty years." All druggists, or by mail, 50c. PFEIFER CHEMICAL CO., St. Louis, Mo., Philadelphia, Pa.

Never-Settled Questions.

The familiar saying that nothing is settled until it is settled right expresses only a half-truth. Questions of general and permanent importance are seldom finally settled. A very wise man has said that "short of the multiplication table there is no truth and no fact which must not be proved over again as if it had never been proved, from time to time." Conceptions of social rights and obligations and the institutions based upon them continue unquestioned for long periods as postulates in all discussions upon questions of government. Whatever conduct conforms to them is assumed to be right. Whatever is at variance with them is assumed to be wrong. Then a time comes when with apparent suddenness the ground of discussion shifts and the postulates are denied. They cease to be accepted without proof, and the whole controversy in which they were originally established is fought over again.—Senator Root, in North American Review.

There is a Wonderful Difference between the light afforded by an ordinary carbon incandescent and the brilliancy of our new General Electric MAZDA lamp. The latter radiates two and one-half times as much light with the same amount of electric current.

A 40-Watt MAZDA Affords Twice the Light of the 50-watt carbon lamp now in general use and costs one-fifth less to burn. We recommend its use to our customers as it more than cuts their light bills in two, making electric light so inexpensive that no home, however humble, and no store, however small, can afford to be without it.

Ask us to show you the new General Electric MAZDA lamps and clusters.
