Miss Ellie Gerrity was married to Patrick McCauley at St. Caneus church, on Wednesday, by Rev. McKee. Both parties were from Park Place.

After the ceremony they were driven to James H. Kelley's hotel, where they were given a reception by a number of friends.

Joseph Robinson and James Dick, charged with assault, were arranged before Justice May last evening at the instance of John Blain.

The defendants were introduced and resisted and fought with the officer, Joseph Kleindanz, who made the arrest, compelling him to use the handcuffs. The defendants were committed to the lockup for 48 hours in default of fines.

Michael J. Kelly and Miss Kate Hartnet, of Mahanoy City, were joined in wedlock by Rev. McKee, on Wednesday evening. The ceremony was performed in St. Caneus church. The groomsmen was James Moharg, of New Boston, and the bridesmaid, Miss Margie Hartnet, of town.

The bride and maid were attired in steel silk, trimmed with point lace, and the groom and best man in the conventional black. After the ceremony the entire party repaired to the bride's home, on West Railroad street, where a sumptuous supper was served.

As Miss Julia Huvinschop was passing an alley on Race street on Sunday, she stopped for an instant to look at Andrew Houma, a drunken Hun, who was making loud and unusual noise. Her curiosity aggravated Andrew, who picked up a chair and belabored her over the head.

Justice O'Brien was disposed to give him the penalty of the law until Andrew's aged father begged for his release, telling of their poverty and of the support his imprisonment would deprive his parents of. Houma was discharged with a reprimand.

BOLD HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

An Adams Express Driver Held up Near New Boston Junction.

Special to EVENING HERALD.

MAHANAOY CITY, April 20.—Harry Clifford, the Adams Express driver, was held up on the road near New Boston Junction, at three o'clock yesterday afternoon, and robbed of over six hundred dollars and a silver watch. The two highwaymen escaped to the mountains and are still at large. The Coal & Iron police are in pursuit.

Of the money taken, $502 was in a package from one Breish, of Fern Glen, and consigned to a Mahanoy City bank; $85 was in another package, and about $15 of the day's collections in the expressman's pocket. The robbery was well planned and neatly executed. The robbers were evidently aware that the money was coming from a certain place, as they asked for the Breish package. This fact may aid in their detection.

It might here be explained that since the Adams company has withdrawn from the Reading and Lehigh Valley railroads, they receive their Mahanoy City consignments from the Pennsylvania railroad, at New Boston Junction.

Driver Clifford had met the 12:59 and 2:18 p. m. trains, laying at the station during the interval of their arrival. From the 12:59 p. m. train he received the money packages. At a few minutes before 3 o'clock he started down the road for Mahanoy City.

On turning into the old stone road, and at about a quarter of a mile from the Junction, his attention was attracted to two men dressed in overalls and strolling carelessly toward him. They were well built men, each carried a small bundle, wore caps drawn well down over their eyes, and looked like brakemen bound for work. As they drew near one of them asked Clifford in an off-hand way if the "coaly" had passed up. He was about to reply when they suddenly drew revolvers and covered him. Clifford was about to reach for his trusty "44," when ordered to "hands up." Sweat began to stand out in beads upon his forehead. The highwaymen were cool and polite.

While one stood near the horses' heads and kept Clifford covered, the other stepped lightly onto the wagon and began a search of Clifford's person, remarking that he wanted that Breish package. This he found in the expressman's hip-pocket, along with another envelope containing $85. While undergoing the search Clifford glanced sideways at the robbers. "Keep your eyes this way," sharply ordered the one on the ground. Clifford forgot the order and a moment later again looked at the operations about his pockets, when the man drew a bottle from his pocket that probably contained chloroform. His intentions, whatever they were, were interrupted by a carriage passing down the main road. It contained a man and woman and Clifford could easily have spoken to them, but a glance down the shining gun barrels warned him that it might not be well to do so.

While the wagon was passing the highwaymen assumed easy positions, as though in conversation with the driver, but kept no easy eye upon their captive. Clifford noticed that their hands were soft and pale and that their fingers tapered like a lady's, while from the rough overall protruded linen collars of the finest quality and latest style.

The searcher next drew about fifteen dollars from one of the expressman's pockets and dropped it into his own. His silver watch was jerked from his vest and after a moment's inspection was apparently tossed into the bush, but Clifford didn't care to look. His big pocket-book, containing bills for collection, was examined and tossed back with the familiar remark that Clifford might collect them.

After glancing through the empty money bag the robber stepped to the ground and to the opposite side of the horses to which his partner stood. "Ready?" he asked. "Yes," responded the partner, and together they raised clubs and brought them down on the horses' backs. The surprised animals bounded forward and as the wagon passed the robbers courteously waved their guns at Clifford. Once he looked back, but to see the revolvers still covering him and a warning gesture from the robbers to go on. So on he went as fast as the horses could take him and soon arrived at the company's headquarters in Mahanoy City.

Messages were sent flashing over the wires to the express officials and to police authorities all over the county, requesting a watch for the robbers. The scene of the robbery was afterward visited by Coal and Iron Policemen Smith and Gouge, but if they secured a clue they did not make it known.

Clifford describes one of the robbers as being five feet ten inches in height, weighing about 165 pounds and about 35 years of age. His face was full and he wore a large sandy mustache. The other is five feet eight inches tall, might weigh 130 pounds, about 25 years of age, and wore a black mustache of two or three weeks growth. He suspects the mustaches were artificial. The younger man did the searching.

Mr. S. V. B. Hill, Superintendent of the Adams Express, arrived from Reading last evening and took Clifford's statement. At daybreak this morning he went to the scene of the "hold up" and after a careful search found the two envelopes in which the money had arrived, along with a check for $17, which had been thrown aside. The silver watch has not been recovered. The Adams company is said to have employed the Pinkerton force to make a vigorous search for the highwaymen.

THE NATION'S LAWMAKERS

A House Quorum Fades Away to Attend a Baseball Game.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Yesterday in the senate was almost entirely consumed by a speech against the pending tariff bill by Senator Perkins, of California. The speech was mainly devoted to a discussion of the articles in the bill which directly affected California wool, fruits, quicksilver, sugar, etc., although he considered other features in the bill in which his state was not interested but which were opposed to Republican principles, and which he accordingly arraigned. The Peffer resolution for the appointment of a committee on communications for the purpose of hearing the grievances of Coxy's army was debated by Senators Peffer and Allen, both of whom favored it, but it went over without action.

The house is making very slow progress with the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. Almost the entire day was devoted to thrashing over the old straw in the Hawaiian controversy. The text used as a basis for the debate—a motion to cut off the salary of the Hawaiian minister—was defeated when the vote was taken without division. About 4 o'clock half the membership of the house suddenly faded away to attend the opening ball game of the season. The Democrats were unable to produce a quorum, and after a roll call the house adjourned.

Fugitive Prisoners Again Escape.

HAZLETON, Pa., April 20.—Angelo Matz, who escaped from the sheriff two days ago while being taken to the penitentiary to serve a five years term, and his companion, Rozario Stanzola, an ex-convict wanted by the local and government authorities, on charges of burglary and desertion from the navy, appeared in Freeland yesterday, and were chased to the mountains by a deputy sheriff and his posse. The fugitives drew revolvers and, after holding their pursuers at bay for half an hour, escaped. Twenty armed Italians, under the leadership of Joseph Ferri, who is on Matz's bond, are in pursuit, and the local officers look for them to bring in the man dead or alive.

Walcott Defeats Tracey.

BOSTON, April 20.—Joe Walcott, the colored wonder of this city, defeated Tom Tracey, of Australia, last night after one of the keenest battles ever seen in Boston. No battle for years has attracted so much attention in this city, and fully 8,000 people were on hand when Referee Jimmy Colville introduced the men. Tracey stood a head over the colored man and looked a trifle fine, while Walcott was in great shape, the muscles on his arms standing out like whip cords. The battle was warmly contested throughout, but in the sixteenth round Tracey was completely knocked out. The fight was for a $1,000 purse.

QUAKE.

Misses Effie and Kate Ewald visited friends in Tamaqua this week.

Miss Annie Boughner and Mrs. E. Moser were in Mahanoy City on Monday.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms, and shoulders read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me, he got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 30 cent bottles for sale by Grubler Bros.
