

Fashion Notes from Toledo's Best Shops

Silk chenille is the very latest word in dress trimmings. It's developed ideally in the new dress models just received at the Meyer-Jonasson store. One unusually attractive style by blue charmeuse features an entire over-drape of the soft silken chenille and the effect is very becoming. Waist-lines are long in the new models—except in the etons. Drapes are still the vogue but differ from the spring modes and vary from bias folds of silk to cord and chenille effects.

Combination of two different furs is a modish development for small furs. Noticeable among late models is a long, straight scarf of Hudson seal with deep end trimmings of mole.

A model that is decidedly different from anything yet shown in the fall style shows is exploited at the Reynolds-Monro store. It is a pinch-in model of the new bison color duvetyne. Two ripples fashion the skirt of the coat and in order that this does not produce a too fluffily ruffled effect a very tailored vest and choker collar of moleskin is the only adornment. The new suit models at this store are extremely varied and include all the newest ideas.

Excellent lines for those inclined to be stout is the keynote of a new line of fall suits just received at the Michael J. Leo store. This store has made a specialty of stouts since its opening and has become known to the woman of Northwestern Ohio in this respect. Simplicity characterizes the new models in tricotine and duvetyne, which are in many instances lavishly fur-trimmed. Navy blue, black and the new browns are featured.

A sweater is a necessity these first cool days in the wardrobe of both the schoolgirl and her older sister. With this in mind and also the fact that the sweater has become a garment of style and beauty, the Thompson-Hudson store are featuring on their fifth floor a large and varied showing of the new fall sweater models. Pinch-in styles and the new kimono sleeve sweater in colors ranging from black to the most attractive blues and pinks are a feature.

Pattern hats in a riot of colors and styles make the millinery show-room at the Reynolds-Monro store gay these early autumn days. All the eastern designers of feminine head-gear are represented. There are Rawak, Bluebird, Cupid, Kurzman, Jane Marsh, Krowl and Lady Duff models in a myriad of different styles. Many of the newest patterns are feathered, ostrich being again a favored trimming. Hand-embroidery is the means of making adorable turban of brown duvet de laine a real thing of beauty.

Genuine distinctiveness characterizes the styles in fall blouses. No longer is the blouse just an accessory to the suit. It's a thing of beauty and developed in the harmonizing suit colors enhances the appearance of the plainest suit. A wonderful showing of the new blouses is just now attracting much attention on the third floor of the Lasalle and Koch store. Georgette, often combined with satin is the favored material. Russian blouse models vie with paneled and vested styles for favor. Navy blue, Brown, Black, Maroon and the newest shades of taupe are shown in novel effects combined with artistically blended colors and adorned with the new yarn embroidery. One unusually good-looking model of taupe and emerald green depends upon fringe as its only adornment.

Among the newest Wooltex models that are attracting the attention of madame this season is the pictured style—a tailored suit of blue tricotine, fashioned on the straight narrow lines that are so very becoming. A choker collar and shoe-string belt are distinguishing features. At the Parsons Garment Co., Toledo, Ohio, where Wooltex models are sold, this suit is only one of hundreds of practical and handsome models designed and made by these popular makers of women's garments. The early fall display at this store is of unusual importance in that at this time the showing is greatly varied and the choice of suits and coats greater than later in the season.

The hopeful young writer who submitted to an editor, entitled "Why Do I Live?"—had it returned to him with this curt, cruel note: "Because you mailed it instead of presenting it to me personally."

TELLS WHY THERE ARE SIGHTS ON A RIFLE Without Them the Marksman Firing at Long Range Could Never Hit His Mark.

The average person, if asked to explain why a rifle is sighted, would probably be unable to do so beyond some vague remark about taking correct aim.

Sights are necessary because a bullet does not travel in a straight line, but under the influence of gravity and friction, begins to drop almost as soon as it leaves the muzzle. Thus the bullet of the army rifle drops six inches in the first 100 yards, but when it has gone 200 yards it will have dropped, not twelve inches, but two feet. The drop increases by leaps and bounds with the distance. Where there are no sights on the rifle and you wanted to hit a mark at 200 yards, you would clearly have to aim two feet above it.

This would be awkward, for you lose sight of the object aimed at, to say nothing of the difficulty of correctly estimating at a distance of two feet at 200 yards.

The sights on a rifle enable you to keep your eyes on the mark, although the muzzle of the rifle is actually pointing above it. The moving slide of the back-sight enables you automatically to point the muzzle just so many feet above the mark aimed at as is necessary to counteract the down drop of the bullet at various ranges.

NEW MACHINE FOR PAPER BOXES

Pennsylvania Man's Device is Fast and Saves Much Work

Another labor-saving device has been added to the machinery used in the making of paper and pasteboard boxes. A new box-covering machine, invented by Harrison S. Gipe of Palmyra, Pa., has a capacity of 1,200 boxes per hour, against four or five hundred of any former method known to box makers. Another feature is that the new invention saves about 40 per cent of glue. An extra device places the string in hosiery boxes in the same operation in which the box is covered. This was formerly done by hand.

In a costly watch that has been made for exhibition purposes there is a wheel that makes a complete revolution only once in four years, operating a dial that shows the years, months and days.

"KRYPTOKS?"

Turn around—Why, they make you look younger!"

"Yes, that story of the little Kryptok Kiddie and her Dad made me think that if Kryptoks helped him look younger they would help me look younger, too."

"As soon as your eyes begin to need glasses for near and far vision, people say, 'She is getting old.' It makes no difference whether you fuss with two pairs of glasses or old-style bifocals with their tell-tale seam, people know you are getting old just the same."

"But with Kryptoks I fool everybody. They say, just as you did, 'You're looking younger!'"

KRYPTOK GLASSES

THE INVISIBLE BIFOCALS

give you the convenience of near and far vision in one pair of glasses. With Kryptoks you escape the fuss and bother of removing and replacing your glasses or changing from one pair to another, and you avoid the annoyance of the age-revealing seam of other bifocals. Kryptoks look like single-vision glasses.
