Kentucky Democrats Expel Two Republican Senators.

IT IS A WAR OF RETALIATION.

For the Republicans Have Ousted Kauffman, a Democratic Member—No Prospect That a United States Senator Will be Chosen at This Session.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 12.—March 11, 1896, will be unforgettably memorable in the history of Kentucky state politics. Blind partisanship and bitter passion usurped the place of cool judgment and sober thought. At times it looked as if there might be an outbreak of violence. When it became known outside that the house had unseated Kauffman, the Democrat, and that the senate had unseated the Republicans, James and Walton, the aspect looked so threatening that many of the great crowd that thronged the corridors made a dash to get away. There was an unseemly rush for the joint assembly door, which was guarded by a large body of armed men.

At one time the explosive point was almost reached. That point would doubtless have been reached if the Republicans had attempted to force the unseated senators into the joint assembly meeting. Kauffman, the Democrat unseated by the house, was already in the hall, and Senator James, one of the unseated senators, got in by strategy. This left one unseated Democrat and one unseated Republican in the joint assembly hall. This made honors about even on that score, and tended to promote peace. There were revolvers waiting, silent but ready, at the hall door, and had anyone wanted trouble he could have had it.

Within the hall of the joint assembly matters were made to run more smoothly by the ruling of Speaker Worthing that the clerk of each house should call the roll for the vote of the house. Once under way the joint assembly proceeded to business in true parliamentary style. In calling the roll the senate's chief clerk, in enrolling the names of the members of the senate, omitted to call those of James and Walton, and the clerk of the house omitted to call the name of Kauffman. The Republicans refused to vote at all, with the object of breaking a quorum. The ballot resulted: Blackburn, 54; Caplice, 10; Buckner, 1.

The chair decided that as only sixty-five votes had been cast there was no quorum, and therefore no election. Upon motion the assembly adjourned at once.

When it adjourned every member of it went out into the open air in a good humor. The breaking of the quorum of both parties through the few days that remain of this session, and that neither party will elect a senator.

Through all the excitement Senator Blackburn set in the senate cloak room except for a few minutes. This was when an altercation occurred between Bronston and Walton. Then he started up and exclaimed: "Let me get out." He was finally restrained by his friends.

W. C. Dunlap, who on Tuesday afternoon withdrew from his contest of the seat of Representative Kauffman, returned to Frankfort yesterday, and immediately was besieged by the friends of the Republican senatorial nominee, who endeavored in vain to induce him to withdraw his letter addressed to Mr. Blanford, speaker of the house, in which he abandoned the contest. He declares that, though declared elected, he will not take his seat unless forced to do so, and will not vote in any event.

Archbishop Kenrick's Funeral.
St. Louis, March 12.—With the imposing ceremonies befitting his rank as a prince in the Roman Catholic church Archbishop Richard Kenrick was laid to rest in the priests' lot in Calvary cemetery yesterday. The services at the Cathedral were the grandest and most imposing ever seen in St. Louis. One cardinal, eight archbishops, more than twenty bishops and fully 400 priests, assisted by a host of students from the Kenrick seminary, acted the services, which consisted of pontifical requiem mass and the office for the dead. Archbishop Knin acted as celebrant. Following this Archbishop Ryan delivered an eloquent oration.

FOUR MEN WERE KILLED

By the Explosion of a Locomotive Boiler at Gum Run, Pa.

HAZLETON, Pa., March 12.—One of the most disastrous accidents that has ever occurred in the history of the Delaware, Susquehanna and Schuylkill railroad happened yesterday afternoon at Gum Run, when an engine attached to a coal train exploded, killing four men and fatally injuring one other. The dead are James Chambers, John Stewart, Michael Boyle and Frank O'Donnell. The injured man is William Timmony. Low water in the boiler is supposed to have caused the explosion.

The scene of the accident is in the heart of the mountain among a dense woodland. The only inhabitant at the place is the telegraph operator, living in the tower. The sound of the explosion reverberated throughout the region to such an extent that it aroused the inhabitants of the entire valley. A fierce snow storm prevented people from reaching the spot. The telegraph operator, together with William Tulley, a surviving member of the crew, got to work, and after hard labor rescued the injured from the wreck. O'Donnell was blown to fragments, while Stewart and Boyle were horribly torn and mangled. The engine was completely wrecked, together with a dozen coal cars. The road was blocked all night.

McAuliffe-Lavigne Fight Stopped.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Five thousand people assembled at Madison Square Garden to witness the contest between Jack McAuliffe and George ("Kid") Lavigne. A hundred policemen were on hand, and it was announced that no hard fighting would be allowed. In the sixth round, however, the pugilists pitched into each other so viciously that Inspector Brooks stopped the bout, and there was no decision. It was generally admitted, however, that Lavigne had the best of it.

Prayer as a Search Light.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., March 12.—Jacob Stillwagner, of Boydstown, claims to have discovered a sister through the efficacy of prayer. He was separated from his brother and two sisters in the west when he was but 7 years old. Last fall while crossing the mountain to Shamokin he knelt in the forest and prayed fervently for a trace of his missing relatives. A few weeks later, it is claimed, one of his sisters and her home in Wisconsin were revealed to him in a dream. He went west and became thoroughly convinced the woman was his long missing sister. M. Stillwagner is hopeful of finding traces of his other missing sister and his brother, by the same means.

Disappointed Love and Suicide.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 12.—Carrie Elliston, aged 19 years, whose home is in Stall, Wyoming county, committed suicide yesterday in a hotel by turning on the gas. Her action was due, it is alleged, to a disappointment in love. She requested that her lover's photograph be buried with her.

Sent Back to England.

Two men who arrived at Ellis Island a few days ago en route from England to this place were sent back yesterday in the steamship in which they arrived by the immigration authorities. The friends of the men here feel that a mistake has been made, claiming that the new arrivals were neither paupers nor contract laborers. It appears that when examined in the customary manner the men stated that their friends had sent to England for them, having secured employment for them in this town, and on that ground they were set aside as contract laborers.

Efforts For the Project Quashed by the School Board.

NEW HEATING SYSTEM ADOPTED

The Peck-Williamson System of Heating and Ventilating to be Placed in the New Building and High School Addition.

The School Board met in special session last night to take action on matters bearing upon the creation of a new school building on White street and an extension to the High school building. Edwin R. Williams, who was elected at the last meeting to succeed Charles Hooks as Director for the Third ward, was in attendance. The other Directors present were Messrs. Ogden, Trezise, Manley, Lee, Edwards, Devitt, Morgan, Smith, Conry, Hanna and Price.

Immediately after the opening of the meeting the representatives of two heating and ventilating companies introduced themselves and took turns in explaining the merits of their respective systems. About half an hour was consumed in this way, and then the Board settled down to business, starting out with the reading of Director Williams' oath of office and its approval by the meeting. President Ogden announced that Mr. Williams would serve on all committees on which vacancies had been created by Mr. Hooks' resignation.

The committee on new buildings made its report and recommended that the proposition of the Peck-Williamson Ventilating & Heating Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, be accepted. The company will put its system in the proposed new White street building for $1,250 and in the High school addition for $1,050. The recommendation was adopted and the Board has notified Architect Davis to prepare his plans and specifications suitable for the introduction of the Peck-Williamson system.

The adoption of the system carries with it the introduction of what is known as the Otis Mechanical Regulator, a new invention which automatically controls the heating and ventilating apparatus of each room in a body. It is a U shaped thermometer so constructed that the mercury in the tube at required times connects with a wire connected with a dry battery and a magnet and these appliances operate the heating apparatus connected with the Peck-Williamson system automatically, and without any attention from the janitor of the building. When the temperature of the room reaches 72 degrees the mercury in the thermometer connects with the wire connected with the dry battery and magnet and causes an operation by which the heat is shut off and cold air turned on. The mercury in the thermometer then works in reverse order and when the temperature drops to 68 degrees the electrical connections are again put in motion by connection of the mercury with the wire and the hot air is again turned on and the cold air shut off.

The adoption of the Peck-Williamson system of heating and ventilating is a new departure, as the West and Jardin street school buildings contain the Suedad-Wills system. In making the change the School Board was guided to some extent by the report of the committee on building and repairs made after an exhaustive inquiry into the merits of both systems. The committee decided unanimously that the Peck-Williamson system was the best and especially commended the separate stacks for hot and cold air and a third stack which makes it possible for the odors arising from the water closets to permeate the air which the pupils are compelled to breathe. The committee received several complaints recently in the latter connection.

At the same time the securing of the contract is a big victory for the Peck-Williamson people. They are now corners to the eastern field, the nearest introduction of their system being Tyrone, Pa., but their field throughout the north and west is very large.

After the disposition of the question of heating and ventilating the question of putting a clock in the tower of the new school building was revived, but again went down before a majority of votes. Director Lee started the discussion by moving that a clock be placed in the tower and Director Devitt seconded the motion with lusty voice. Several Directors spoke for and against the proposition. On the affirmative it was stated a place the size of Shenandoah should certainly have a town clock, as the town has a population of 18,000, and Port Carbon and St. Clair with the grass growing in the streets have fine town clocks. In opposition it was stated that the clock would be of no benefit, except to people in the immediate vicinity of the building. The tower will be but 71 feet high, the clock would cost from $125 to $250, and to increase the height of the tower, with the cost of the clock, would make an expense which would be better appreciated if turned into metallic ceilings for the rooms in the building. The motion was defeated by a vote of 6 to 5.

Inconsistency.

In an East Centre street grocery store is displayed this sign: "If you don't see what you want, ask for it?" A business man called there yesterday and asked payment on a bill that had been running for six months, and he was shown through the front door. He is now of the opinion that that particular grocer is not consistent.
