CITY MATTERS.

"Frenchy" Weill, of Buffalo, formerly of this city, is at the Lagonda House

Married: Thursday evening, January 29, 1885, at the residence of the officiating minister, Mr. George Atchison to Miss Anna Oates, both of near South Charleston, by Bev. G. H. Binkley, M. D.

There will be a meeting of the Board of Managers of the McAll Auxillary, at the rescorner of Spring, Monday afternoon, February 9th, at 2:30 o'clock. All the managers are expected to be present.

As Charles H. Berry's trial is to come off at United States Court at Cincinnati next Monday, and as about 60 persons are required to go from here as witnesses, Ex-Sheriff Foley has made arrangements with Mr. George H. Knight to the effect that if 50 go down the price will be $2,40 for the round trip, and the excursionists can remain a week.

A practice rifle shoot was held vesterday afternoon at the range at Perriu's woods, and the scores made were very good, as will be shown by the figures. The distance was 200 yards and 180 points the limit. The following is the score: Fisher, 152; Croft, 169; Perrin, 146; Slack, 156; Ragan, 154; Trimmer, 150; Kraus, 154; Leffel, 139; Duke, 130; Lessner, 97; Toland, 119; Peters, 142.

Rev. Andrew Murphy, a venerable minister of the M. E. Church, died on Thursday morning at his home in New Carlisle, in the eighty-eighth year of his age. He was for many years a member of the Gracianati Conference, but has been on the regired list for about fifteen years. The funeral, which took place from the Methodist Church, was very largely attended. Drs. Leonard and Mariay and Rev. H. Tuckley, of this city, and all the resident pestors of New Carlisle, took part in the services.

Quite an interest has been taken by the members and triends of Wiley Chapel. The Committee of Arrangements met at the church last Tuesday evening to further the object in view and appointed a sub-committee of ladies to make and borrow fine needlework, and it was further agreed by the committee and trustees that all articles loaned or put on exhibition will be under the supervision of the trustees, Committee of Arrangements, and positive assurance given for the safe return of all articles loaned in as good condition as when borrowed; and any friends having articles of antiquity will conter a favor by informing Elder Tate, of committee.

The jury in the case of the Champion Coal and Ice Company against the P., C. & St. L. Railway Company, for damages by a collision between one of plaintiff's large wagons and defendant's train, at Fair street crossing, after twenty-four hours' deliberation, came in at 3:40 yesterday with a verdict for defendant. The jury stood eleven to one for such a verdict, almost from the first. The railroad comp'y had a series of large sized photographs taken of the scene of the socident, which were used in illustrating testimony before the jury Criminal business begins in court Monday morning, next.

Dr. Von Klein, of Dayton, read a paper on the disposal of Sewage, in which he gave this recipe for the disinfection of excrement and garbage: Take a vault containing forty gallons of excrement, throw in one barrel of chloride of sodium (salt), twenty-four hours after throw in fifteen bushels of unslacked lime. This will form chlorinated lime. Let it remain for eight days, then it will all be dissolved and e contents disinfected. Then add seventyfive pounds of sai sods. This will so lidify within ten days, thus making it completely and entirely disinfected and deodorized, known by name as Labarracqu's disinfectant, and now ready to form into bricks, which will take thirty days to dry in less and in every way cleaner than any other fuel known. Dr. W. Morrow Beach gave an account of a visit to a Springfield manufacturing company, where the mea using emory wheels for polishing could only work for a few years, and sometimes a few months, before they died. He thought something should be done

Married, Thursday evening, February 5 1885, by the Rev. J. S. Glascock, of Cincinnati, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. James T. Troxell and Miss Rachie I.

Mr. Troxell is a promising young merchant of Knightstown, Ind., and Miss Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, wealthe and influential citizens near Plattsburg. A great number of invitations were extended to the many relatives and friends, and more than two hundred responded, filling the Smith mansion with mirth and happiness, such as is only known on like occasions. Guests were present from Springfield, Marysville, London, South Charleston Somerford, Catawbs, Vienna, Knightstowa, and Richmond,

The ceremony was pronounced at six o'clock sharp, and the guests to the number of sixty were soon seated at three long tables, which were loaged with the choicest edibles of the season. The tables were rearranged four times, and over two hundred persons united in actions and words to the effect that it was one of the grandest suppers that could be served. A ter all had done justice to the feast, congratulations were extended to Mr. and Mrs. Troxell and many were the expressions for the future happiness and prosperity of the newly wedded couple. Next followed the inspection of the many useful and beautiful presents, a list of which with names of the givers are as follows: A full set of gold band china, by the Nicholson brothers, sisters and John A. The lovable and loving bride was attired in pale blog surah silk with brocaded satin front trimmed in point lace and orange blossoms, the groom in an elegant suit of conventional black, and they and their triends in the happiest humor, the feast the most sumptuous, the music by > Mr. and Mrs. Troxell will spend a few days visiting friends in the vicinity of the bride's home, after which they go to Knightstown, Ind., where Mr. Troxell has an elegant and well-furnished home waiting to welcome those whom we join in wishing shall long continue to be the happiest of the happy.

A SAUSAGE STAMPEDE.

The Succelent but Explosive Weiner Wurst Causes an Extra Sensation During the Performance at Black's Opera House Last Evening.

There used to be a newspaper yarn about man, attacked by a footpad, detending himself by thrusting a section of bologua sausage into the highwayman's face, and he, under the impression it was a revolver, took to his heels. But it remained for a Springfield weiner-wurst vender to stampede a whole audience of several hundred people. Just as the drama which was the attraction at Black's Opera House, last night, was reaching the grand denouement and when everybody's attention was breathlessly fixed on the actors, there came a tremendous explosion, sounding in the awful silence as though a battery of steam boilers had incontinently "let go." This was followed by a smell of coal oil penetrating the place. In a moment the scene of action was transferred from the stage to the auditorium, and, as one person, almost, five or six hundred people, many of them women and girls, made a simultaneous and precipitate break for the exits. It seemed at that moment as though a fearfully fatal panic was inevitable, but the regular attendants fortunately kept their heads, knowing the harmless source of the explosion | then told his family his real condition, and did exactly the right thing at the right and at the time he expected to die he time—they sprang to each door and quietly passed away. locked it fast. The people threw themselves against the doors, but they resisted the fearful pressure and the women set up a tremendous screaming, the house presenting a scene of confusion worse confounded. Several of the actors, who apprecisted the situation at a glance, came to the footlights and yelled for the audience to be seated; that there was no danger, in which they were seconded by such of those in front as had kept cool and remained in their places. Somebody also yelled: "Start up that orchestra," and the pianist and trombonist, getting into position, set up a racket that instantly drowned all other sounds, and these combined efforts having the desired effect the panic-stricken crowd finally became seated, and the show went on. It appeared that one of those perambulating restauranteurs, the weiner-wurst boys, had made his way into the passage inside the main entrance where the lamp which is kept burning under the can to keep the contents bot, having become overheated, exploded. which was the innocent and unusual cause of the scare. Beyond the destruction of the sausage, rye bread and horse radish no real damage was done, but the escape was a narrow one and great credit is due the corps of ushers for their presence of mind and prompt action. Nearly everybody's first thought was of the dynamiters and their recent work, and it is probable none of those present will hear the tamiliar cry, "weiner-wurst!" for ometime to come without a shudder.

Mitchell Post, G. A. R. Meeting.

At the regular muster, Thursday evening, of Mitchell Post No. 45, G. A. R., a G. O. from Department Commander, R. B. Brownwas read assuming charge and aunouncing H. A. Axline as A. A. G. and F. C. Dietz as A. Q. M. G., both of Zanesville.

Wm. Ballinger presented his resignation as Sergeant Major, being about to remove from the city, to go into business at Lexington, Kr. There was no muster at this meeting, but two candidates were elected and two new petitions received.

An invitation was releived from McConkey Post, Catawba, for Mitchell Post to attend their festival, for benefit of the relief fund, February 24.

Comrades Bartholomew, Shewalter and Delo were appointed a committee on revision

An invitation was received from the paster of the Universalist Church, Rev. J. M. H. Smith, for the Post to attend service at that church Sunday, February 22, anniversary of Washington's birthday. This was laid on the table until the next meeting. A communication recommending C. C. Stine, who asks help of the post in securing a pension, was read, signed by James Fleming, C. C. Fried, P. E. Batcroft and J. H. Arboga t. A motion for appointment of a standing committee of three, to render assistance on the part of the Post in such cases, was carried, and the Commander will announce the names at next meeting. Some time was spent in discussion of matters pertaining to disbursements from the relief fund, and it was decided, as the fund was running low, to give preference to members of the Post.

The entertainment committee announced that a report would be made at next meeting of the result of the recent course of entertain-

Apropos of Chief Justice Waite's siekness, writes a Washington correspondent to The Cleveland Leader, Judge Ranney, of Cleveland, tells the following story of his great predecessor, Chief Justice Taney. Says he: "Judge Taney lived to the age of 87, and he seemed all his life to be hanging on the verge of the grave. For a long time before Andrew Jackson appointed him secretary of the treasury and got him to re-move the deposits from the United States bank Taney was one of the leading lawyers of Maryland. Luther Mar-tin and William Pinkney were for a time his chief competitors, but they died, leaving him at the head of the chancery suit which had been a long time in the courts and bade fair to become a second Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce was looking for a new lawyer to take up his case. He had employed both Martin and Pinkney, and one after the other they had died on his hands, leaving his case still unsettled. He was recommended to engage Taney, and with this view he called upon him. He entered the office, took a look at the emaciated form and graveyard air of the great lawyer, and then with a grunt of disgust he turned upon his heel and went out of the door without saying a 'Give that man my case!' said to the first friend he met. "I would as soon give it to a corpse. He will die inside of two months.' But Taney did not die, and he doubtless survived the above prophet by a full gen-It is by no means the well men who

In his law practice at Toledo he burned gallons of midnight oil, and the excess of unsettled cases before the supreme ington. His constitution, originally strong, has been long in breaking down, but his condition at present is such that he must take a rest. His case is only one of a thousand all over the country It was carelessness and overwork which killed Matt Carpenter, the greatest lawyer the northwest has ever known, and one that made as much at the practice as Roscoe Conkling does to-day. "Senator Carpenter had a strong constitution to begin with," said his law partner, not long ago, "but it broke down entirely at the last, and one year before he died his physician told him he could not live over that time. Senator Carpenter accepted this conclusion as final, but he said nothing to his family. He went about his business as usual, and all through that year in which he was waiting for death he put his affairs in the most careful order. He studied his case as carefully as the most practiced physician, but could find nothing to assure him of any hope, and each day he would say, pointing to the calendar as he did so, 'I see I have just so many more days to live.' He was at the office several days before be died, and he was perfectly well aware that his end would come in a few days. He

It was night work and the disr of the laws of health which killed Matt Carpenter. It was his custom, it is said, to do all of his study at night. At 11 o'clock he would begin with strong eigar and a bottle of wine, and would work on by the aid of these stimulants until 1. At this time he would change from wine to brandy. and would keep his intellect up to its full working power by taking sips of old Hennessy up until 4 o'clock. As the summer sun began to peep into the windows of his study he would drop work and go off to bed. He would then sleep about five hours, when he would arise as fresh as his fellows who had put in the whole night. For twenty years active life his constitution stood this strain without failing. It then began to droop, and at last it fell to pieces all at once, like the old man's

At a recent dinner tendered to the late Mayor of Boston by the leather trade of that city, Mr. W. D. Howells was introduced as the first American author to honor the leather trade by making a leather merchant the hero of a novel. Mr. Howells, in making his acknowledgements, indulged in a little autobiography. Some years ago, he said, he had occasion, in his efforts as a novelist, to dispatch a vessel on a sea voyage to Trieste. He equipped her in the best possible manner according to his knowledge, but he received a letter from an old sea Captain saying that if he started out a ship in that style to Trieste she would never get out of Boston Harbor. He thanked the Captain, and in the next edition corrected the rigging, at the same time taking occasion to say that the Aroostook was only a coast-vessel anyway.
