

SPRINGFIELD GLOBE, Vol. VI, No. 47. SPRINGFIELD REPUBLIC, Vol. XXXI, No. 306.

SPRINGFIELD BUSINESS DIRECTORY

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

- A. M. WOLFE, Attorney at Law, 28 Main St. N. S. SUMMERS, Attorneys at Law and City Solicitor, Commercial Building, Limestone St. A. S. BOGERS, Attorney at Law, South-east corner Main and Limestone. J. C. CLEVELAND, Attorney at Law, No. 11 Arcade. RANDOLPH COLEMAN, Attorney at Law, 100 North Market St. C. R. CONVERSE, Notary Public, Rooms 5 & 6, Mitchell Block. J. A. SMALLEY, Notary Public, Cor. Market and High streets, over Morrison's. H. D. DORSEY, Notary Public, Rooms 5 & 6, Mitchell Block. J. D. MOHRER, Notary Public, 14 South Market St. T. A. LEWIS, Notary Public, S. E. Cor. Main and Market Sts. W. H. WHITE, Notary Public, 115 South Market St. Without Pay, Masonic Building.

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

- W. A. SMITH, Physician and Surgeon, 26 W. Main St. D. S. BUCKINGHAM & DEMOND, Physicians and Surgeons, 22 Buckingham Block. A. LESTER & HOBSON, Physicians and Surgeons, 106 West Main St. D. S. BELL & HULLICK, Physicians and Surgeons, Telephone No. 55, 55 East High St. D. D. DAVY, Physician and Surgeon, Residence 177 Center St. S. S. RICE, Physician and Surgeon, 75 W. Main St. T. D. KING, Physician and Surgeon, 10 W. High Street. W. H. HALL, Physician and Surgeon, Rooms 11, 12 & 13, 63 E. High St.

REAL ESTATE AND INSURANCE.

- WICK & COLES, Real Estate Loans and Insurance Agents, Room No. 1, Lagoon Bank Building. G. C. BOWLUS, Real Estate, No. 9 Arcade. J. M. MARKLEY, Real Estate and Money Lender, 4 Commercial Building, Limestone St.

HOTEL.

- A. ACADIE HOTEL, 101 E. High Street, High, Market and Washington streets.

CARPENTERS.

- WILLIAM SCHENCK, Carpenter, Store between S. and S. Center St.

PATTERN-MAKER.

- W. T. PARKER, Pattern Maker, 30 W. Washington Street.

ART AND ARTISTS.

- DEBCK CRAIG, Artist, 20 E. Main St. Entrance, Williams' Art Store, 28 E. Main St.

MUSICIANS.

- A. E. TURNBULL, Musician and General Job Work Done, 17 N. Center St.

JOB PRINTERS.

- H. S. LINDHOLM, Job and Book Printing, 111 E. Main St. W. M. ENLER, Prop., N. W. Waterbury, Main St. TRANSPIRIT PRINTING CO., First class work at low prices, 215 S. Market. J. R. MAISENALL, Superior Job Printer, Pocket work specialties, 31, 32 & 33, S. Market.

CABINET MAKER.

- PETER HALL, Cabinet Maker, Packer and Repairer, 110 W. Main St.

UNDERTAKER.

- J. M. BENNETT, Undertaker, Office and Parlour, Limestone St., bet. Main and Court House, Box 122, W. Columbia.

ADVERTISING NOVELTIES.

- REED & RALPH, 95 W. Main St., Dealers in and Publishers of Advertising Novelties, Chromo Cards, etc. Also Job Printers.

SMOKE

THE BEST

LA FLORA DE PORTUONDO

The Best

FIVE CENT

CIGAR

Extant

ARCADIE GROCERY

13 East High.

M. NUFFER

LYING IN STATE.

Remains of the Late Vice President Taken to the Court House and Placed on the Catafalque.

Large Number of Persons View the Body - Floral Design Representing the Log Cabin in Which Mr. Hendricks was Born.

THE REMAINS LYING IN STATE. INDIANAPOLIS, November 30.—The first view of the body of the late Vice President Hendricks occurred yesterday. A crowd of ten o'clock in the morning no one was at the house except the immediate relatives and Rev. Dr. Jennings, pastor of St. Paul's. Mr. Hendricks had rested well and came down stairs early.

At 9:30 o'clock all in the house engaged in devotional exercises in the back parlor. These were led by Dr. Jennings. At ten o'clock, the hour announced for the removal of the body to the court house, a large crowd of people had assembled in front of the residence.

The casket was placed in the house and with slow and measured tread to the melancholy strains of the music the procession moved out on a platform raised a foot above the floor. The casket was guarded by soldiers.

The procession was composed of a detachment of police, six independent military companies and the Columbus Barrack's Band. The various committees of arrangements followed the casket. The streets along the route were filled with people, while from doors and windows faces innumerable were seen.

The catafalque is in the center of the main corridor of the court house at the point where the three entrances converge. It consists of a platform raised a foot above the floor. The canopy was very elaborate and the floral designs were very elaborate. The casket was guarded by soldiers.

At 11:40 o'clock the doors at the east end of the building were opened to the public, and the first five minutes 300 people passed the casket. The rate was between sixty and seventy to the minute. At the very beginning a large crowd was packed about the casket, and the rate was between sixty and seventy to the minute.

The crowd was very large last night. The remains will remain at the court house until five o'clock this evening, when they will be returned to the residence, from which the funeral will occur on Tuesday.

A floral design representing the log cabin in which Mr. Hendricks was born was purchased by the citizens of Indianapolis. It was a large and beautiful affair, and was placed in the main corridor of the court house, where it was viewed by thousands of people.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 30.—All trains going into the city this morning were crowded. The remains still lie in state at the court house, whence they will be removed to the family residence at five o'clock this evening. Arrangements for handling the casket were completed yesterday.

There was a steady and undiminished stream pouring through the building all day. The casket was viewed by thousands of people, and from that time up till noon the crowd pressed through at the rate of 75 a minute. The casket was viewed by thousands of people, and from that time up till noon the crowd pressed through at the rate of 75 a minute.

Gov. Hoody and staff, of Ohio, Gov. Oglesby and staff, of Illinois, Senator Payne and party, of Ohio, will arrive this afternoon.

Huff Nearly Murdered—Spencer in Jail. WABASH, Ind., Nov. 30.—What may prove a murder was perpetrated near Wabash yesterday. Joseph Spencer, a local character, and Sylvester Huff, an old resident of Largo township, while passing through a woods, became involved in an altercation. Spencer knocked the old man down, beat and kicked his face into a jelly. Huff, who was unarmed, tried to get up, but Spencer refused to leave his wounds dressed, where Spencer renewed the attack, crushing Huff's skull. Huff is lying in a very critical condition. Spencer is in jail.

Thawing Begs for Mercy. RANGON, Nov. 30.—King Thabaw, being almost at the end of his journey, the British expeditionary force, has begged King Thabaw to grant an armistice for the purpose of a peaceful settling of the difficulties between Burma and the Indian government. King Thabaw, in reply, demanded the surrender of the Burmese army and Mandalay. King Thabaw acceded to the terms, and the Ava forces were turned over to the British. The British troops proceeded to Mandalay on the 28th.

Dismal Fire at Warren. WARREN, Pa., Nov. 30.—The Warner House was destroyed by fire this morning. Three of the guests were dangerously hurt, and many others slightly injured by jumping to the pavement. Loss, $25,000; insurance, $10,000. Brown & Hyman's clothing store was damaged to the extent of $4,000.

Children Burned to Death. PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 30.—This morning, during the absence of Mrs. Patrick Fitzgerald from her home, her children set fire to a mattress in a crib in which the younger child was sleeping, and three little ones, aged four, three and one year, were suffocated.

Lynchings at Lynchburg. LYNCHBURG, Va., Nov. 30.—Henry Mason, the negro who killed J. R. Hammett, Sr., was taken from jail at 2 o'clock this morning and hanged to a tree, and his body riddled with bullets.

Desperate Battle at First. LONDON, Nov. 30.—There has been desperate fighting at First. The town was taken and retaken, remaining at last in the hands of the British. It is estimated that each side lost 2,000 killed and wounded.

Hotel Burned. OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 30.—Yesterday morning the Jones hotel and several adjacent buildings were destroyed in South Omaha. Loss, $10,000. The occupants of the hotel, some fifty in number, barely escaped by jumping from the second story.

No Violence in the Mines. PITTSBURGH, Nov. 30.—There was no trouble at Coal Valley today. The strikers acquiesced about the Fine Run mines in which numbers this morning, but no violence was attempted.

Big Fire at Savannah N. Y. SAVANNAH, N. Y., Nov. 30.—A large portion of the business part of Savannah, Wayne county, was destroyed by fire this morning.

A Maryland farmer has a tame crocodile that is very wise. The other day it entered a room uninvited, tore up a novel lying on a table, opened a copy of the Bible, as if to indicate the wisdom and value of that work, and ended the day's labor by stealing a watch and hiding it in a haystack.

A Columbus, Ohio, carpenter, while at work on a school house last week, fell down the chimney, 75 feet high, breaking both of his legs. He was rescued by cutting a hole in the chimney at the bottom large enough to pull him through. Contact with the walls in his descent saved his life.

Dr. Gregory, late of the civil service commission, is to pass the winter in Paris.

AROUND HOME.

Cookston is gassing about natural gas. Mary Smith, of Springfield, Warren county, is 100 years old.

Hunters near Worthington discovered a dead body hanging to a tree. Evidently a man about 30, sandy hair and mustache, and dressed in a gray suit. Nothing on the body for identification.

Four boys were fired into a Cincinnati & Eastern train near Fenton station, Thanksgiving, fortunately injuring no one. Officers secured the woods, but the Michigan coat, helmet called Sadum kept up its old reputation by a free fight, in which John Stroup, son, and hired man got badly disgraced by widow Wood's son and one Moore. Finally after some occupancy of a barn.

Three years ago a Trumbull co. farmer left his dinner pail containing some "skippers" close in a stump. Thanksgiving morning the stump was torn open, and in the pail a nest of snakes, six to eight inches long, was discovered.

Testimony in the Abdukt number at New Philadelphia is continuing rapidly to Banker and Lockers as the guilty party. Mrs. Abdukt testified that at the time of the murder four was due and there was no food in the house. Two or three work or starve. Shoes of Banker correspond exactly with footprints in the muddy road.

ONE AMONG THOUSANDS. A Dry Goods Clerk Who Achieved Success in Wall Street.

So many stories are told about the rise of men in Wall Street that they do not attract attention now as they did years ago, when speculation was carried on with caution. One of the most amusing specimens of what Wall Street men do every day on his way to the "street" was a young man, with a magnificent complexion, and an English coachman on the box. With a fine air of a speculator, leaning forward on his cane looking thoughtfully at his well-groomed hands. He has a pale and almost effeminate face, and his manner is unassuming and reserved. He is very exclusive and elegant in the manner of personal enjoyment, twenty-four years old, and in department most dignified than Mr. Gould, Mr. Sherman or Henry Clews—most of whom go up and down in the elevated, or in yellow jackets. This young man had in charge of a certain department of a well-known firm on Wall street, and made all the way from $15 to $25 a week. He lived in a boarding-house on Broadway, second street, on terms of special friendship with the landlady. His father had performed the marriage ceremony for the landlady's son, and he had been married to the clerk's young son, and fed him dutifully for 85 a week. He had always played the market, and often made very tidy little windings. The landlady had raised $1,000 during her many years of keeping boarders, and was about to devote it to paying off a mortgage on her house, when the little clerk succeeded in persuading her to invest some of it in Wall street. She was a cautious woman, and agreed to let him have $200,000, and the total expenditures were $49,000,000, leaving a deficiency for the year amounting to $7,041,000. His profits, however, were $1,000,000, and the gross revenues for the current fiscal year at $47,500,000 and that the expenditures will amount to $40,500,000, and the net profit $7,000,000.

He is no ordinary statesman of either Government or private business. He is a man of trade so readily and so unerringly distinguished as in the postal revenues. The country is indebted to him and every department of his life, whether it be social nature, feels the need of the service which they represent. They derive their strength from the fact that they are quick to respond to the changes from normal conditions.

He devotes considerable space to an analysis and comparison of postal revenues 1873, all of which point to the conclusion that the resumption of business prosperity has not yet been reached.

Superintendent Kimball, in his annual report of the operations of the life saving service, introduced a fiscal year, presents the following summary of the work of the department within the scope of the service: Number of disasters, 371; value of property saved, $3,378,585; number of persons injured, 2,439; and of this number all but 100 were rescued. The number of persons within the scope of the service's smallest effort reached since its general extension, except the year 1880, when but nine were lost. The number of persons rescued by the operations has been greatly enlarged by the addition of twenty-four stations in locations especially dangerous, and in some cases dangerous character. The number of lives saved in saving vessels and cargoes during the year was larger than in any previous year. The number of lives saved was 1,000, and 656,615 vessels have been worked, piloted or dangerous places and similarly situated. The number of lives saved was 1,000, and 656,615 vessels have been worked, piloted or dangerous places and similarly situated.

Commissioner Coleman, of the Department of Agriculture, has submitted a report to the committee of Congress. He recommends legislation which will make the bureau of forestry and game a separate bureau, and will give it considerable space to the subject of forestry and game, and will give it considerable space to the subject of forestry and game.

McKeesport, Pa., November 30.—The first natural gas explosion of any consequence in this city occurred Saturday evening, when the saloon of Nick Obinder was badly wrecked and Obinder terribly burned. The large natural gas supply pipes of the National Tube Works pass near Obinder's saloon and it is presumed the gas leaked into the saloon, and was ignited by Obinder as he lit a pipe. On opening the cellar door a terrific explosion occurred. Obinder's head and face are terribly burned and his body badly bruised.

Foreigners Emigrating South. READING, Pa., November 30.—Three hundred Italian laborers passed through here for Charleston, S. C. They are believed to be the first foreign laborers sent from Eastern Pennsylvania, and are already en route to the South. They are believed to be the first foreign laborers sent from Eastern Pennsylvania, and are already en route to the South.

Will Ask the Resignation of Cannon. NEW YORK, November 30.—The World's Washington special says it is reported that President Cleveland intends to ask for the resignation of the Controller of the Currency, Mr. H. W. Cannon, as great pressure is being brought to bear upon him by others for the position. Mr. Cannon was appointed in 1884 and the term of office is five years.

A new gold field has been discovered in Tasmania, and adventurers are flocking there from all parts.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

Will Not Attend the Funeral of Vice President Hendricks Owing to the Protests of Friends.

Cross Receipts of the Postal Service for the Fiscal Year—Commissioner of Agriculture Presents His Annual Report.

WASHINGTON, November 30.—President Cleveland has declined not to make the trip to Indianapolis to attend Vice President Hendricks' funeral. His reasons for not going were stated very fully to a reporter last evening, to whom he said: "In the first moment of the shock of Mr. Hendricks' death I yielded to my inclination and declared my intention to be present at the funeral. Of course, in reaching that conclusion I did not put out of view a temporary press of public business, but I deemed a sufficient consideration of my duty to the people. The public business I thought I could dispose of by additional application and more hours of work, and I considered it my duty to the people to answer a tender sympathy to the bereaved and to the dead Vice President, which does them great honor."

"I am satisfied now that I was at fault in considering the question in that I did not take into account the fact that I did not look at every phase of it and I am afraid I was not as fully informed as I should have been. I am now convinced by some of the best and most patriotic and thoughtful of our citizens, that the real and solemn duty of the President is to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous protestations by the friends of the late Vice President living in his State and in other States, and by the noble and patriotic woman, who, in the infinite sorrow of her widowhood reflects the spirit and character of her honored husband. It is my duty to see that the public interest is not sacrificed to a personal situation I ought not to take even the remotest chance of accident, incident to a journey, which would be a great loss to the country and to the people. I have been particularly impressed by these considerations, and most of all influenced by the devoted and unanimous