LEARNING TO MILK.

"Gabrielle" Attempts to Win Over the Elusive and Reluctant Cow, but Gets Left.

Milking on His Neck-Tie—Which is the Left Side of a Cow—Milk That Wasn't Truly, Altogether—A Gentle Cow.

I accepted the urgent invitation of several friends last week, who occupy a charming country home, to come out and cast a last, long, lingering glance at the country before it got its fall cold and went into seclusion for the winter.

I believe in the maxim, "When you're in Rome, do as the Romans do," and when you're in India, do as the Hindus do. In other words, it therefore said to myself that I was going to be such a realist for the time being that people would mistake the dandruff that flourishes about that portion of my complexion underlying my hair for real hair.

A General Proposition. We maintain that you'll get a hat or an article of clothing or us cheaper than you can get the same elsewhere, quality for quality.

PLUG HATS.

The Famous Springfield Brigade Has a Royal Time at the New Carlisle Meeting Friday Night.

Triumphs of the Old Brigade Duplicated—A Great Meeting—Speeches by General Grosvenor and Hon. D. K. Watson. The Trip in Detail.

The Springfield Plug Hat Brigade did itself proud on Friday night, and the bright little village of New Carlisle was painted a lurid vermillion. Such a rousing political meeting as that of Friday night has not been held in New Carlisle for many a long day, and the republicans of old Bethel township are jubilant in consequence.

Several days ago the Plug Hat Brigade received an invitation to attend the New Carlisle meeting, and as favorable rates were received from the L. B. & W. railroad, forty cents for round trip, the brigade decided by a vote taken at the McKimley-Gibson meeting, to accept the invitation and do all in the power of the brigade to give republicanism in New Carlisle a boom, such as has been given in this city by the brigade.

On Friday it grew rapidly colder, a stiff breeze whirled clouds of dust through the streets, and the indications were that the excursion to Carlisle would be anything but a pleasant trip. Towards evening, however, the clouds sky cleared perfectly, the wind abated, and, although it was still pretty chilly, the weather was as favorable as could be expected at this time of year.

The train was announced to leave the L. B. & W. station at 6:30 o'clock and half an hour before the crowd began to assemble. It soon became evident that much larger number than was expected would go to Carlisle, and the train pulled out of the station at 7 o'clock, and the four cars filled with the brigade, and the possible for all to find seats, and many uneasy car were compelled to stand.

It was twenty minutes of 8 o'clock when the train stopped at the station. The brigade proceeded directly to the town hall and there broke ranks. The hall was small and was soon filled to overflowing. Not half of the people who desired to hear the train were able to get in, and many stood during the entire evening.

While the speeches were being delivered the persons who could not gain admission to the hall paraded the streets singing campaign songs, and the center of the business houses of the village and discussed politics to their hearts' content.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. J. W. Walker, president of the center committee of the New Carlisle precinct. Mr. R. F. Hayward, chairman of the executive committee, announced the arrangements which had been made for the great meeting to be held in this city on the 24th of November, and extended an invitation to all the republicans in Bethel township to be present. Mr. Williams then introduced Mr. Ben. Davis as chairman of the meeting. Dr. Davis made a brief speech, in which he thanked the committee for the honor done him, and then introduced General Charles H. Grosvenor.

General Grosvenor began with a discussion of the economic questions of the campaign and the relations of protective tariff to the agricultural industries of the country. The Democratic party in Ohio is gravitating towards free trade. A year ago it slaughtered Frank Hurd, the great free trader of the state, and now, under the transforming influences, the party call him a traitor. The chief manufacturer of the great grain producing districts of the state and will do all in his power to prejudice the farmers of those districts against a protective tariff.

Forgetting that there is a strong sentiment in Ohio against those rebels who took a conspicuous part in the late war, the Democratic party has secured the services of General William McKinley, who is another champion of free trade. This shows with distinctness whether the Democratic party is drifting. The party in Ohio has at last recognized the drift of the sentiment of the people, and is now making a stand for free trade to be made an important issue in the campaign of 1888. General Powell, the Democratic candidate for governor, made some platonic statements in a speech at Circleville the other day. He used to be a republican in a small way—and an advocate of a protective tariff, just as Hoady, Ewing and Bookwalter were. Yet he said in that speech that every dollar of the money derived from a protective tariff was wrung from the farmer. He wouldn't say that at Springfield. The very next day General Hoady made a public speech in which he said that a protective tariff is detrimental to manufacturers, and that the only class benefited by it was the farmer. I do not pretend to be able to answer that double barbed argument.

General Grosvenor then referred to the times fifty years ago and compared the farmer then to the farmer now, conclusively showing the latter's superiority in every particular. The chief manufacturer of the state is a farmer's product. Thus the farmer and the manufacturer move hand in hand, the one being a necessary adjunct to the other.

FIDELITY FALSENESS.

The Indictments Against Harper, Baldwin, Hopkins, Josie Holmes, etc.—Oatfield and Pogue Indicted.

Lake Steamer Goes Down and Sixty-four Persons Lost—President Cleveland Sends Back Safely to Washington.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 22.—The expected indictment in the Fidelity National bank indictment began to develop at half-past 10 this morning. It is now known that twenty-eight true bills have been found in the Fidelity bank cases. So far as divulged, they are as follows:

E. L. Harper, vice president and general manager—Five indictments, 17 counts. Cashier Anni Baldwin—Four indictments, 14 counts. Josie C. Holmes—Four indictments, 5 counts. Assistant Cashier Benj. E. Hopkins—Four indictments, 48 counts. These indictments are for violations of the statutes at large governing national banks, and for fraud.

J. W. Wilshire, the broker who led in the disastrous wheat deal, using Fidelity funds, has four indictments against him with eleven counts. W. H. Chaffield and Henry Pogue, directors who signed the May report of the Fidelity to the controller of the treasury, have been indicted for signing false returns and were arraigned this morning.

Only one indictment outside of the Fidelity cases, has been reported, and that is of Lewis A. Leonard, formerly of the Times-Star and of the late Star, for making an unlawful use of the mails in promoting a St. Andrews bazaar, Florida, scheme, in which Leonard is concerned. He was arraigned this morning.

PULLING THE STRING.

A Missourian Asks One Cent and Expenses for Hanging the Condemned Anarchists.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 22.—Harry Kellogg, who wrote to Sheriff Matson, of Chicago, offering to hang the anarchists for one cent and expenses, was seen at his boarding house yesterday. "I understand that you have offered your services to hang the anarchists?" said the reporter. "Well I have," answered the young man. "I read about a week ago that a man in Andrew county, Mo., had offered to do it for $200 and expenses. I wrote to Sheriff Matson offering to do it for expenses. I want to visit some friends in Washington that is about twenty miles from Chicago, and thought if I could get a contract with the sheriff to do the hanging it would not cost me anything to go there and return."

STUCK ON A PICKET.

A Man's Furlough Fight With His Wife—Her Death.

FRACKVILLE, Pa., Oct. 22.—Mark Stinson and wife, a middle-aged couple, have lately indulged in drink pretty freely, and while engaged in a drunken quarrel yesterday Stinson chased the woman round the yard, striking her at every opportunity. She finally ran into the house and shortly afterward she was either thrown or fell from the second-story window and impaled on the picket fence, the wood entering the side of her neck and penetrating nearly through, severing the jugular vein. Death was instantaneous. The husband was arrested and held to await the coroner's inquest. Blood was found on the upstairs floor and the suspicion is that Stinson beat his wife first and then threw the body out of the window.

THE TRAIL WAS COLD.

Bloodhounds Could Not Track a Suspected Padonah Murderer.

PAIDUCAN, Ky., Oct. 22.—Nearly a week has elapsed since the atrocious murder of Mrs. Steve Moore, in Ballard county. The fiend is still at large. Bloodhounds were brought from Memphis and put on the trail, but it was too late, the trail having grown cold. The detectives working up the case seem to agree that Rawlins, the colored man suspected, is not the guilty party, though he has not been found yet. Another party is suspected, but the officers refuse to talk. The excitement in Ballard is unabated and the reward for the apprehension of the murderer has been increased to $500 by the dead woman's son.

TERRIBLE LAKE WASTER.

A Steamer Goes Down—Sixty-Four Lives Lost.
