ABOUT New-Born Children.

These are proverbs which none must dispute:
It is unlucky to weigh new-born children; it is not good for them to sleep on bones—that is, upon the lap; cats suck their breath, and so kill them; when they first leave their mother's room, they should go up stairs before they go down-stairs, otherwise they will never rise in the world; if there is no upstairs from the room, the nurse must step on a chair with the child in her arms; when they get old enough to take off swaddling clothes they should be provided with clothing from the When store, which, taking the child, can clothe him suitably on through his knee-pants' age to his boy's suits, youth's, young man's of middle age, and the father of children himself, and so on to old age. To think how much a person thus clothed all his life would save is a great problem of arithmetic. Depend upon it: If you want to save money enough to buy a gas well, clothe yourself from childhood to old age at

The ordinance was read and approved. The committee then adjourned until next Thursday night.

COURT BUSINESS.

Jury Will Out in the Dewett-Block Case—Divorce Cases.

The examination of witnesses in the Dewett-Block case was completed by the jury at 12 o'clock yesterday. The case was then argued and by request of the defendant's attorneys, Judge White submitted his charge to the jury in writing. At ten minutes before six o'clock the jury retired and at 7:30 came in again and was excused for the night. The divorce petition of Benjamin W. Enna Worthington was heard this morning, and a divorce granted on the grounds of adultery and desertion. The other cases on today's docket were: John M. Miller vs. Louis Brown, settled; E. J. Smith vs. Henry Snyder vs. O. K. Dressed & Sons Co., vs. J. B. Wylie, Appellee E. Walker vs. Harrison Kiser, passed by.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

William Boring Checks and Robs a Lady in Broad Daylight.

A daring highway robbery was committed yesterday about two o'clock, on an account of which has not heretofore appeared in the papers because the police thought that the publication of it might prevent them from capturing the thief. About noon on the day referred to Mrs. James Collier, who resides on Western avenue, was walking along the avenue toward her home, when near the corner of Clark street and Western avenue she encountered William Boring, a notoriously bad citizen, who has been arrested a number of times, and he demanded what money she had with her, declaring that if she refused to give it to him he would kill her. Saying he was armed by the throat and choked her until she was nearly black in the face, and compelled her to give him her pocket book. The thief then ran away. Mrs. Collier contained only about a dollar. Mr. Collier, the lady's husband, reported the robbery to the police and the officers, since he was unable to find the thief, he was seen by the officers last Monday, but succeeded in eluding them. Yesterday it was learned that he was in Columbus, and in response to a letter from his wife, he was arrested here and returned to Columbus to bring Boring here for trial.

A GO'D SHOWING.

First Eighteen Days of the Police Court Pay Pretty Well.

This morning Police Court Clerk Morrill filed his first report with City Clerk S. W. Walker and it makes a creditable showing for the new Police court. In the first eighteen days of the term, 13th to the 20th of April, both inclusive—just eighteen days. During that time 118 cases were tried, sixteen of which were petty larceny and one for carrying concealed weapons. The remainder were cases of drunkenness, disorderly conduct and other minor offenses. The total amount of fines and costs levied was $461.55, of which $281.55 were collected, and $180.00 not collected. The cases were represented by $150 other work or are now working out their lines on the stone pile. Eighteen dollars were returned this far in the collection of fines and costs will amount to about $400 a month, while $250 or thereabouts will be worked out each month on the stone pile.

Series of Illness of Dr. Hazard.

The many friends of Dr. J. S. R. Hazard were pained to learn that he is in a very critical condition. Several physicians have been at his bedside the entire day, doing what they could to relieve him. At noon the report reached the street that he was dying. This proved an exaggeration. He is suffering from complication of diseases.

Police Court.

Ira B. Roads, charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct, was dismissed yesterday afternoon by Judge Young, as it was shown that there was nothing in the charge. George Washington, who passed through the whirly through the windows of the station house to the prisoners' window, was fined $10. Charles Trugden, arrested for loitering, was dismissed.

JAMES E. MURDOCH.

His Recent Last Night—Reception at
Mr. George H. Frey's Residence.

A notable audience, made up of the most cultured people of Springfield, greeted the veteran Shakespearean reader, Mr. James E. Murdoch, at Black's opera house, last Thursday evening. It was in many respects the most intelligent assemblage that has congregated in Springfield this season, and in size and character, was a warm compliment to the fine old man and scholar.

After a selection by the Champion City Military band, Mr. Murdoch appeared on the stage and was introduced to the audience by Mr. George H. Frey in a few hearty and sincere remarks. Mr. Frey referred to the distinguished histrionic powers of Mr. Murdoch, and his admirable record as a man, but more than all to his splendid history as a soldier and a defender of his country. Mr. Murdoch was greeted by prolonged applause as he bowed his acknowledgments to the vast audience. For two hours he entertained them with a varied program, made up of the serious, humorous, and dramatic in fine proportions. The most admired selections were Hamlet, Paul's defense before Agrippa, and the Mother Hubbard sermon, a delicious bit of humor in which Mr. Murdoch was inimitable. In the selections from Hamlet, he displayed the power, depth of thought and rhetorical ability that made his "Hamlet" in the Cincinnati dramatic festival a masterpiece of art. And in the Bible selection he brought out new beauties in the text and made the eschewed Paul a character full of new nobility and manliness. Mr. Murdoch's voice is full and sonorous, and it is a pure joy to listen to him, whatever he is saying.

CRUELTY TO CHILDREN.

A Champaign County School Teacher Arrested for Alleged Cruel Punishment.

Yesterday afternoon Samuel Ayers, of Union township, came to the city and made complaint to the society for the prevention of cruelty to children, says the Urbana Citizen. He charged T. R. Owens, teacher in district No. 9, Union township, with unlawfully and cruelly whipping his son, Don Ayers. The officers of the society went before Esquire Rhoads, where an arrest was made. The case will be heard on Monday. The boy is nine years of age, and it is charged, is badly marked from the effects of the whipping. The society has been notified to take the boy into their custody, and the case will be heard this evening.

CAMP MEETING BOARD.

Business Session of the Board Held on the Grounds.

On Wednesday afternoon the board of directors of the Urbana camp meeting held a meeting on the camp grounds. A large number of persons being present from Urbana, Mechanicsburg, Urbana and the surrounding country. They decided to build a young people's tabernacle, 40x60 feet, with a good floor in it. The tabernacle will be located northeast of the large springs and front south. The cost of the tabernacle will be about $1,000. The members of the board, each congregation were instructed to appoint a sub-committee of young people to solicit funds for the enterprise.

THE MISSING DIAMOND.

Colonel Kilpatrick Finds His Wives Ring in His Own Pocket.

Tom Zimmerman wore a smile of satisfaction yesterday morning, says the Cincinnati Engineer. The valuable diamond ring which was supposed to have been stolen from the room of Mrs. Edw. Kilpatrick of Colonel Kilpatrick, of Springfield, Ohio, had turned up. For a time, the most vigorous search failed to reveal it, and Colonel Deitch had detailed two detectives on the case, taking for granted that the gem had been stolen. Yesterday morning Colonel Kilpatrick thrust out his hands into the pockets of his dress suit, when he had worn the night the night before, and there he found the missing ring. His supposition is that the ring lay on the dresser with his keys and watch and chain, and when he put those articles in his pocket, the ring went with them. Every one rejoiced at the discovery except the detectives, who turned on their heels and left in disgust.
