A GERMAN FARM-HOUSE.

Animals and Their Masters Live in Happy Contiguity.

Lending was the name of the place where we sought refuge, made up entirely of the farm belonging to a prosperous peasant. He welcomed us when we had dragged our boats beyond the reach of the savage waves, and took us into his big dwelling-room, which was like a baronial hall. Here was a space for fifty people to sit and feast or have a romp. Substantial rafters made the ceiling; the tables and benches were of wood well scrubbed. He offered us beer, and then his wife gave us bowls of milk fresh from the cow and strong country bread, all the while entertaining us as invited guests. While the storm raged we inspected the premises with great interest, for one roof covered dwelling-house for cows and horses as well as family and servants. The anteroom outside of the main dwelling "hall" opened on one side of the kitchen, above to the bedrooms, on the right to our "hall," and on the left to the stables. But let us hasten to add that cows and horses were cleanliness itself, that every part of their quarters indicated scrupulous neatness, from the round little windows to the extreme recesses of the vaulted ceiling. The roof was supported by stone columns that would have graced a monastery. Their eating and drinking troughs were of stone; their wants were ministered to by two as dainty and graceful maidens as ever figured in a pastoral, and such was the behavior of these animals that no well-regulated housekeeper could have objected to them as fellow lodgers. The veranda that passed the dining hall continued past the stables, wherein were about a dozen horses and twice as many cows. The manure was shovelled across this walk and stacked up immediately near it, and yet this veranda was the agreeable gathering place of a warm evening. As we chatted, two colts, a few weeks old, walked up and about us, nibbled at our trousers and fingers, rubbed their noses affectionately against each of us in turn, and played with the big watch dog as happily as if all three were pups in the same litter. With such evidence of kind treatment is it a wonder that their live stock is gentle and willing?

We asked our host if he found no ill-effects from so much manure beneath his window, and he assured us that he considered it wholesome. He certainly appeared healthy, and his household as well—radiant with prosperity and good spirits, generous with his substance, a good illustration of the Straubing peasant as described by the learned professor half a century ago. He would receive nothing himself for our entertainment, but finally accepted a contribution for the poor.—Poulney Bigelow, in Harper's Magazine.

LEARNING A FOREIGN TONGUE.

A Monkey of One Tribe Acquires the Language of Another.

In the room where the monkeys are kept by a dealer in Washington there is a cage containing a young white-faced cub of more than average intelligence, writes Prof. Garner in the Forum. On the same shelf and in an adjoining cage is the little capuchin Puck. They can easily see and hear each other through the open wire partition which separates them, there being no other obstruction. I have visited Puck for many weeks almost daily and always supply him with food after requiring him to ask me for it in his own language. Having but little interest in the white-face, who is very shy of me, I rarely showed him the slightest attention until within the past few weeks, when I observed him trying to utter the capuchin sound for food which always secured for Puck a banana or some nut. Seeing that Puck was always rewarded for uttering this sound, the little white-face commenced to try it, and as soon as I discovered his purpose I began to reward him in the same way, and have thus seen one step taken by a monkey in the mastery of another tongue. At first his effort was quite poor and I could not at once decide what he meant, but practice has developed in him great proficiency, and now he speaks it almost as plainly as the capuchin himself. This was doubly interesting to me in view of the fact that I had long believed that no monkey ever acquired the sounds of another species. I frankly admit that this one instance is alone sufficient to cause me to recede from a conclusion rendered untenable by such certain proof, the cogency of which is emphasized by the short time in which it has been accomplished, but I still regard it as a rule that monkeys do not do so.

TO BLOW UP THE MILLS

Anarchist Bauer Had Contemplated Such an Act.

ANOTHER MILL WORKER ARRESTED.

Ten More Warrants Still to Be Served—Claimed that Nearly 600 Men Are Now at Work—Frick's Condition Satisfactory—Gen. Butler Scores Col. Streator for the Treatment Young Iams Received—O'Donnell and His Mission.

PITTSBURG, July 27.—No additional arrests have been made this morning in connection with the Frick shooting, although detectives are still at work and the Anarchist colony in Allegheny is being closely watched. Knoll and Bauer are still confined in separate cells at the Central Police station. Preliminary investigations have been made against them, charging them with having aided and abetted the crime. Bauer was arrested yesterday.

It has been ascertained that in a barber shop in Allegheny, a few days ago, Bauer had considerable to say regarding the feasibility of blowing up the Homestead mills with dynamite, and told how little of the compound it would take to accomplish that purpose. It is believed by the police that some such scheme was contemplated by the Allegheny Anarchists, but that it was forestalled by the arrival of Berkman from New York to perform his bloody mission.

At the Central Police station the officials state that they regard the arrest of Bauer as the most important since the shooting. He is a professional agitator, drawing his support from the Anarchist groups and devotes his time to the distribution of the revolutionary literature received from Chicago. He lives with a shoemaker at 78 Spring Garden street, Allegheny, where he was captured.

On Sunday he was seen entering Knoll's house with a parcel.

He has been partially identified as a man who was with Berkman in the corridor of the Carnegie Company's building on Saturday just before the shooting and handed Berkman a small package just as he entered the elevator.

This package is supposed to have been either the revolver or the cartridges afterwards found in Berkman's pockets.

This development has so far been kept secret by the police although it is admitted that the second man was seen in company with Berkman on the street.

Since the declaration of Chief Murphy that here almost would probably be arrested before to-night, no additional information of the intentions of the authorities toward the head centre of the Anarchists has been vouchsafed, and everybody in authority has shut up like a clam on the subject. Chief Murphy has decided that it is not necessary to send a special officer after Mollic, the Long Branch suspect, and he will be brought back in custody of Superintendent O'Mara, who is now in New York.

James Close, the young mill worker, arrested in Homestead in the afternoon by Constable Price on the charge of murder, was brought to the city last night and lodged in jail. The arrest was effected on one of the suppressed informations sworn out last week by Secretary Lovejoy. There are ten or more warrants, based upon similar informations that are still to be served, but the names of the accused men will not be made public.

Officials of the Carnegie Company claim that between 500 and 600 men, many of them skilled men are now at work in Homestead mills, and that the plates being rolled are of the finest character. They have, they say, 1,000 applications on file and new men will be sent from day to day until the mill is fully manned.

Berkman is beginning to chafe under the strict regimen and frugal fare of the county jail, and he is more ugly and morose in his disposition than ever.

Leader Hugh O'Donnell left on the noon train for New York, to complete the mission that was interrupted by the issue of the warrant against him last week.

Before returning he will spend a month at the seaside to regain his health.

He will retain counsel while absent to take proceedings against the Washington "Post" for suggesting that he was identified with Berkman.

The report from Mr. Frick's residence this morning is very encouraging. Although suffering some pain, he had rested comparatively easy during the night, and the progress of the wounds toward healing is eminently satisfactory to the surgeons in attendance. The sick chamber has been fitted up with elaborate cooling mechanism, and can now be kept at a cool and even temperature. All possibility of the intense heat producing inflammation in the wounds is thus avoided.

Men in the Mill Prisoners.

PITTSBURG, July 27.—James Hadley, a roller, and two engineers named Elliott and Rook, say they were brought here from Philadelphia last Friday to work in the Homestead mills, under false representations. They were told the trouble at Homestead was over, and that most of the old workmen had gone back to work. When they got to the mills they discovered things were anything but lovely, and that they were in fact prisoners. They found there from 250 to 300 men, many of them negroes and Hungarians. In the room they slept in the first night 160 men were quartered. The food was abundant, and there would have been no fault had they not found the Homestead men were on strike. Nothing is being done at the mill except making repairs.

Seeking for Arbitration.

PITTSBURG, July 27.—A petition is to be presented to the County Court asking it to appoint a tribunal of arbitration to settle the Homestead trouble. The petition has been in circulation since Friday last. It is necessary for the employes of five firms to sign the petition in order that the court may have jurisdiction, and this has been complied with. The consent of the Carnegie Steel Company is, however, necessary before the County Court can act in the matter.

Bauer Makes an Admission.

PITTSBURG, July 27.—Bauer has admitted that he is the man who distributed the anarchistic literature among the militia and strikers at Homestead. He also admits that he met and talked with Berkman at Knoll's house last week. He has also been identified as the man who was leading about the entrance to the Duquesne Club house on Sixth avenue last week.

SIX BURIED IN THE DEBRIS.

Terrible Gas Explosion in St. Louis Sewer.

St. Louis, July 27.—An explosion of coal oil gas occurred in the Mill Creek sewer about 7 p.m., tearing up Chouteau avenue from the levee to Broadway. The gas ignited the alcoholic gases in Furch's whisky distilling company. Six pedestrians are known to be buried in the wrecked sewer.

One fireman, caught between the debris of the falling gas, is in a critical condition. Along the Chouteau avenue tracks of the Iron Mountain Railroad several trains and empty passenger coaches were blown to pieces. Furch's distillery was the building most affected by the explosion. The first and second floors fell, carrying the workmen to the cellars. One workman in the distillery has been carried to the hospital in a critical condition. R. J. Tunstall was also severely injured.

Suit Against the Watch Trust.

New York, July 27.—A suit involving nearly a million dollars was filed in the Supreme Court of New York County and Circuit Court of the United States yesterday by the Deuber Watch Case Manufacturing Company of Canton, O., against the individual members composing what is known as the American Watch Trust. The charge is conspiracy to injure the business of the plaintiff's company, which was formerly in the combination, the latter, it is claimed, being a powerful and arbitrary monopoly.

SAY SHE IS INSANE

Experts Testify in Alice Mitchell's Trial.

DR. CALLENDOR ON THE STAND.

He Was One of the Physicians Who Passed Upon Guitaen's Case—The State Will Attempt to Rebut the Testimony of the Experts To-day.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 27.—The State was "knocked out" yesterday by the testimony of experts in the Alice Mitchell case. The first witness, Dr. Sale, President of the Mississippi Medical Association, testified that he had examined Miss Mitchell no longer ago than last Sunday, and from his observation with and observation of the subject he thought she was insane.

Dr. J. H. Callendor, of Nashville, Medical Superintendent of the Central Insane Asylum and holder of the chair of Physiology and Brain Diseases in the Vanderbilt University, was the next to take the stand. As Dr. Callendor was one of the physicians who acted as medical experts in the Guitaen case, his testimony was eagerly listened to by all of the lawyers and jurymen.

He said that insanity might not be inherited, but the insane temperament could be passed from mother to child or from father to child. This temperament is more likely to be inherited from the mother than the father. The first fact that impressed him in a contemplation of this case was that Alice probably inherited her insane temperament from her mother. Being of an insane temperament, it is not surprising that on meeting Freda the love she had for Freda developed into an ardent passion.

He then stated that he thought she was insane, but indicated how she might be cured. The witness thought she was a subject for medical treatment in some asylum.

Dr. Campbell, superintendent of the Eastern Asylum for the Insane at Knoxville, had been summoned by the State, but he was placed on the stand by the defense, and he gave it out freely that he thought Alice was insane. Here the defense rested.

To-day the State begins the task of attempting to counteract the expert testimony, but the opinion prevails that the case is already won by the lawyers for the defense.

WEATHER RECORDS SMASHED.

The Heat Something Terrible—Hundreds of Prostrations.

New York, July 27.—It is cooler here this morning than it was yesterday, but excessively warm, nevertheless. Toward evening it is predicted that mild breezes will blow and light showers fall, but there is that lack of confidence about the predictions of those in the Weather Bureau that prohibits any one in the vicinity of New York from indulging in pleasurable anticipations.

Yesterday was the hottest day on record since Sept. 7, 1881, when the thermometer registered 100 degrees at 2 o'clock on that date. The hottest 26th of July before the record breaker reached 94 degrees.

At 8 a. m. the thermometers at the United States Weather Bureau on top of the Equitable Building registered 83 degrees against 78 degrees at the same hour Monday, an increase of 5 degrees.

At 9 o'clock the temperature was 80 degrees, 8 degrees higher than Monday.

At 10 o'clock the mercury had climbed 1 degree further, making it 87 degrees against Monday's 82 degrees. It kept on climbing all day and at 3 o'clock the thermometers registered from 97 to 98 degrees, breaking all previous records since 1881.

At 8 o'clock the temperature at Boston, Pittsburgh, Chicago, and St. Louis was 82 degrees; at Portland, Me., 76; at Cincinnati, 80; at New Orleans, 74; Albany, Philadelphia and Washington were the hottest places. It was 84 degrees in those cities at 8 o'clock in the morning.

Many cases of prostration from the heat are reported and several have proved fatal.

Michael Turphy, a laborer, went to the roof of his home during the night to get a breath of air, suddenly became crazed from the heat and fell to the yard fifty feet below and was dashed to death.

Newbury, N. Y., July 27.—John O'Neil, 51 years old, while sleeping near a window on the third story, to get a breeze, rolled out. Dangerously injured. An unknown Hungarian was found dead in the woods near this city. Thought to be a case of sunstroke.

Rome, N. Y., July 27.—Yesterday was the hottest day of the season, the thermometer registering 98 in the shade. To-day the air is humid. Thermometer at noon was 85.

Baltimore, July 27.—At 8 a. m. the Government bureau stated it was 87 degrees hot. At 9 o'clock the thermometer registered 90; at 10 o'clock 92, and at 11 o'clock 94 was shown. At 3 o'clock 100 was reached. These figures are five degrees in advance of Monday's records for the same hours, and the maximum heat then was 97 degrees.

CHICAGO, July 27.—The weather is slightly cooler than yesterday. The thermometer at noon registered 93 at the top of the Government building. Seventeen persons were prostrated by heat yesterday, four of whom died. Several others are in a serious condition.

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—The intense heat continues with hardly a breath of air stirring. At 11 o'clock the mercury stood 94 1/2 in the shade and 100 in the sun at Seventh and Chestnut streets. At 3 o'clock the glass registered 98 in the shade.

Warrants For Monmouth Bookmakers.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 27.—Judge Myron L. Gould, upon complaint of the Rev. Frank C. Colby, pastor of the First Baptist Church of this place, has issued twenty-two warrants for the arrest of as many bookmakers at Monmouth Park. The charge preferred is the maintaining of a disorderly house. Colby is said to be one of the members of the Monmouth County Law and Order League, which is waging a ceaseless war against the bookmakers.

Clergymen Try to Save Fales.

TRENTON, N. J., July 27.—A delegation of clergymen came here yesterday to beg Gov. Abbot to save the life of Robert Albert Fales, the Newark boy murderer. Gov. Abbot referred the case to the Court of Pardons, which has appointed a commission to visit Fales in jail and examine him. It is generally believed his sentence will be commuted to imprisonment for life.
