FARMERS MEETING

Much Interest Manifested by Wood County Beet Growers.

On Saturday evening last, a meeting was held at the town hall in Moline which was attended by a large number of farmers from Wood and Lucas counties, and from Michigan.

The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing the raising of beets, with special reference to the price of $6.00 per ton.

Mr. Walter Papenhagen representing the farmers of Michigan, said the Michigan growers could not raise at a reasonable profit at a rate less than $6.00 per ton, and said that it costs more to raise beets now than it did five years ago—land costs more; cash rent has increased from $5 to $10 per acre; taxes are higher; machinery and labor and all things pertaining to the growing of beets have increased in cost, and the harvesting comes at a time when farmers are most busy, and added to this the hauling from fields is very injurious to the stone roads which cost the farmers large sums to build and repair and the heavy trucking is the hardest kind of work upon the roads.

It has also been demonstrated that while a good crop of beets may net a farmer a little more profit the first year, the following crop of oats or corn will not yield as well if following a beet crop, and the soil is thus being impoverished and the farmers decided that $5 per ton is not sufficient price.
